

NIGHT EDITION A GRAND PARADE THE MANNING FAMILY

CHARGE OF LARCENY

Brought Against John Cassis in Police Court

John Cassis was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $500 in money, the property of Maria Cassis. He entered a plea of not guilty and was ordered to furnish a bond in the sum of $500 to appear before the court next Saturday morning to answer to the complaint.

The case is as peculiar as it is complicated, according to what has been learned by the police, and there are really two cases against the man, one being civil and the other criminal.

From what can be learned the complainant and defendant, both of whom bear the same surname, are not related to each other, but had lived in the same house in this city for a long time. Both are thirty, and inasmuch as the woman had a crippled husband and children living in Assyria, she saved her money and when she accumulated $500 informed John Cassis that she was going to send the money to the old country. It is alleged that he volunteered to send the money and entrusted him with the $500 she felt that it would reach its destination and meant a little fortune to the husband and children.

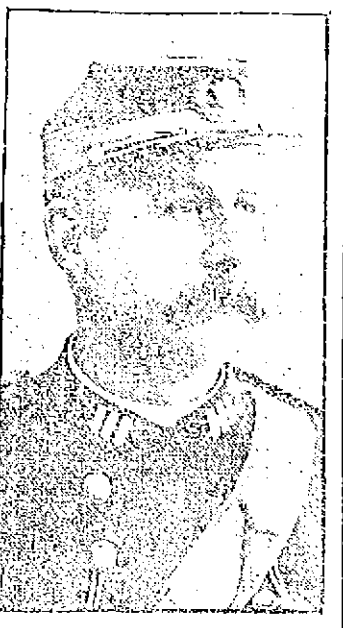

It is alleged that Cassis secured a draft for the money and sent it to Assyria, but that the draft was payable to no one but a person who had an or-

Annual Encampment of Patriarchs Militant Held Here Today

A big celebration was held in this city today, the affair being the annual encampment and parade of the Massachusetts department, Patriarchs Militant. The celebration is under the auspices of Canton Pawtucket, P. M. I. O. O. F., and as it is the first time that the event has been held in Lowell, the members of the canton have arranged an elaborate program and nothing has been spared to make the occasion a pleasant one for the visitors.

Canton Pawtucket was organized on March 3, 1886, and is the outcome of the Uniform Degree camp which was formed in 1853 with Col. Albert Pinder as first commander, and Horace V. Kittredge, second commander. The canton is now associated with the fourth regiment, which includes Lawrence, Haverhill, and Newburyport, and a large number of guests from the latter places, as well as from Brockton, Charlestown, Somerville and Waltham are in town today enjoying the hospitality of the local canton.

THE MANNING MANSE AT BILLERICA.

Held Annual Reunion at Manning Manse Today

If you are looking for any of the history of the dreaded red fox. Later on in Manning today it will be necessary to go to Billerica, and at one time during the revolution a detachment of patriot troops, including a general and his staff, stopped there. Here, too, was located a "peter" house where saltwater was made for use as one of the commonest forms of gunpowder to be used by the patriot troops in the war of the Revolution.

It stands today one of the few old landmarks that remain to tell of the earlier days, so full of tradition and history that are dear to the descendants. It is in a fine state of preservation and as nearly as possible in its original shape. With its immense fire places and swinging cranes, the old Dutch ovens, the quaint low studded rooms with their beamed ceilings hewn out of logs, the winding stairway, the wooden latches with the old time latch strings, it is indeed a possession to be coveted.

Standing alone, with a fringe of green woods all about it in the near distance and nestled under the shade of noble trees, it commands attention and respect and could well furnish a theme for the poet or painter. The old manse is filled with a large collection of objects of interest to every member of the family and includes antique furniture, documents, deeds, letters, family portraits, spinning wheels, and a wealth of articles of bygone days, all of which have been donated by different members of the family, and the collection is being added to constantly.

The Manning association is a family institution and was formed for the purpose of preserving the identity and prominence of the Manning family as well as to stimulate social intercourse and to establish acquaintanceship between the various branches and members of the family. Reunions are held annually on June 17.

TWO LOCAL LAWYERS

Assigned to Defend Man Charged With Murder

Michael Patsiouras of this city, recently indicted for the murder of John Germanacos in a house in Brooks street, March 16, 1911, was arraigned in the superior criminal court at Cambridge late yesterday afternoon and he pleaded not guilty. The court assigned Major William H. Bent and Bennett Silverblatt of this city as his counsel. He was remanded without bail to await trial at a special session of the court for the trial which will be held in the fall.

The murder grew out of the love of Germanacos for a pretty Greek girl named Mary Lucas, who has been held as a witness. According to a Greek custom, a young man must have the consent of his sweetheart's family or guardian before he can keep company with her. The nearest of kin of Mary Lucas in this city was Patraacos, and he forbade Germanacos calling on the girl. On the night of the murder he visited the apartments of Mary Lucas and found Germanacos hiding in a closet where he had been secreted by the girl upon the approach of Patraacos. A struggle ensued and Patraacos entered the room and attempted to separate the pair. Patraacos claims that Germanacos told him to seize Germanacos by the arms and he did so and while he had Germanacos thus pinned he claims that Patraacos drew a revolver and shot Germanacos with fatal effect. Germanacos died in a short time, while Patraacos made his escape and has never been located. Patraacos was later arrested by Superintendent Redmond Welch and Inspector Frank Fox. He pleaded not guilty in the lower court to a charge of murder, but was subsequently indicted for murder by the grand jury.

40th ANNUAL REUNION

Of Old Company G Associates Held in This City Today

The 40th annual reunion of Old Company G Associates was held at the New American House today and, as is usual on such occasions, the old soldiers told tales of the past to each other and the meeting was rich in reminiscence. Company G was one of the ten companies of the Old Sixth that participated in "the nine months' campaign." Out of the 26 members who formed the company, 22 are known to be living; 24 have died and 6 are among the missing, probably dead. Sixteen of the 26 who are living gathered at the festive board today. Nine of them live in Lowell.

Those present were: Capt. George L. Cady, Frank S. Peavey, president of the organization; William H. Spaulding, secretary; Andrew Liddell, treasurer—all of Lowell; George W. Hummel, Brockton; N. Y. Moore, Canton; D. C. N. H. Albert, St. Albans; Mrs. Leland, New Me.; George Healy, Newark, N. J.; George T. Taylor, Pepperell; William A. Maurice, Newton, Mass.; Albert T. Green, Lowell; Charles B. Kitchen, Lowell; William P. Harrington, Lowell; Henry C. Hutchison, Lowell; James Christie, Lowell; S. Augustus Leland, Waltham, Mass. The invited guests were Lieut.-Col. Melvin Hall of Lawrence; Major Charles A. Stott and Dr. George Pinkham of Lowell.

The old comrades met in the parlor of the hotel shortly before the noon hour and the exchange of greetings was both pleasant and impressive to the outsider who chanced to witness it. How cordial and low showers were those handshakes, and in what sadness of tone did an old comrade ask, "Is poor Joe dead?" He had asked for a comrade whom he thought was dead, and was grieved to learn that he had crossed the great divide. There were some tender recollections and tender applications of sympathy expressed, but withal there was a trace of the spirit of bygone days and they moved about like fellows in their teens.

At a few minutes after one o'clock Comrade Turlall sounded the assembly and the boys called shouted out into the street. A little later the remnant of the gallant company marched to the dining room downstairs and the feast was on. President Peavey presided and after the menu had been discussed and cigars were in full blast, after dinner speeches were in order. Most of them were more or less reminiscence, but all of a little good-natured cheer, and the occasion added another link to the chain of happy reunions that are dear to the heart of the old out over cheerful comrades.

Company G was organized in 1862, as the Amateur 1861 Club, and participated in the battle of Gettysburg and drilled during that year and were New Months' troops, were called for in 1863 and were made to obtain the services of the company. It succeeded only as far as a small part was concerned; but the ranks were recruited so that it entered the Sixth. Its drill was excellent and it passed through the campaign with credit second to that of no other company in the regiment.

The officers of the company were: George L. Cady, captain; Stephen F. Blakely, first lieutenant; Alfred H. Bulfinch, second lieutenant; Nathan Taylor, first sergeant; Frank Benson, Stephen Kenney, Clark B. Caswell, Charles O. Billings, sergeants; Albert C. Grant, Andrew J. Sargent, Morton W. Chase, George H. Dixon, D. C. N. H. Taylor, William E. Hill, Franklin S. Peavey and Henry Hutchinson, corporals.

When, in the year 1862, the call of the government was made for men to serve nine months, the quota of Massachusetts was seventeen companies and one battery and the Sixth for the first time took the first response. It was sent to Washington, ready for duty, and before any other regiment arrived. It preserved the same organization, with such change of officers and companies as such times would inevitably produce. Seven companies were the same, namely: A, Lowell; B, Canton; C and D, Lowell; E, Andover; F, Lowell; and I, Lawrence.

The place of old Company G was supplied by Company G from Lowell, and Company K, a new company, from Chelmsford and the neighboring towns,

AT ST. MARGARET'S TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

Program for Laying of Corner-Stone Tomorrow

The laying of the corner stone of the new St. Margaret's church will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and today the welcome news was received to the effect that Rev. Dr. H. H. King, the zealous pastor of the church, who has been very ill at the General Hospital, Boston, will be able to attend, although he will not take any active part in the services, which will be in charge of Rev. W. George Mullin, of St. Peter's church, who will be assisted by Rev. Henry C. Reardon, curate at St. Margaret's.

The members of the A. G. H. will assemble at their hall at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and headed by the Lowell Military band will march to the church, where they will act as a guard of honor. They will assemble in St. Charles street in open order so that the church procession will pass between them on its way to the scene of the exercises.

The church procession will form in Chauncey street in the rear of the church and will march through Chauncey, D and Stevens streets to the platform over the foundation, from which the exercises will take place.

The order of the procession will be as follows:

Band.
Cross-bearer and acolytes.
Altar boys.

Little Girls of Parish dressed in white.
Visiting clergymen in full vestments.

Mr. Rev. Bishop Anderson, officiating.

The exercises at the platform will open with a collection of the band followed by a hymn by the church choir, with singers from all the Catholic church choirs of the city, by "Veni Creator," James E. Dunn, of Boston; selection, Lord; laying of corner stone by Bishop Anderson; and address by Bishop Anderson; choir song, "Hail God We Praise Thee," by the congregation; John J. Dwyer is chairman of the committee on arrangements; and George M. Harrison, chairman of the reception committee.

The church and parochial residences are being tastefully decorated.

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSE THIS MORNING

Trading fell off in the second hour—Recoveries came toward the end of the session—Profit-taking issues showed no sign of gaining

NEW YORK, June 17.—Moderate strength developed in the early trading on the stock exchange today. The opening range of prices showed fractional gains for most of the active national stocks. Lehigh Valley advanced a point and Union Pacific 1-2. U. S. Steel sold unchanged and American Copper advanced 5/8.

Although there were reports of a rise in wheat and cotton, the market weakened directly after the opening. Reading, U. P. and U. S. Steel were supported and reacted to fractionally lower yesterday's closing. The rise in Lehigh Valley was cancelled and the Hill stocks were depressed over a point below last night. Industrial stocks showed some heaviness, the decline of 1-1/2 in Virginia-Carolina Chemical on uncertainty over maintaining dividends causing some selling of other issues. American Beet Sugar sagged 1/2 and National Biscuit 1-1/4. There was a sharp rally before 11 o'clock and losses were mostly recovered.

The market closed steady. Trading fell off in the second hour and the stock took another dip but recoveries came toward the end of the session leaving the net result comparatively unchanged save in the case of certain specialties and the fertilizer issues showed no recuperative power.

New York Cotton Market
NEW YORK, June 17.—There was a further and sensational decline in the cotton market this morning and a

NEW YORK MARKET

General selling, inspired by favorable new crop reports, including private estimates of additional rains in the drought sections of the western belt and a private condition report showing an improvement in crop prospects since the government's figures were made up last month. The old crop months were violently excited with July selling off to 14.31 or 23 points below last night and $6.69 per bale under the high price of the season. New crop delivery is sold 22 to 24 points below last night's prices and about $2.50 per bale below the high prices of the week.

Money Market
NEW YORK, June 17.—Prime mercantile paper 4-4 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange steady at 154 for 60 days bills and at 45-45 1/2 for demand. Commercial bills 18 1/2. Bar silver 50 1/2. Mexican dollars 47. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular. Money on call nominal. Time loans easier: 60 days 2 1/2, 90 days 2 1/2, six months 3 1/2.

Clearing House Statement
NEW YORK, June 17.—The statement of clearing house banks of Greater New York for the week shows that the banks held $2,217,750 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rate. This is an increase of $29,481,550 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week.

Corpus Christi Procession Tomorrow Says Reciprocity Need Cause No Alarm

The solemnity of the feast of Corpus Christi will be observed with impressive services at St. Peter's church tomorrow. Solemn high mass at 11 o'clock will be followed by a procession of the church sodalities, escorting the officiating priests about the aisles of the church. Special music will be rendered by both choirs.

St. Michael's Church
The procession at St. Michael's church will be held after the 10:30 o'clock mass tomorrow. The priests, sacristans and little children will take part. The Blessed Sacrament will be carried in state around the interior of the church.

SPAIN IS READY
To Send 10,000 Soldiers to Morocco

PARIS, June 17.—A despatch to La Patrie from Tangier says that Spain has concentrated 10,000 men with an enormous quantity of war materials at Cadiz for use in Morocco should occasion arise. The forces now occupying the Alarish are to be increased to 1,000 men.

THE SUBMARINES
MANAGED TO ENTER PORT WITHOUT BEING DETECTED

GLoucester, June 17.—Instructed before leaving the harbor at Newport to elude detection as far as possible and to make the run from that port to Gloucester with as much secrecy as possible, the officers commanding the seven submarines carried out the order of their superiors to the letter.

After hours of patient waiting and watching, observers in this port reported late last night that the tiny craft had entered the harbor and completed the run. Shortly before midnight several craft lying low in the water showing the red and green sailing lights passed into the outer harbor and the observers believed these craft to be the belated submarines. At daylight it was learned, however, that the boats that kept late port last night were part of the local fleet of power boats.

The gunboat Castine and the tender Severn attached to the submarine division of the navy came into port today and from the officers it was learned that the submarines spent "Thursday night" in the harbor of San Juan and last night was passed at Provincetown.

Our First Anniversary

I wish to thank my many patrons for the confidence given me during the past year, for this has been, I may say, a prosperous one and we have become acquainted with many new customers. Our business is growing, due to your knowledge of bargains which I will always strive to give you as in the past.

I have decided upon a plan of campaign which I feel already assured you will appreciate and take advantage of. That is, each year it will be my aim to secure bargains for our ANNIVERSARY that will be remembered by our many patrons, and realizing that cash is the strongest talkative point in the larger markets, a cash amount for the past months had been laid aside each week for only one purpose, that is BUY AT THE LOWEST FIGURES POSSIBLE. The proof of our success is shown by the letter included in this advertisement.

Double-header—first game at 2.
It rained and the wind was very weary in Haverhill yesterday.

Little Jawn O'Brien is looking for sympathy; likewise the pennant. He'll hardly get a good look at either.

Burkert says he'll be a crab no longer. Hooper for Jesse! He always was a good old soul.

Manager P. John Dugan writes that Frederickton is leading the league. Frederickton is the North Pole league.

Pres. Morrone says Lynn must play off that disputed game with Lowell on June 27. This is going to show someone that he's at the head of the league. 'This well!'

Jim Magee will remain with us for the present, but undoubtedly will go to the big league at the close of the season.

Walter Foy is playing a great game with the New London, Conn. team.

Nary a game at all at home next week but a week from today there'll be a red hot semi-professional game at the South common between the two Palmares and the South Ends, the two rival South common teams, for a purse of $50.

LOST DECISION

Thomas Should Have Had Draw

Joe Thomas returned home last evening from Lancaster, Pa., where he boxed six rounds with Leo Houck in the latter's home town. Joe, who says very little about himself and his bouts as a general rule, was disappointed over the outcome of the match, the decision going to Houck, although he claims it should have been a draw. Arrangements are being made for a 20 round bout between Thomas and Houck at Harrisburg, Pa.

DELMONT'S BOUT

Kid Lee is Not in the Championship Class

At Delmont and Kid Lee had at it for seven rounds before the Lowell 8, and a club last evening, but it didn't take seven rounds to show that Lee had no license in the championship class or against Delmont. Lee showed considerable gameness, a left jab and a right swing but there was no steam behind them. Delmont allowed Lee to land on him while he eluded Lee at will. In the seventh Delmont connected with Lee's solar plexus and Lee went down. He got up after being counted out with surprising agility for one who had taken the count.

The semi-final was the real thing and it brought together Billy Cross of Lowell and Young Josephs of Lowell. It was Cross' second appearance within the circle but he worked like a veteran. Joseph was good and willing but Cross had a good shade the advantage and

EX-PRESIDENT DIAZ

Reproaches His Countrymen for What He Calls Their Ingratitude

CORUNNA, Spain, June 17.—Physically exhausted and sick at heart, General Porfirio Diaz, an exile from the republic of which he was chief builder, at last has yielded to an impulse of self-defense. In a formal statement he justified his administration as president of Mexico and reproached his countrymen for what he describes as their ingratitude.

SEVEN WHALES

TAKEN IN A WEEK BY CREW OF NEW BEDFORD BOAT

NEW BEDFORD, June 17.—Whaling has been successful with the schooner A. M. Nicholson of New Bedford, which was on the whaling grounds in latitude 38.16 north; longitude 72.54 west, on May 21. The schooner signalled the whaler E. M. Brown on that date, saying that seven whales had been taken within a week, asking to be reported to the Associated Press as "All well" as the folks at home would get the good news. The Brown arrived here this morning from Jacksonville and the master delivered the message as soon as he had dropped his mud-rocks overboard.

"General Diaz, confident in the good sense of the people, thought that the agitation would disappear but the people, easily forgetting the merits of the Diaz administration, allowed them-

LEADER OF GIANTS, WHOM FANS TRY TO MAKE IT HOT FOR ON THE DIAMOND

NEW YORK, June 17.—Probably no other manager in baseball today or in fact, any other season has had to put up with as many taunts and vulgar personalities thrown at him from the fans as John McGraw of the Giants. In every city except his home the fans have taken all kinds of methods to stir the little manager up into a pugna-cious mood, but so far he has resisted all the nagging epithets hurled at him. It requires a great deal of self-restraint to keep cool and collected when

5000 or 10,000 wild eyed fans are out to get your goat. But McGraw has never yet argued a point with the occupants of the grandstand or bleachers. True, he has had many nicknames with the nomenclature of a player and since he became a manager, but what spirited leader of a big league team has not? McGraw stated recently that in the future he would not argue with the nags. He has evidently come to the sensible conclusion that his services are much more valuable to his team on the coaching lines than in the bomb proof, where rats umpires have so frequently and often without just cause banished him. McGraw is loved by the team, and he has adopted the plan that will be most beneficial to the club players. Any man considered by his employer to be worth a five year contract at $15,000 a year would hardly be earning this salary if much of his valuable time was passed in enforced retirement as the result of penalties inflicted by umpires.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

It is alleged that the idleness of some thousands of mill girls in Rhode Island is due to the decreased demand for dress fabrics, due to the hobble skirt for which not more than half as much cloth is required as for the ordinary skirt. It is time to revive the hoop skirt and crinolines.

The amendment to the reciprocity part in the interest of the paper trust as offered by Senator Root and backed by Senator Lodge is regarded merely as a ruse by which to defeat the whole measure without appearing to have that intention. Root and Lodge should be exposed in their deceitful move. The passage of the measure through the senate is now practically assured in spite of all underhand methods adopted to defeat it.

The ghastly remains of the battleship Maine, in Havana harbor, show what an explosion will do to the best of these great floating fortresses. The knowledge thus to be gained of the wreck is of sufficient historic importance to warrant the great expense, while it will be of some satisfaction to the relatives of those whose bodies were there entombed to know that even the bones have been recovered.

A very remarkable case of "horse sense" was shown by one of the fire horses of Melrose the other day. The animal had broken away, while out for exercise, and after futile attempts to capture him, the driver hurried to the station and sounded one stroke on the fire alarm. The horse on hearing the bell turned and galloped at full speed to his place in the firehouse. In so doing that fire steed showed not only the effect of good training, but a sense of duty higher than that shown by some men.

THE DIRECT NOMINATION LAW

The law for direct nominations just enacted will simplify our political system and will prevent many of the convention rows that have been too frequent in the nomination of candidates by party conventions. The conventions will now have little to do beyond outlining party platforms and methods by which the ticket may best be supported. The change will at least prevent the efforts to defeat the will of the people that have so often been noticeable at political conventions.

OPTIMIST AND PESSIMIST

Some people are evidently of the opinion that it is the duty of a newspaper to paint every temporary evil in its worst colors and to hold the picture up to horrify the community, while some others believe that it is the newspaper's proper course to set down every such evil at its face value and do everything possible to bring about the remedy. These two courses are open to the daily newspaper in a great variety of cases of frequent occurrence, and in each and every one the paper has to adopt one course or the other. If it tries to make bad worse it is a pessimist; if it looks upon the sunny side of things or sees in the darkest cloud a silver lining, then it is optimistic.

The first policy, if pursued by the press, would drive men to desperation and despair, while the second serves even in the face of adversity to inspire them with hope and courage, the elements necessary to enable them to overcome whatever obstacles beset their path.

Business reverses of one kind or another may come and do come, sometimes when least expected; but that is no justification for representing them in such a bad light that the parties affected will become discouraged and abandon the struggle. It is the resort of demagogues and revolutionists to take up isolated cases of this kind, exploiting them as horrible examples from which the whole system is to be judged and condemned. When business depression comes, the men who are working to abolish the wage system seize upon it as an opportunity to advance their theories, very often spreading false ideas as to the real cause and painting imaginary pictures of the ideal conditions they claim would exist if all property were owned in common and the state were responsible for the comfort and well-being of every citizen.

These pictures might do good if they were not used to create prejudice against existing conditions or existing institutions. In our political system bad men will get into office and bad measures will be enacted; but in nine such cases out of ten, a large portion of the responsibility for these things rests upon the shoulders of the people who complain most loudly, because instead of using the power placed in their hands to prevent these evils and bring about ideal conditions they neglect to use the ballot for their own protection and then rail vociferously because some robber trust or combination has come into existence to extort unjust prices from the consumer. The oppressive trust, the consequent high cost of living and the restriction upon open competition, are all evils that can be remedied by the people if they make up their minds to do so by the power placed in their hands. Were it otherwise the republican form of government based upon universal suffrage would be a demonstrated failure.

Some of the recent decisions of the supreme court show that fair play and opportunity must be guaranteed alike to all. There is much to be reformed and improved in our political and industrial system; but there is ample power in the hands of the people to bring about all the needed reforms by strictly constitutional methods and without resorting to any of the wild or revolutionary schemes now so openly advocated. The pessimists refuse to believe this; the optimists are ready to prove that it is thoroughly practicable if the people will only use their power intelligently for their own and for the common good. The pessimist looks upon everything through smoked glass, as if, were, seeing all enveloped in gloom while the optimist views things in the sunshine of hope, inspiring cheerfulness and that spirit of confidence necessary to the success of every undertaking. The pessimist would make the world more dark and gloomy and would supplant the light of hope by the gloom of despair, while the optimist makes the world better and brighter, the people more contented with their lot and more capable of moving onward and upward to a nobler destiny.

SEEN AND HEARD

The farmers say we are badly in need of more rain. The ground was so dry that the recent rain was not sufficient to quench it.

A chauffeur who had just returned to the garage after taking the state's examination to be licensed, says the New York Sun was asked by a fellow worker what the questions were. "One of them was about meeting a skittish horse," he replied.

"They asked me what I would do if I approached a horse which showed signs of being afraid of the car and its driver held up his hand to me."

"What was the answer?" asked a bystander.

"Oh, I had that all right," the chauffeur replied.

"I told them, 'I'd stop the car, take it apart and hide the pieces in the grass.'"

For forty years old Schneider—that is not his name—kept a saloon for longshoremen. Longshoremen are thick-skinned, extensible persons, who have a way of using cotton socks when they are in a tight place.

A West street saloon keeper is not a pathetic figure, but that picture of old Schneider, leaning bar patiently for 45 years in order that he might end his days on his own farm had something touching about it.

Stolid, quiet, uncommunicative old man, he bore with an equanimity he found detestable because of the reward it promised. His only reference to those West street years now is in his occasional declaration that he ran a quiet place.

"I always had good order in mein store," said he. "Peoples day could not fight in days. I could not but say, 'But how could you keep a bunch of longshoremen from fighting if they wanted to?'"

"Youst by hitting dem on dere heads with a bong-starter," explains Mr. Schneider, simply.—Chicago Times-Star.

It happens that a member of the Jewish race, Mr. Oscar Strauss, was a prominent and efficient member of President Roosevelt's cabinet. That another member of the same race, Mr. Louis Brandeis, has proved one of the most useful citizens in private life today; that another, Mr. Jacob Schiff, is one of the most eminent financial pasts; as well as financiers in the nation; that others of the race—men like Rabbi Hirsch of Chicago and Rabbi Wise of New York—are leaders in the American pulpit; in short, that in every department of American life the Jewish people occupy conspicuous positions of honor and trust.

In view of these circumstances it is little short of humorous that an unknown officer in the army should attempt to bar a man from promotion on the ground that he is a Jew.—Kansas City Star.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

By way of celebrating its 25th anniversary the class of 1885, Wellesley, will present to the college this month a costly set of bronze doors and a transom which will be placed on the library building and will serve as a memorial to the late Prof. Eben Norton Hoagwood, who was an honorary member of the class. The bronze doors and transom are the work of Miss Evelyn Beatrice Longman of New York. The doors measure 6x12 feet, including the transom. In the main panels are two full-sized figures representing "Wisdom" and "Charity." In the transom there is a symbol of special meaning to Wellesley. The motto, "Non Ministrant Sed Ministrantur," is on a ribbon forming the background, and at the center is a wreath of olives, the '85 class flower, within which is the class motto in Greek and the class numerals.

Announcement is made of the award of the three research fellowships of $500 each, offered by the Women's Educational and Industrial union of Boston. One has been conferred upon Miss Ruth Evans, Wellesley, 1911, the others upon Miss Marie A. Kasten, A. B. 1910, and Miss Florence Murphy, A. B. 1909, Dublin university, A. M. 1910, Columbia university.

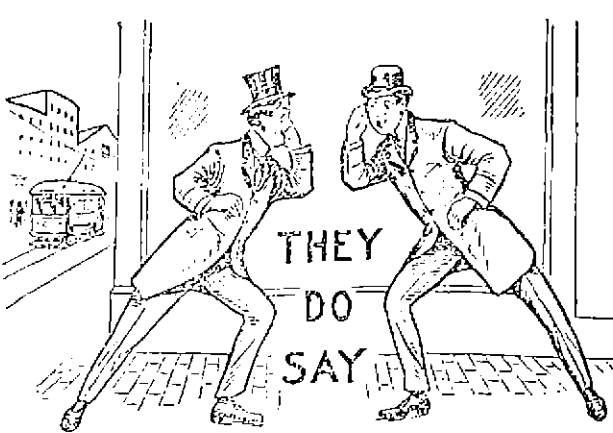

William Collins Bryant Kemp, A. B. A. M. 1910, LL. M. 1911, E. E. 1912, who adds to the modest degree of B. S. to his offices at the commencement exercises of Columbia university several days ago, announces that he intends to spend at least two years more in studying for the degree of Ph. D. Kemp is more than 60 years old, has attended more than 30 commencement exercises at Columbia and has spent the greater part of his life writing textbooks. Many years ago, it is said, a relative left Kemp an annuity of $25,000 to be paid him so long as he remained in college.

Sarah Bernhardt's tour this year has been remarkable even for her. She opened her American season in Chicago on Oct. 28 and will end in New York on Oct. 21, when she will sail for France. She then will have covered about 25,000 miles and will have played 25 performances in 25 days, appearing in 105 different American cities. Her manager says that the gross receipts of the tour will be nearly $1,000,000.

The first award have been made under the Kahn Foundation, wherein distinguished American educators, preferably for the south and west are enabled to spend a year in travel. The two incumbents of the fellowships will be Professor John B. McWhorter of the University of Georgia, and Professor Francis Daniels of Wake Forest college. The Kahn fellowships have been established for this country by Albert Kahn of Paris, the intention being to send for a year's travel abroad men whose tendencies are toward research and learning, their sphere of influence and who have at the moment at their disposal to carry out their ideas. The men are to be chosen each year preferably from smaller institutions of learning in the south and west, and they are permitted to carry out any studies they choose for observation, provided their literary activity is submitted to the trustees of the fund for approval. The present incumbents will travel for a year from July 1, 1911.

That the gift of one million dollars to Morris H. Pratt of New London, to the women's college to be located there, is without restrictions, save that the income be used to pay the tuition expenses of the college, is announced in a letter made public by Mr. Pratt. The object of having the name changed from "Pratt" college to the "Pratt College for Women" is because of the desire to have the name of the state funds more prominently. Among the subscriptions announced is that of $1000 from Governor Pratt.

FELL TO DEATH FROM THE BORDER

Bankers Saw Man Killed in New York From Galveston

NEW YORK, June 17.—The financial district witnessed a gruesome incident at its busiest hour yesterday afternoon when William Anderson, a stone cutter, fell from the twenty-eighth floor of the Bankers' Trust company building, near completion, at Wall and Broad streets.

In setting a stone, Anderson slipped and fell. His one wild cry, as he realized his doom, attracted the attention of bankers and brokers as his body came hurtling down. On a store coping at the fourth floor it struck, and the impact was so tremendous an arm was torn off and left lying on the sill as the body bounded out and crashed onto the heavy wire netting that had been spread over Wall street, at the first floor, to protect traffic while the building was being erected.

The screen acted like a springboard and threw the body into the air again. It dropped finally, horizontally, in front of the Wall street entrance of the Stock Exchange. Excitement in the street was so intense and the press so dense that the police reserves had to be called out from the nearest station to restore order.

BOSTON, June 17.—While James V. Martin was speeding back to the aviation grounds at Waltham yesterday afternoon after a long cross-country flight his wife accepted an invitation from Harry Atwood for a little "joy ride" above the trees tops. When Mr. Atwood alighted Mrs. Martin was ready as she usually is, to discuss her flight with him, for she had slipped away just as he returned, seated as a passenger beside Atwood. Martin looked up in surprise and saw his wife sailing overhead as he stepped out of his machine.

Master Reports In a Hay and Grain Fed the Milford Suit Flames

BOSTON, June 17.—Frank A. Hanson of Milford was awarded $2000 damages against the Milford branches of the quarryworkers' international union of North America by Arthur P. Hardy, master, to whom his complaint was referred. Mr. Hardy filed his report in East Cambridge yesterday.

This is the largest award ever made in this state against a labor union for damages arising from alleged interference with the work of non-union men in labor disputes. The case will be fought to a finish and may go to the full bench or rulings of law asked for by the defense and denied by the master.

The complaint is a granite cutter and in May, 1909, was a foreman of the Massachusetts Pink Granite company of Milford. He had worked in a like capacity for Theodore M. Perry, president of the company. He was a member of the Quarrymen's union prior to 1907, when he took a withdrawal card because he was told that since he had become a foreman he could not belong to the union.

Soon after work at the quarry commenced in February, 1907, Quarrymen and Dacey applied to Perry for work. He referred them to Hanson, who told them in substance that he had all the men he could handle, but would give them the same chance as anyone else when there was a vacancy. Dacey applied to Hanson several times for work and complained that he thought others had been given a preference, but Hanson denied this.

The master says: "It is this impression received by Dacey regarding whether it had any reasonable foundation, which was really at the bottom of the trouble which subsequently arose. There was no evidence introduced which in any way tended to show that the company or Hanson had violated any agreement with the union."

THE GOVERNOR

SAYS STATE BOARD OF HEALTH SHOULD CONTROL MILK

BOSTON, June 17.—Gov. Foss sent his 53d message to the legislature yesterday transmitting Dr. Charles V. Chapin's report on the state board of health. The governor recommends legislation for the centralization of the control of the milk produced in the hands of the board. He also asks the legislature to consider the advisability of consolidating the boards of registration in dentistry, in medicine, in pharmacy and in veterinary medicine into one board. He approves the appropriations for these boards, as well as the appropriation for the board of health.

His present system of inspection is too scattered and is exercised under too many authorities to be either efficient as a state expenditure or equitable to the farmer.

"I recommend legislation to free the milk producer from the present multitude of regulations and to create one definite simple line of state control."

When a vessel arrives at the fishing ground, the trawls are taken out, and, if favorable, what is called a flying set is made. For this, the trawls are set while the vessel is moving. If it shows the fish are abundant, the boat will round the flying set, the vessel starts a run across the fishing ground, the trawl being dropped off one by one, and the vessel is kept in a steady and rapid direction. When the last dory has been dropped the vessel returns for the first, the trawl having been set by this time. This trawl is kept about by the use of buoys and stationery with net and line and can be left. Each dory is rigged up and the vessel makes a wide round, and then drops the trawl on the second. This time the men are to pull the trawls and take out the fish.

When the vessel returns here, she picks up each dory as the work of taking off the fish is completed. If this flying set is successful, the vessel anchors and the fishing proceeds, the trawls being set once and sometimes run a day. A single dory will carry an average of 1,500 pounds of fish, with a maximum of more than twice that amount. Sometimes more than one loadful of fish will be on a trawl, and so a second dory is sent out.

The fish are passed from the dories to the vessel with pitchforks, culled pails, and are kept in lots on deck by means of division decks. In order that the motion of the vessel will not bruise them, the fish are packed in boxes. Once the fish have all been gotten on board the crew is divided into splitting gangs, each consisting of three men. The first man removes the head and splits open the body of the fish, the second removes the viscera and the third splits the fish and removes part of the backbone. In fishing parties these men are known by the unpoetical names of "breakers, gutters and splitters." They obtain 100 per cent in wages by this process.

After this the fish are thoroughly washed and then slipped down a chute into the hold, where two men are at work sorting out the herring or pilchard. This must be extremely careful, in order to prevent the fish from spoiling, which would mean sorting out the spoiled fish and throwing them on. Two men who are especially good at salting are always chosen for this part of the work, and are held responsible for the condition of the fish. The fish are packed in boxes of certain quantities that when one is filled will dash the next is empty of salt, and the space is utilized to the best possible advantage. All of the fish are salted in the bank trips. In thus preparing the fish, the gurry, or refuse, is thrown overboard, and the position of the hold Sometimes more than one loadful of fish is taken on a trawl, and so a second trip must be made.

The fish are passed from the dories to the vessel with piddikows, called paws, and are kept in lots on deck by means of fish racks. The fish are so packed that the crew of the vessel will not bruise them. Once the fish have all been gotten on board the crew is divided into shifting gangs, each consisting of three men. The first gang takes the fish to the splitters, opens the body of the fish, the second removes the viscera and the third splits the fish and removes part of the backbone. In fishing parrotfish these men are known by the unpeppered names of thrashers, gutters and splitters. Each fish takes about 40 per cent. in weight by this process.

After this the fish are thoroughly washed and the slipped down in canvas chute into the hold, where two men are at work salting and bonching, or piling them. This must be extremely carefully done, in order to prevent the fish from becoming salted and bonched. The fish are good and bad out and reneching layers on. changed whenever the ground becomes polluted. The day's work done, the fish dressed and in the hold and the deck scrubbed, the dories are hauled on deck.

In dory-line fishing, the vessels usually start on the first trip about April and return in June. The crews are similar to the others, with only one man to each dory, however. The dories used in this instance are also similar, and the bait consists of chum, only one supply of which is carried. The fishing ground searched, the dories put in at all directions, sometimes as far as three or four miles, and with each man working for years. For fish used in making fish cake for domestic use, they remain in the butchering plant from eight to twelve days if salted, and three to five days if fresh. During the pickling process the fish are covered with a strong brine, after which they are washed and brined again, this time to rid them of the brine. They are dried to a state known as the stage dry. There they are placed on flakes or flattened beds. They are covered with textile-type tops at pickling and during rains, while awnings are used to protect them from the sun. Following the drying process the fish are carried to the storeroom, where they are kept until packed for shipment.

himself. Each fisherman uses two lines, with two hooks on each. When this method of catching the fish is employed the boats usually go out in the morning and come back in the afternoon, though, if the weather is a good faster a longer stay may be made. The fish are counted as they are pitched on deck. Above below 22 inches in length being excluded. Dressing and handling the fish in the vessel is done the same as in trawl fishing.

Trip shalms are small, round, flat-bottomed boats, sometimes known as the rips, and begin to run in April and continue until October. The fish on these trips are sometimes salted, and sometimes handled fresh, or both, the latter on shorter trips. Cockles are used as bait, and the work is done in the morning. The crew consists of a crew of from 12 to 50 men, while the boat is drifting. The bait is used alive, and costs as much as one dollar a bucket. 50 buckets being necessary on a fresh trip, and 200 on a salt trip. Each man has, but one fish with one hook, and he keeps it until the day he catches by pulling on their tongues. For the purpose of giving each man an equal chance, the positions on deck are followed in rotation by the crew.

As the orders come in the fish are taken to the skimming-room. If the fish are to be put up as "absolutely boneless," both the head and skin are removed. They are then passed over a wire mesh which removes the fish by means of forceps. If the skin goes out as simply "boneless," only the fins are cut off, and the thick part of the backbone removed, the small bones being allowed to remain. Then the fish are eaten. For this part of the work a special table is used. The fish are placed there, and the first portions come around. The fish, though worth they are cut. The pieces of fish are passed to girls, who sort and weigh them, for one or two pound cakes, as the case may be.

The good pieces are chosen to make the outside of the packages, while the shorter pieces are used for the inner portions. The cakes are all made in essentially the same way. The fishman puts first one large piece into the glazed iron mold, then the small pieces, and, lastly, the other large piece. This is for the porous part of the cake, and the fish appears in the middle. The mold is then pressed down by foot power and held for a few seconds; a twisting string is then tied around each end. The package is com-

It is on the Georges bank, southeast of Gloucester, that the Georges hand-line fishing is done. The trip usually lasts three or four weeks, depending on the weather. Gloucester is one of the favorite spots, as the fish caught are considered of a superior quality. The method used in catching the cod there is the same as in rip fishing, the crew generally numbering from 14 to 16 besides captain and cook, while herring is the principal bait used.

Of the annual catch, the Georges banks and adjacent grounds furnish about 70 per cent, while the Grand and Western Banks furnish the other 30. Approximately 60 per cent. of the fish are dicted by wrapping, first, in paraffine paper, and then in the labelled wrapper. The loss in weight of the fish from catenating until prepared as "absolutely boneless" is 10 to 15 per cent. The choice analysis of hakes, salmon, etc., and the codfish from the trimmings are put up in various sizes of packages, most of which are sold in New England.

Shredded codfish is made up from the trimmings not otherwise used in packing the regular tuletta. This material is as good as any, but too small for other use. Codfish tongues are shipped in brine in barrels and coils, while the codfish cheeks are dried and shipped in boxes. These tongues are sold with the tongues, or

The salted fish are removed from the hold of the vessel to the deck and from there to the wharf by paws, where they are separated into three classes—scrumps, medium and large, according to their size. Large fish usually amount to more than half the number, while there are about 11 per cent. medium. As the fish are pitched out they are examined for any evidences of spoilage, which might occur from slack salting, carelessness in that connection, or a small leak in the Several uses other than cokes are made of the various parts of the codfish. The guts and fresh waste—livers, intestines, bones and the very small bones—are all put to use. The heads and other waste are made glue. The small bones are converted into fertilizer and chicken feed. The skins are the most valuable for glue, and bring as much as $63 a ton. The livers are thrown into a hopper at the time the fish are dressed and stored for oil. The oil from old livers is used for tanning leather, being worth about 20 cents a bucket. The fresh livers are sold for about $3 a barrel, and are used in the manufacture of cod-liver oil as

The curing of salt fish depends upon salting, which is accomplished in three ways - by the use of salt, by pressure and by exposure to the air. In this country all salt fish vendors are employed by the fish companies. The codfish are employed in the fishery, which are picked in bags, large mackerels have heads, which are used for as long as 20

"The codfish is important part of each year's catch, as we've set it reported to have received $500 on a single trip for the lyons alone. "Cod rounds are eaten, selling at one time for more than 40 cents a pound, but now being much cheaper.

"The codfish even has claims to passing to posterity as a famous fish, for it was no less than a New England college professor who wrote the touching little comic.

"The waiter bowed it through the hall: "We don't serve bread with our fish-balls."

Which, of course, meant a codfish ball.

THE most conspicuous American at the coronation of King George V. of Great Britain will be John T. Hammond, mining engineer, politician, and anti-railroading, who, by virtue of his close personal friendship with President Taft, will be present at the big show in London as the special ambassador of the United States. There will be other Americans present at the great ceremonial, thousands of them as spectators at the public spectacle, and a closer few as official participants in the court exercises, but Mr. Hammond will overshadow them all in news and prominence. Indeed, by virtue of being a envoy extraordinary for this special occasion, he will, at all formal functions, walk in ahead of and have a better seat than any Whitehall Lord, the royalist Lord

This post of coronation envoy is a most coveted honor, and one that is eagerly sought by men who have a wide range of official life or whose work has been of national, provincial, or, of course, that they have played a part in the coronation itself on such high. That the British Ambassador is a most important factor here may be appreciated when it is noted that H. Haumond has been called upon to go to the British house of commons to be elected knight of the shire, which will be by his headquarters during the coronation. But, despite the obvious exertion in pocketbook, there were many sacrifices at the place. Among those most prominently mentioned were former Vice President of the United States, Henry Clay, who died some time since, and the great Ambassador to France. However, when came to be whispered about that Hays Haumond wanted the place, the others were considered out of the running, for, without fail, and the life man, the man of the great good, the golf links in the white sand, the Massachusetts in summer.

Special Ambassador Haumond is sent to London in response to a formal request from the State Department, and from the British government will have a staff consisting of a military aid, a naval aid and a secretary. In order that Uncle Sam's representation may be in keeping with the dignity and the staff of the special and, by no means be officers of the contrary, the military aid, the naval aid and the secretary will be of the United States. It is an example of other leading naval and with a naval aide, a naval review in the United States. It is not expected that Ambassador Haumond to the coronation on this voyage. He will sail on one of the steamships, the British ship, and it is thought he will, just prior to his departure, be detained at a notable British Embassy in Washington.

This sailing of special envoys is a comparatively new thing, the first time since the coronation when former President Roosevelt established a precedent by appointing an ambassador to the coronation. King Edward II stirred up a controversy. There were not a very few, and the British government and an American for this recognition to a monarch, government and there were who took the ground that it was not the place of Uncle Sam to be in the coronation of the Emperor, or the King of Italy, or, significantly omitted, the Emperor.

The American Envoy

the presidents of France and Switzerland and the South American republics. However, since that time the United States has sent an envoy to the coronation of the King of Spain, so that it can surely be charged that this country is playing favorites now with Great Britain.

And speaking of that special ambassador to the former coronation in London it is interesting to know how the tables have been turned in the matter of the identity of the special ambassador. The special envoy at the coronation of King Edward was Whitehall Reid, who had previously been the representative of the United States at the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria. At that coronation in honor of Edward VII, Mr. Reid was theoretically the whole thing in so far as a Yankee witness of the proceedings was concerned, but Mr. Choate, then the regular ambassador at the British Court, did not strictly speaking, have much to do with the event. Now, the shoe is on the other foot for Mr. Reid, he being at present the regular United States ambassador, and accordingly expected to take a back seat at the thing being in favor of Mr. Hammond, a really first class figure, the regular ambassador is a pretty prominent figure in the coronation program and is in attendance at practically all functions participated in by the speed envoy.

The fact that Duke Sam is now surrounded by creditors to corporations shows that this summer may be taken as the best possible evidence that European nations now regard the United States as world power of the first rank. John B. H. particularly has always been pretty certain that this summer the world would be making it a rule not to send out invitations to nations regarded as minor powers unless the rulers happen to be personally related to the reigning house of Great Britain. Thus there are quite a number of members of the family of kings that have been overlooked in the present case. For that matter, no invitation was sent to Washington upon the occasion of the coronation of Queen Victoria, but the Britishers having assumed to win the war sent to Duke Sam one of the first of the invitations that were dispatched to friendly powers at the time of the King Edward coronation.

The world's foremost trading enterprise, bearing Duke Sam's credit, is, say we have established company, is the bank and the corporation together, the great mercantile power, will be recognized by the dent a royal presence instead of a thoroughgoing American. With lots of the white population in this native California still hating his head and neck, the king would be a bad idea.

For the peace of mind of those folk who are ever jealous for the maintenance of Yankee simplicity in the midst of alien felts it may be explained right here that Ambassador Hammond will not be expected to don any sort of native head-holding with royalty. He will not only not be asked to appear in uniform or in court dress, but he will not even receive a suggestion that it would be considered becoming to approach with a willow-leafed hat or a broad-brimmed straw to say, a costume in which black knee breeches, black silk stockings and pumps are the features unfamiliar to American eyes.

And as Ambassador Hammond will not be asked to do anything so foolish as to dress, so likewise will he not be expected to perform any acts of homage to the king, such as bowing his knee before him or kissing the monarch's hand. In short, he will not be expected to accord to the monarch the same sort of respect as is accorded to the British monarch. The foreign ambassadors at Washington are accustomed to accord to the President of the United States not even this Yankee air King George's court, being naturally unfamiliar with many of the minor details of formal court etiquette and with the various protocols of royal behavior that will do the worst damage at the wrong time. The court chamberlain and the coronation officials business on the street world and in this gold-mannered little man, unobtrusively dressed, a suggestion of the soldier of fortune, and yet that is what he was; he was a soldier of fortune, and he was, as it were, a chief actor in two of the greatest wealth-producing activities in the history of the world,—the development of the gold fields of California, in which state he was born, and the development of the gold and diamond mines of South Africa,—and only within the past few months he has returned from St. Petersburg, whence he had been summoned by the czar on matters looking to the development of the gold mines of Russia and Siberia.

And this son of a United States Army officer has had more than his share of personal adventure in connection with his high-class prospecting,—enough, indeed, to fill a volume of fiction, and to furnish any action. By way of proof, let us recall that he was sentenced to be hanged in South Africa by order of Oom Paul Kruger and this penalty was not reduced to a silly life until after his capture last year by the Boers, and his association with Cecil Rhodes, whose story supporter he was. But for all that, Mr. Hammond was one of the leaders in the reform movement in the Transvaal; he was not at all in sympathy with the famous Jameson raid, and he was one of the few who were condemned to death. Latterly Mr. Hammond has been the supreme mining exretched class, but that he is not yet weary of a man of affairs is attested by his recent activities in Russia, and the fact that he maintains a business office in New York, to say nothing of his part in the great project for gathering new wealth from the cotton crop of our Southern States. Mr. Hammond has made the basis of his educational efforts in the crafts. Mrs. Hammond, who, thanks to her gentility and grace of manner, is to prove a favorite in London as Miss Natalie Harris of Mississippi. The Hammonds have five children—in the order of their birth, a son and two daughters. Their eldest son is the especial friend of Charlie Taft,—who are expected to accompany them to London.

One other American, aside from Mr. Hammond, his able and the eponymous of the special cabinet, will have an important part to play in the coming exhibition. This additional Yankee contribution to the great ceremony is none other than John Philip Sousa, the famous band-leader and composer. Mr. Sousa will not have an official status, as will Mr. Hammond, but he will undoubtedly be a prominent contributor to the program which he has been lured by the music commissions of Great Britain to write the coronation march. Sousa and his band have lately been touring England and the British Isles, and their music has filled the air with the stirring and characteristic military marches, the like of which they have never been able to produce in the tight little Isle.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

BUNKER HILL

JUNE 17.—This is the day made memorable by the battle of Bunker Hill. This is the day when 2200 "farmers" who had been throwing up entrenchments all during the night of the 16th, cashed their pay checks. And in doing so they almost put the English out of business. Israel Putnam was in command of the "rubies" and he made a short speech in which he explained that they did not have as much powder as the Powder Trust, and he would like to have them be careful. That is to be careful that every time they blazed away to be careful that some Englishman would quit him climbing. He ordered them to wait "until they could see the whites of the enemy's eyes." It history was any more obscure this might give the impression that Gen. Howe was going to attack with a regiment of "coons" but they were white. The "rubies" followed orders all right and waited till the English were on them. Then they cut loose, and the entire clerk in Paradise had to call for assistance in about a minute. About half of the 2000 English were converted into porous plasters and the rest tried to see how quick they could run down a hill. They were rallied and repulsed, and rallied again. The third time found the Americans out of water and shot and forced to meet a bayonet charge with stones and whistled muskets. Putnam seeing the uselessness of this defense ordered a retreat, and what was left of the English sat around and talked about the "defeat."

IN POLICE COURT

Minor Cases Disposed of Today

John O'Neil, Thomas Carroll and James Poole, three young men were arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging them with the larceny of 200 pounds of hay of the value of $2.50. At the request of Thornton Alexander, counsel for the Boston & Maine railroad, the case was continued till next Tuesday, each of the defendants being held under bonds of $200.

It is alleged that a number of boxes of hay were in a freight car of the Boston & Maine and while the train was passing the power house of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. in Middlesex street yesterday one of the boxes either fell out or was thrown out.

Patrolman Eddy while passing through Middlesex street yesterday afternoon saw the defendants carrying the hay through the street and after questioning them as to where they got it their answers aroused his suspicions and he sent them to the police station where they were booked for larceny from an unknown person.

BOARD OF CHARITIES

Scheduled for a Lively Session
Next Tuesday Evening

The board of charities will meet next Tuesday night and the chances are it will be a very busy meeting. Commissioner Harry W. J. Howe, it is stated, will fight for the abolition of the office of city physician. It is also stated that he will have something to say on the contagious hospital question and other things. Asked today if he had anything up his sleeve for next Tuesday night's meeting, Mr. Howe said: "I don't know of anything but I have up my sleeve except a pretty good arm and I don't intend to use that if I can help it. I know what your question implies, however, and I will say that at the next meeting of the board I will urge the necessity of an appropriation by the city council to be expended in repairs and improvements at the Chelmsford Street hospital. The repairs on the buildings are imperative. Women aged and infirm are obliged to go up and down two flights of stairs to reach toilet rooms. A dozen old and dilapidated bath tubs have been in service in the cellar for years. They are heated by a steam pipe running into each one and exhausting steam in the water. The system is dangerous and one man came near being scalded to death some time ago. The worn out bath tubs now in service are a disgrace to any public institution. They are hardly fit to scald hogs in.

To Abolish Office
"I shall recommend important changes in the department. I will recommend to the city council that the office of city physician be abolished and that the matter be turned over to the board of charities who may, if it so desires, appoint a house doctor at the Chelmsford Street hospital. I shall also argue for a larger corps of nurses and attendants that more attention may be given to Lowell's sick and infirm in the institution, and I shall show that many of the employees of the department are underpaid and obliged to work much longer hours than any other department of the city. I will also protest against the serving of medicine to patients by irresponsible inmates."

Annual Encampment of Patriarchs
Militant Held Here Today

A big celebration was held in this city today, the affair being the annual encampment and parade of the Massachusetts department, Patriarchs Militant. The celebration is under the auspices of Canton Pawtucket, P. M., I. O. O. F., and as it is the first time that the event has been held in Lowell, the members of the canton have arranged an elaborate program and nothing has been spared to make the occasion a pleasant one for the visitors.

March 3, 1888, and is the outcome of the Uniform Degree camp which was formed in 1883 with Col. Albert Pinder as first commander, and Horace V. Kittredge, second commander. The canton is now associated with the fourth regiment, which includes Lawrence, Haverhill and Newburyport, and a large number of guests from the latter places, as well as Boston, Brockton, Charlestown, Somerville and Waltham are in town today enjoying the hospitality of the local canton.

The day was ideal for such an outing and the patriarchs made a grand showing in their rich uniforms and regalia. Their marching was good and elicited the applause of the large throngs that lined the sidewalks along the streets. The hospitality of the local canton was highly appreciated by the visitors while the latter also expressed their admiration of the city. The trip to Lakeview and Willow Dale was immensely enjoyed, and at the grove, in the dance hall and at the lake, the patriarchs had a most delightful time.

40th ANNUAL REUNION
Of Old Company G Associates
Held in This City Today

The 40th annual reunion of Old Company G Associates was held at the New American House today and, as is usual on such occasions, the old soldiers told tales of the past to each other and the meeting was rich in reminiscence. Company G was one of the ten companies of the Old Sixth that participated in "the nine months' campaign."

Out of the 43 members who formed the company, 26 are known to be living; 31 have died and 6 are among the missing, probably dead. Sixteen of the 26 who are living gathered at the festive board today. Nine of them live in Lowell.

Those present were: Capt. George L. Gady, Frank S. Peavey, president of the organization; William H. Spalding, secretary; Andrew Liddell, treasurer—all of Lowell; George W. Hutton, Brockton, N. Y.; Alonzo C. Grant, Exeter, N. H.; Albert S. Stacopole, West Lebanon, Me.; George Healy, Newark, N. J.; George L. Tarbell, Pepperell; William A. March, Newton, Mass.; Albert J. Green, Lowell; Charles R. Kitchin, Lowell; William P. Farrington, Lowell; Henry C. Hutchison, Lowell; James Christie, Lowell; S. Augustus Lefort, Wakefield, Mass. The invited guests were Lieut.-Col. Melvin Deal of Lawrence; Major Charles A. Stott and Dr. George Pinkham of Lowell.

The old comrades met in the parlor of the hotel shortly before the noon hour and the exchange of greetings was both pleasant and impressive to the outsider who chanced to witness it. How cordial and how sincere were those handshakes, and in what sadness of tone did an old comrade ask: "Is poor Joe dead?" He had asked for a comrade whom he thought was living and was grieved to learn that he had crossed the great divide. There were some tender recollections and tender applications of sympathy expressed, but withal there was a trace of the spirit of bygone days and they moved about like fellows in their teens.

At a few minutes after one o'clock Comrade Tarbell sounded the assembly and the bugle call reached out into the street. A little later the remnant of the gallant company marched to the dining room downstairs and the feast was on. President Peavey presided and after the menu had been discussed and cigars were in full blast, after dinner speeches were in order. Most of them were more or less reminiscent, but all of a jolly, good-natured character, and the occasion added another link to the chain of happy reunions that are cheerful comrades.

Company G was organized in 1862, as the Amherst Drill Club, and paraded and drilled during that year, and when Nine Months' troops were called for, an attempt was made to obtain the services of the company. It succeeded only as far as a small part was concerned, but the ranks were recruited so that it entered the Sixth. Its drill was excellent, and it passed through the campaign with credit second to that of no other company in the regiment.

The officers of the company were: George L. Gady, captain; Edwin H. Pickford, first lieutenant; Alfred H. Pulsifer, second lieutenant; Nathan Taylor, first sergeant; Frank Duncker, Stephen Kenney, Clark R. Caswell, Charles O. Billings, sergeants; Alonzo C. Grant, Andrew J. Sanborn, Marcus W. Copes, George H. Fayer, George G. Tarbell, William B. Hill, Franklin S. Peavey and Henry Hutchison, corporals.

When, in the year 1862, the call of the government was made for men to serve nine months, the quota of Massachusetts was seventeen regiments and one battery; and the Sixth for the second time, gave the first response. It reported in Washington, ready for duty, before any other regiment arrived. It preserved the same organization, with such change of officers and corporals as such times would inevitably produce. Seven companies were the same, namely: A, Lowell; B, Groton; C and D, Lowell; E, Acton; F, Lowell; and I, Lawrence.

The place of old Company G was supplied by Company G from Lowell; and Company K, a new company, from Chelmsford and the neighboring towns, completed the ten. At half-past ten o'clock on the morning of September 9th, the regiment left Camp Wilson, Lowell, for the seat of war.

Assigned to Defend Man Charged With Murder

Michael Patsiauros of this city, recently indicted for the murder of John Germanacos in a house in Brooks street, March 16, 1911, was arraigned in the superior criminal court at Cambridge late yesterday afternoon and pleaded not guilty. The court assigned Major William H. Bent and Bennett Silverblatt of this city as his counsel. He was remanded without bail to await trial at a special session of the court for the trial which will be held in the fall.

The murder grew out of the love of Germanacos for a pretty Greek girl named Mary Lucas, who has been held as a witness. According to a Greek custom, a young man must have the consent of his sweetheart's family or guardian before he can keep company with her. The nearest of kin of Mary Lucas in this city was Patraacos, and he forbade Germanacos calling on the girl. On the night of the murder he visited the apartments of Mary Lucas and found Germanacos hiding in a closet where he had been secreted by the girl upon the approach of Patraacos. A struggle ensued and Patsiauros entered the room and attempted to separate the pair. Patsiauros claims that Patraacos told him to seize Germanacos by the arms and he did so and while he had Germanacos thus pinned he claims that Patraacos drew a revolver and shot Germanacos with fatal effect. Germanacos died in a short time, while Patraacos made his escape and has never been located. Patsiauros was later arrested by Superintendent Redmond Welch and in consent of his sweetheart's family or guardian before he can keep company with her. STREET COMMITTEE SCENES IN PORTUGUESE CITIES WHERE REVOLUTION IS THREATENED

Acted on Number of Petitions for Street Improvements

The committee on streets met last night and considered a pile of petitions that reached almost to the ceiling. The meeting was called for eight o'clock but the committee did not meet until nine o'clock and then with only a quorum.

The committee voted to recommend the laying out and acceptance of Burton street for a distance of 534 feet.

Representatives of oil making companies were before the committee and were all primed to say nice things about their oils. Alderman Connors said that the committee on streets had nothing to do with the purchase of oil for the street department. He said the committee might recommend a certain kind of oil, but that let 'em out. It was a waste of time, he said, for oil magnates to talk to the committee. They talked, however, and so did Mr. Connors.

Speaking of the committee's trip to Boston as the guest of an oil concern and for the purpose of getting streets that had been treated with oil, Mr. Connors said: "I don't blame the committee for accepting invitations from the company if the company was fool enough to extend an invitation to a committee which has nothing to do with the matter."

A few more of useless talk had been indulged in the committee got down to business.

It was voted to instruct the superintendent to fix up a sidewalk in Agawam street.

Hearings were granted on petitions for watering Humphrey street.

A view was voted on petition to macadamize Columbus avenue.

A petition for cinder sidewalks on Georgia avenue was recommended.

A petition that an unnamed street running from Stevens street to Bennett street be named Light street was recommended.

A petition that a sidewalk on the south side of Keene street be repaired was recommended.

The petition that Andover street from Nesmith to the city line be repaired was laid on the table.

A hearing was voted on the petition that the curved portion of Circuit avenue east of Felton street be discontinued.

The petition that East Merrimack street from Nesmith street to Park street be put in proper condition was tabled.

A petition to accept Groves avenue was referred to the city engineer for profile.

A petition that back Central street sidewalks be repaired was left to the superintendent.

A petition that Shaw street be repaired from School street to Warrenton street was referred to the superintendent.

The petition to macadamize Howard street was referred to the superintendent.

A petition for edgestones in front of 21 East Bowers street was recommended.

A petition that Inland street be laid out, defined and accepted, was read and a hearing voted.

A petition to top dress Agawam street was tabled.

A petition that Fort Hill avenue from Sherman street to Rogers street be macadamized was tabled.

A petition that Orleans street be laid out and accepted was read, hearing voted.

A petition to macadamize School street from Merrimack to Moody streets and that a sidewalk of edgestones be laid was considered. The matter of putting the street in proper condition was referred to the superintendent.

A petition that Lincoln street be paved from Lincoln square to Gorham street was tabled.

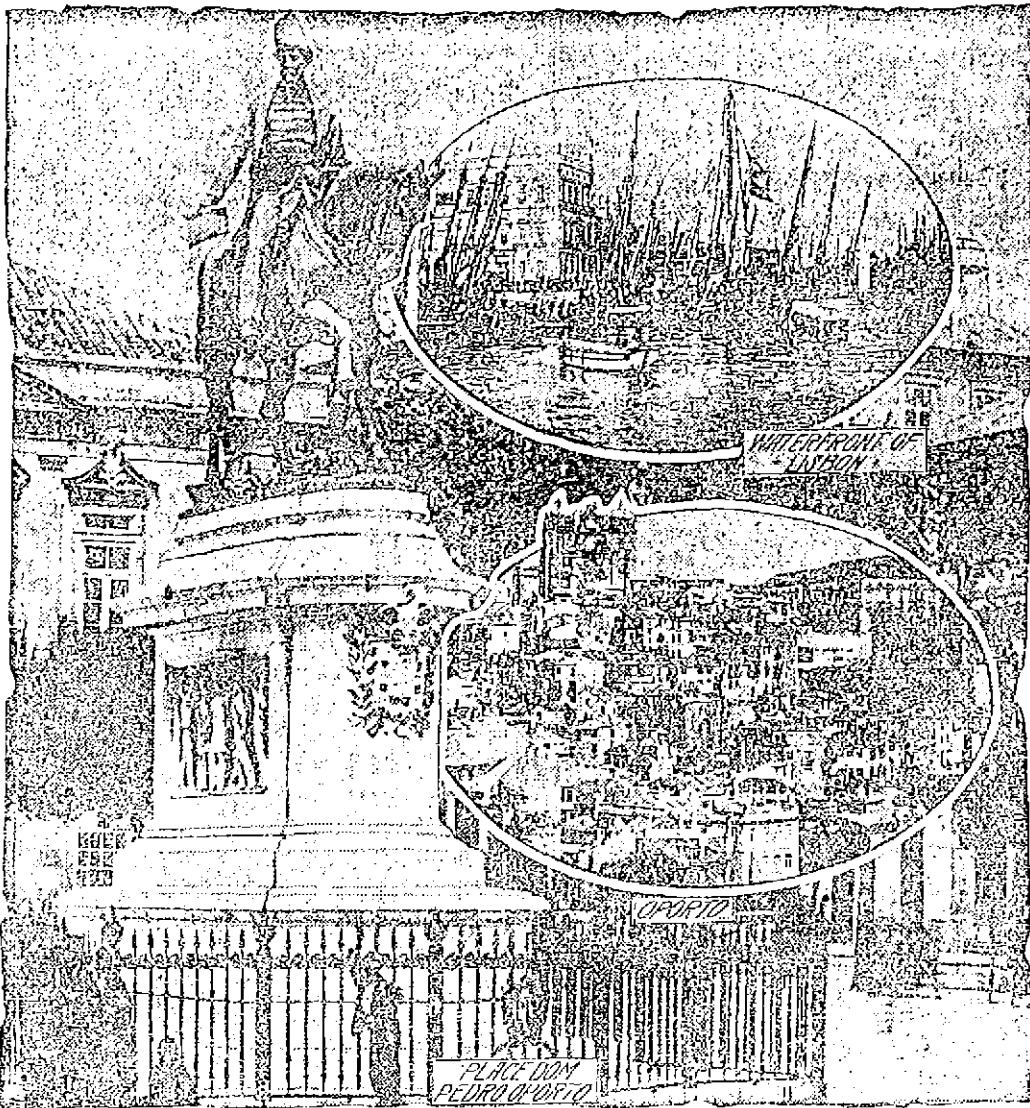

A petition that Mammoth road and Vermont avenue be widened at their intersection was read, view voted.

A petition to macadamize Howard street from Westford street to Middlesex street was referred to the superintendent.

A petition to close a portion of Shattuck street to public travel for two months was read and a hearing voted.

It was voted to recommend a loan order for $5000 to paint and repair the Allen street bridge and $75 to paint the Newhall street bridge.

A petition to rough grade White street, with the engineer's estimate of $725, was recommended.

LISBON, Portugal, June 17.—The monarchistic party's activity against President Braga and his regime seems to have come to a crisis. Disorder in Spanish frontier, where trouble is momentarily expected. The Spanish people are opposed to the Braga government. Ex-king Manuel's friends are supplying the enemies of Braga with funds.

house for not less than six months. It also changes the requirements for a second and third class engineer's license.

The governor's objection is understood to be that it makes the law in reference to engineers and firemen too involved, and imposes unreasonable restrictions affecting both employers and persons wishing to serve as engineers and firemen.

Among the recent issues of U. S. letters patent secured through the office of Gardner W. Pearson, Reg., are, one of Barker J. McAuliffe on a clamp for holding together sections of pipe glass which is now being considerably used, and to Elias H. Nabhan on an improved power strap for picker sticks on looms.

GRAINS OF WHEAT

THAT LAY IN EGYPTIAN TOMB FOR 1000 YEARS GERMINATED

GREEN, Colo., June 17.—After lying in the tomb of an Egyptian mummy for probably more than a thousand years, ten grains of wheat sent to a Greeley farmer and planted west of here germinated. From it eight stalks of wheat have grown and this promises a variety of wheat superior to any growing in this locality.

MANY APPLICANTS

FOR PERMIT TO SELL FIREWORKS FOR THE FOURTH

Despite the fact that we have been enjoying all kinds of weather during the past few weeks and the maturity of the days have reminded us of the winter it might be well to remind people that the glorious Fourth of July is near at hand. Many people have realized that the holiday is but a few weeks away and during the past several days Chief Hogner's office at the Central fire station has been flooded with persons applying for permits to sell fireworks.

All who desire to sell fireworks will have to make an application to the chief after which the premises are investigated and then if everything is in conformity with the regulations made by the detective and fire inspection department of the district police the license will be issued.

Those who make application are requested to produce a half dollar and after the premises where the license is applied for has been inspected and no license is granted the money is returned to the petitioner.

GOVERNOR FOSS

May Send in Three More Veto

BOSTON, June 17.—Governor Foss has two house resolves and one senate bill before him which he threatens to return without his signature. One of the resolves appropriates $147,000 for improvements at the Massachusetts Agricultural college. The other appropriates $40,000 for the construction of not less than 50 family tenements for the use of employees at the state farm. The senate bill is a labor measure relating to the licensing of stationary engineers and firemen.

The governor already has a veto record unprecedented in this or perhaps any other state, having returned 15 bills and resolves without his signature. Four of these have been passed over his veto, which is also a record unprecedented in Massachusetts. If not in any other state. The bills so passed were those increasing the pay of employees of the Metropolitan park and water and sewerage boards, increasing the salary of state pension and reformatory watchmen, the bill providing for medical milk commissions, and the Lomax civil service bill.

The engineers and firemen's bill which he now threatens to veto was introduced on petition of Arthur M. Huddell. It amends chap. 162 of the Revised Laws, and provides that to be eligible for a first class fireman's license a person must have been employed as a steam engineer or fireman in charge of or operating boilers for not less than one year, or must have held and used a second class fireman's

A SWEEPING DENIAL

Philip Holland Denies Bribery Story Told by Fred Snow

SALEM, June 17.—A sweeping denial of the charges made against him in the Lawrence graft case was made by Philip Holland, one of the indicted Lawrence contractors at the resumption of the so-called "graft" case in the Essex county superior criminal court yesterday.

Mr. Holland paid particular attention to the statements of Fred L. Snow, another contractor, who turned state's evidence and was on the stand while the side of the prosecution was being heard.

The defense called also William Merritt, manager of a New York theatre, to show that Street Commissioner Lyman, to whom Snow said he gave $1000 was in New York on the day in question.

Mr. Merritt testified that Lyman's name was entered on his visiting book at the theatre that day. He admitted that Mr. Lyman did not write the name and the jury was sent out while the admissibility of the visiting list was argued by counsel.

EX-PRES. CASTRO

Hunted by the United States as Pirate

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The state department has advised all the powers of the discovery in Italian waters of former President Castro of Venezuela, who is apparently in command of the Consul Grosbeck, reported to be a former naval vessel and fully armed. The navy department will use every effort to capture him.

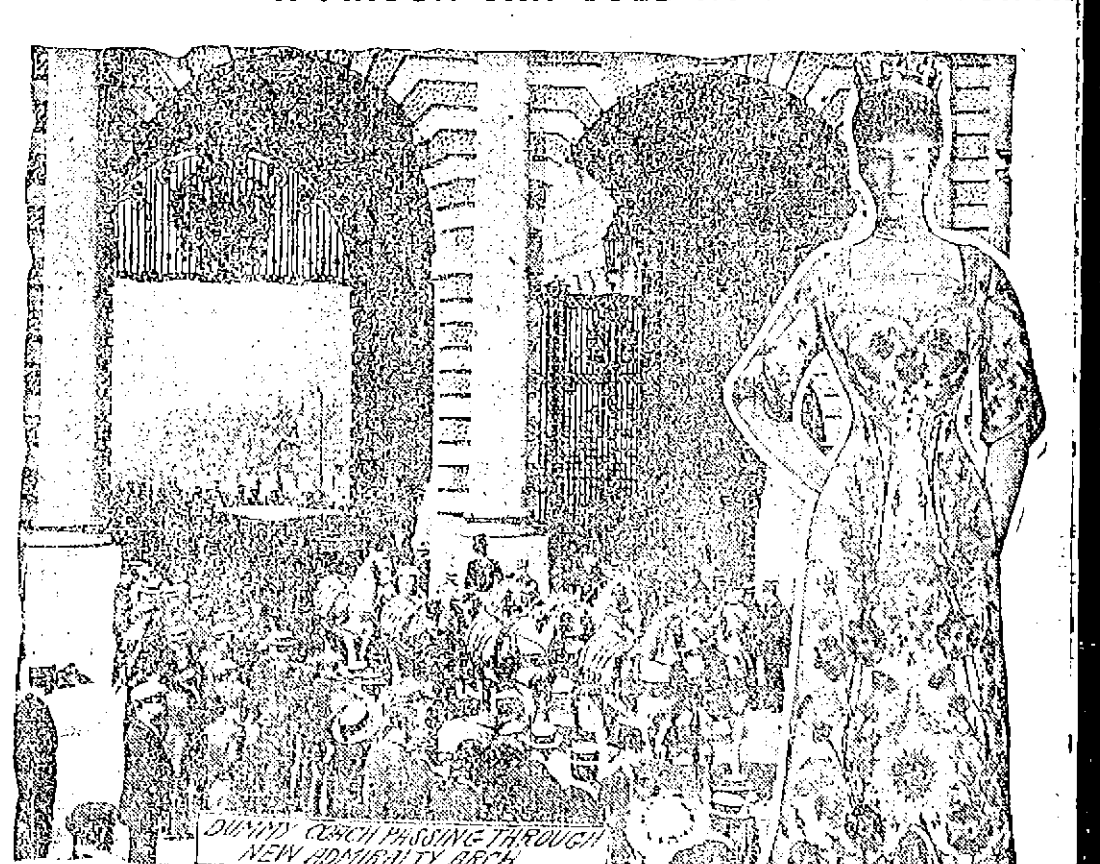

deavor to see that the mysterious craft does not arrive in any Venezuelan port, and cablegrams have been sent to the commander of the fifth division at Guantanamo and to the vessels on special service in the West Indies to look out for Castro's warship. The undertaking of Castro is within the international prohibition of an armed expedition, and as he is flying no flag he is well within the pirate class.

FIRST PHOTOS OF HAVOC WROUGHT BY FATAL MEXICAN EARTHQUAKE

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—The work of repairing the damage done by the earthquake here is well under way. Churches, the Belen prison and the military barracks were the buildings that suffered the most damage. At least a hundred people were killed, chiefly soldiers who were asleep in the barracks. Twelve women, wives of soldiers, lost their lives. Property worth millions of thousands of dollars was destroyed. A peculiar phase of the catastrophe was that it occurred on their very day that General Francisco I. Madero arrived in the capital city from Juarez.

REHEARSAL OF CORONATION PARADE WITH A PRISON VAN USED AS A ROYAL COACH

LONDON, June 17.—The rehearsal of the coronation ceremony here attracted immense crowds of sightseers and afforded an interesting free entertainment to the many American visitors here. The rehearsal of the coronation procession was particularly interesting. The officials in charge of the coronation had a "dummy" coach go over the route that will be followed by the king and queen June 22 from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey. The dummy used as a substitute for the royal coach was a police wagon, used for carrying prisoners and known in this country as a "black Maria." The cream colored horses, shown in the illustration, are those that will draw the royal coach at the coronation.

GRAND ATTENDANCE

Field Day in Aid of St. Mary's Church of Collinsville

Rectory Side grove, the grounds adjacent to St. Mary's church in Collinsville, was the scene of a delightful field day this afternoon and a concert and dance will be held there this evening. The affair is in aid of St. Mary's church and the hustling pastor, Rev. Thomas A. Walsh, assisted by committees made up of parishioners, together with the large attendance of people of Collinsville and Lowell made the affair the most successful ever held by the parish.

Shortly after noon the people began to arrive at the grounds and every car brought scores of people.

The grounds were decorated in an appropriate manner and tonight Chinese and Japanese lanterns, which have been strung about the place, together with the full moon that is promised, will make the grounds as bright as day.

At various points of vantage about the grounds tables are stationed where good things can be purchased and all are well patronized. The tables were presided over by active workers of the parish.

Many of the townspeople as well as Lowell people furnished automobiles to give rides to those present and it goes without saying that their autos were kept busy.

During the afternoon there was a ball game between a picked team from Lynn and the strong Beaver Brook team. The game started shortly after 2 o'clock and between 3 and 4 o'clock there was a highly show which attracted the attention of the people present. There were all kinds of little ones in the show, some were small, some large for their age, some handsome, and they all were jolly babies. Then there were crying babies, the strenuous youngsters. All were attired in their best clothes and presented a very neat appearance. Suitable prizes were awarded to the winners.

A feature of the afternoon was the fine program of sports carried out in which many of the best athletes in this vicinity participated.

This evening there will be a fine concert program carried out and dancing will be enjoyed.

Harry Burke had general charge of the arrangements, and he was ably assisted in making the affair a success by the following committees:

STOCK MARKET

WAS STEADY AT THE CLOSE THIS

NOON

Trading fell off in the second hour. Recoveries came toward the end of the session—Fertilizing Issues. Showed No Sign of Gaining.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Moderate strength developed in the early trading on the stock exchange today. The opening range of prices showed fractional gains for most of the active railroad stocks. Lehigh Valley advanced a point and Union Pacific 1-2. U. S. Steel sold unchanged and Amalgamated Copper advanced 1/4.

Although there were reports of needed rains in various wheat and cotton sections, the market weakened directly after the opening. Reading, U. P. and U. S. Steel were supplied freely and reacted to fractionally below yesterday's closing. The rise in Lehigh Valley was cancelled and the 1000 stocks were depressed over a point before the close. Industrial stocks showed some heaviness, the decline of 1-2 in Virginia-Carolina Chemical on uncertainty over maintaining dividends causing some selling of other issues. American Beet Sugar sagged 1/4 and National Biscuit 1-4. There was a sharp rally before 11 o'clock and losses were mostly recovered.

The market closed steady. Trading fell off in the second hour and the 1000 stock market dip but recovered toward the end of the session leaving the net result comparatively unchanged save in the case of certain specialties and the fertilizer issues showed no recuperative power.

NEW YORK COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 17.—There was a further and sensational decline in the cotton market this morning and a general selling, inspired by favorable new crop reports, including private advices of additional rains in the drought sections of the western belt and a private condition report showing an improvement in crop prospects since the government figures were made up last month. The old crop months were violently excited with July selling off to 14.51 or 39 points below last night and 16.60 per bale under the high record of the season. New crop deliveries sold 22 to 24 points below last night's prices and about $2.50 per bale below the high prices of the week.

Money Market

NEW YORK, June 17.—Prime mercantile paper 4-4 1/2 per cent. Sterling exchange steady at 184 for 60 day bills and at 185.85 for demand. Commercial bills 182 1/2. Bar silver 55 1/2. Mexican dollars 45. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular. Money on call nominal. Time loans easier: 60 days 2 1/2, 90 days 2 1/4, six months 3 1/4 @ 3 1/2.

Clearing House Statement

NEW YORK, June 17.—The statement of clearing house banks of Greater New York for the week shows that the banks held $63,321,750 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent. reserve rule. This is an increase of $29,481,550 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week.

HONORE BOURGET

Attempt to Break Train Speed Record

Word was received in this city today of the death of Mr. Honore Bourget which occurred yesterday at Montreal, where the deceased resided for a number of years.

BOSTON, June 17.—An attempt was made to break all records for speed by a passenger train between Boston and Chicago when a special carrying members of the Chicago chamber of commerce pulled out of the Back Bay yards of the Boston & Albany railroad today. The train left here at 1 a. m. and reached Albany at 6 a. m. Advances received here said that the run from Albany to Syracuse, 125 miles, was made in 125 minutes. The train was expected at Buffalo at 11.15 when it was to be transferred to the Lake Shore tracks.

PAUL T. ROCHELEAU, Pres. A. S. ROCHELEAU, Vice Pres.
O. J. ROCHELEAU, Treas.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1, 1911

Mrs. Letourneau, Moody St., Lowell, Mass.

Madam:—We have decided to accept your offer of 51 per cent. on the dollar for the list of goods bought by I. S. Farland of Riverside, Ill., per itemized account mailed to you on request.

One of the reasons why we have departed from our previous custom is that the market is low at present, and again because your cash offer is very acceptable at this time of the year. Again we have taken into consideration the fact, that the above firm had paid 20 per cent. on assortments of beds, National springs, stoves, chairs, tables, buffets, bureaus, art squares, mattresses, baby carriages, mirrors, sideboards as per statement on which you thereby benefit by the above credit.

This should, per your letter, give you one of the best bargains for your anniversary sale, and no doubt one of the greatest sales of cut prices ever given in your city.

We wish to thank you for this first account, and hope to be able to give you some good bargains in the future, although we must say not at as low a price.

Yours Respectfully,

Dic. M. S.

O. J. ROCHELEAU, Treas.

Our First Anniversary

I wish to thank my many patrons for the confidence given me during the past year, for this has been, I may say, a prosperous one and we have become acquainted with many new customers. Our business is growing, due to your knowledge of bargains which I will always strive to give you as in the past.

I have decided upon a plan of campaign which I feel already assured you will appreciate and take advantage of. That is, each year it will be my aim to secure bargains for our ANNIVERSARY that will be remembered by our many patrons, and realizing that cash is the strongest talkative point in the larger markets, a cash amount for the past months had been laid aside each week for only one purpose, that is BUY AT THE LOWEST FIGURES POSSIBLE. The proof of our success is shown by the letter included in this advertisement.

MME. LETOURNEAU.

SPAIN IS READY

To Send 10,000 Soldiers to Morocco

PARIS, June 17.—A despatch to La Patrie from Tangier says that Spain has concentrated 10,000 men with an enormous quantity of war materials at Cadiz for use in Morocco should occasion arise. The forces now occupying El-Arashi are to be increased to 4,000 men.

THE SUBMARINES

MANAGED TO ENTER PORT WITHOUT BEING DETECTED

GLOUCESTER, June 17.—Instructed before leaving the harbor at Newport to elude detection as far as possible and to make the run from that port to Gloucester with as much secrecy as possible, the officers commanding the seven submarines carried out the orders of their superiors to the letter. After hours of patient waiting and watching, observers in this port reported late last night that the tiny craft had entered the harbor and completed the run. Shortly before midnight several craft lying low in the water showing the red and green sailing lights passed into the outer harbor and the observers believed these craft to be the looked-for submarines. At daybreak it was learned, however, that the boats that crept into port last night were part of the local fleet of power boats.

The gunboat Castine and the tender Severn attached to the submarine division of the navy came into port today and from the officers it was learned that the submarines spent Thursday night in the harbor of Nan-tucket and last night was passed at Provincetown.

LONDON, June 17.—At a luncheon of the Constitutional club, presided over by A. J. D. Laurier today, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canadian premier, told the big gathering of British statesmen and over-seas premiers that the reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada need cause no alarm to anyone.

Canada, he said, wished to trade with the mother country in preference to any other land, but that did not mean that it should treat with her alone. Whatever privileges would be given to other countries would be given equally to England.

"In Canada," he added, "the policy of British preference has been hoisted to the top of the mast and there it will stay, whatever Great Britain does or does not do."

earned the decision. Cross looks like a corner if he keeps in condition and practices boxing.

The preliminary introduced Young Klaus of Lawrence and Young Walsh of Lowell. Walsh had the advantage throughout and the sponge went up from Klaus' corner in the fourth.

It was announced that Johnnie Glover of South Boston, the Armory club favorite, and Young McDanough of Manchester will be the attraction at the next meeting. This will be a boat well worth seeing as the pair are both rugged boxers, each with a long list of scalps at their belts.

A bout between Joe Thomas of this city and some good middleweight will probably be the attraction in a few weeks.

LOST DECISION

Thomas Should Have Had Draw

Joe Thomas returned home last evening from Lancaster, Pa., where he boxed six rounds with Leo Houck to the latter's home town. Joe, who says very little about himself and his bouts as a general rule, was disappointed over the outcome of the match, the decision going to Houck, although he claims it should have been a draw. Arrangements are being made for a 20 round bout between Thomas and Houck at Harrisburg, Pa.

DELMONT'S BOUT

Kid Lee is Not in the Championship Class

At Delmont and Kid Lee had it for seven rounds before the Lowell S. and A. club last evening, but it didn't take seven rounds to show that Lee had no license in the championship class or against Delmont. Lee showed considerable gameness, a left jab and a right swing but there was no steam behind them. Delmont allowed Lee to land on him while he eluded Lee at will.

In the seventh Delmont connected with Lee's solar plexus and Lee went down. He got up after being counted out with surprising agility for one who had taken the count.

The semi-final was the real thing and it brought together Billy Cross of Lowell and Young Josephs of Lowell. It was Cross' second appearance within the circle but he worked like a veteran. Joseph was good and willing but Cross had a good shade the advantage and

NEW YORK, June 17.—Probably no other manager in baseball today or, in fact, any other season has had to put up with as many taunts and vulgar personalities thrown at him from the fans as Johnny McGraw of the Giants. In every city except his home the fans have taken all kinds of methods to stir the little manager up into a pugnacious mood, but so far he has resisted all the nagging epithets hurled at him. It requires a great deal of self-restraint to keep cool and collected when

5000 or 10,000 wild eyed fans are out to get your goat. But McGraw has never yet argued a point with the occupants of the grandstand or bleachers. True, he has had many mixups with the umpires, both when a player and since he became a manager, but what epiced leader of a big league team has not? McGraw stated recently that in the future he would not argue with the umps. He has evidently come to the sensible conclusion that his services are much more valuable to his team on the coaching lines than in the bomb proof, where irate umpires have so frequently and often without just cause banished him. McGraw is half the team, and he has adopted the plan that will be most beneficial to the club players. Any man considered by his employer to be worth a five year contract at $15,000 a year would hardly be earning his salary if much of his valuable time was passed in enforced retirement as the result of penalties inflicted by umpires.

EX-PRESIDENT DIAZ

Reproaches His Countrymen for What He Calls Their Ingratitude

CORUNNA, Spain, June 17.—Physically enfeebled and sick at heart, General Porfirio Diaz, an exile from the republic of which he was chief builder, at last has yielded to an impulse of self-defense. In a formal statement he justified his administration as president of Mexico and reproaches his countrymen for what he describes as their ingratitude.

The expression, the first of a personal nature since he was forced from office, was made on board the steamer Ypiranga during the brief stop of the vessel in this harbor last night. Diaz had received the governor of Corunna and the commandant of the port, who with their staffs, had boarded the vessel at the direction of the government to present the greetings of Spain and the Mexican consul, when he was approached by newspaper representatives. At first he asked to be excused, pleading indisposition, and explaining that though the troublesome tooth had been extracted, he still suffered from an abscess in the lower jaw. However, after consultation with members of his party, the following statement was given to the Fabra Agency, the official press association of Spain:

"General Diaz is saddened by the recent events in Mexico and the ingratitude of his countrymen.

"He voluntarily sacrificed his ambition for the nation, foreseeing that if he continued to defend his cause he might afford a pretext for intervention.

"The bitterness and deep disappointment which he felt was mitigated by the warmth of the manifestation of sympathy upon his departure from Vera Cruz.

"Much has been said about a military dictatorship, but can one thus define a regime which rested upon an army reduced to 14,000 men?

"General Diaz when he assumed power had to deal with conditions requiring energy, but afterward the nation ripened and was more able to direct itself constitutionally. General Diaz's later policies were interpreted by his adversaries as a sign of weakness.

"General Diaz, confident in the good sense of the people, thought that the agitation would disappear but the people, easily forgetting the merits of the Diaz administration, allowed them-

BOSTON'S MAYOR

CENSURES CITY COUNCIL FOR FAILURE TO ACT ON LOAN ORDER

BOSTON, June 17.—Mayor Fitzgerald's censure of the city council for failing to give a first reading at Tuesday's meeting to his loan order for $400,000 for separate sewer drainage, and the council's action in rejecting the blunder it made when it allowed the consolidation of the consuetudinary hospital department with the health department because it failed to take action, were the features of yesterday's special session of the council.

The mayor unexpectedly dropped in during executive session and rebuked the members for sidetracking his loan order, which is authorized by statute, by referring it to the committee on finance instead of giving it a first reading. He said the delay meant the suspension of the entire sewer force, some 250 men, before July 10 unless action was taken at once.

He said the city was authorized to spend $720,000 a year for the separate system of drainage, but that $400,000 would be sufficient for this year. He explained that the money left over from last year was rapidly diminishing.

President Collins objected to action during the absence of Councilman Kenny, chairman of the committee on finance, and then the mayor criticized Kenny for his absence and said he had failed to respond to three invitations to discuss such matters as the separate drainage loan.

COMMERCIAL MEN PARADE

NEW HAVEN, June 17.—This is the day for grand frolics of the United Commercial Travellers who have been meeting in convention. The day's fun began with a street parade of the various councils. The cities largely represented were Hartford, Norwich, Bridgeport, Boston, Providence, Worcester, Haverhill, Lynn, Lowell, Springfield, Portland, Lewiston, Manchester, St. Johnsbury, Rutland, Burlington, Bangor and Dover.

After the march about the city the councils were placed on trolleys and taken to Savin Rock, where the New Haven council became the host of all at spreads and amusements. The council has selected Worcester for next year's gathering.

It is alleged that the idleness of some thousands of mill girls in Rhode Island is due to the decreased demand for dress fabrics, due to the hobble skirt for which not more than half as much cloth is required as for the ordinary skirt. It is time to revive the hoop skirt and crinolines.

The amendment to the reciprocity pact in the interest of the paper trust as offered by Senator Root and backed by Senator Lodge is regarded merely as a ruse by which to defeat the whole measure without appearing to have that intention. Root and Lodge should be exposed in their deceitful move. The passage of the measure through the senate is now practically assured in spite of all underhand methods adopted to defeat it.

The ghastly remains of the battleship Maine, in Havana harbor, show what an explosion will do to the best of these great floating fortresses. The knowledge thus to be gained of the wreck is of sufficient historic importance to warrant the great expense, while it will be of some satisfaction to the relatives of those whose bodies were there entombed to know that even the bones have been recovered.

A very remarkable case of "horse sense" was shown by one of the fire horses of Melrose the other day. The animal had broken away, while out for exercise, and after futile attempts to capture him, the driver hurried to the station and sounded one stroke on the fire alarm. The horse on hearing the bell turned and galloped at full speed to his place in the firehouse. In so doing that fire steed showed not only the effect of good training, but a sense of duty higher than that shown by some men.

THE DIRECT NOMINATION LAW

The law for direct nominations just enacted will simplify our political system and will prevent many of the convention rows that have been too frequent in the nomination of candidates by party conventions. The conventions will now have little to do beyond outlining party platforms and methods by which the ticket may best be supported. The change will at least prevent the efforts to defeat the will of the people that have so often been noticeable at political conventions.

OPTIMIST AND PESSIMIST

Some people are evidently of the opinion that it is the duty of a newspaper to paint every temporary evil in its worst colors and to hold the picture up to horrify the community, while some others believe that it is the newspaper's proper course to set down every such evil at its face value and do everything possible to bring about the remedy. These two courses are open to the daily newspaper in a great variety of cases of frequent occurrence, and in each and every one the paper has to adopt one course or the other. If it tries to make bad worse it is a pessimist; if it looks upon the sunny side of things or sees in the darkest cloud a silver lining, then it is optimistic.

The first policy, if pursued by the press, would drive men to desperation and despair, while the second serves even in the face of adversity to inspire them with hope and courage, the elements necessary to enable them to overcome whatever obstacles beset their path.

Business reverses of one kind or another may come and do come, sometimes when least expected; but that is no justification for representing them in such a bad light that the parties affected will become discouraged and abandon the struggle. It is the resort of demagogues and revolutionists to take up isolated cases of this kind, exploiting them as horrible examples from which the whole system is to be judged and condemned. When business depression comes, the men who are working to abolish the wage system seize upon it as an opportunity to advance their theories, very often spreading false ideas as to the real cause and painting imaginary pictures of the ideal conditions they claim would exist if all property were owned in common and the state were responsible for the comfort and well-being of every citizen.

These pictures might do good if they were not used to create prejudice against existing conditions or existing institutions. In our political system bad men will get into office and bad measures will be enacted; but in nine such cases out of ten, a large portion of the responsibility for these things rests upon the shoulders of the people who complain most loudly, because instead of using the power placed in their hands to prevent these evils and bring about ideal conditions they neglect to use the ballot for their own protection and then rail veraciously because some robber trust or combination has come into existence to extort unjust prices from the consumer. The oppressive trust, the consequent high cost of living and the restriction upon open competition, are all evils that can be remedied by the people if they make up their minds to do so by the power placed in their hands. Were it otherwise the republican form of government based upon universal suffrage would be a demonstrated failure.

Some of the recent decisions of the supreme court show that fair play and opportunity must be guaranteed alike to all. There is much to be reformed and improved in our political and industrial system; but there is ample power in the hands of the people to bring about all the needed reforms by strictly constitutional methods and without resorting to any of the wild or revolutionary schemes now so openly advocated. The pessimists refuse to believe this; the optimists are ready to prove that it is thoroughly practicable if the people will only use their power intelligently for their own and for the common good. The pessimist looks upon everything through smoked glass, as it were, seeing all enveloped in gloom while the optimist views things in the sunshine of hope, inspiring cheerfulness and that spirit of confidence necessary to the success of every undertaking. The pessimist would make the world more dark and gloomy and would supplant the light of hope by the gloom of despair, while the optimist makes the world better and brighter, the people more contented with their lot and more capable of moving onward and upward to a nobler destiny.

SEEN AND HEARD

The farmers say we are badly in need of more rain. The ground was so thirsty that the recent rain was not sufficient to quench it.

A chauffeur who had just returned to the garage after taking the state's examination to be licensed, says the New York Sun was asked by a fellow worker what the questions were. "One of them was about meeting a skittish horse," he replied.

"They asked me what I would do if I approached a horse which showed signs of being afraid of the car and its driver held up his hand to me."

"What was the answer?" asked a bystander.

"Oh, I said that all right," the chauffeur replied.

"I told them I'd stop the car, take it apart, and hide the pieces in the grass."

For forty years old Schneider—that is, not his name—kept a saloon for longshoremen in the city. The longshoremen are thick muscled, excitable persons, who have a fancy for using cotton hooks when they are in their cups.

A West street saloon keeper is not a pathetic figure, but that picture of old Schneider looking bar patiently for 40 years in order that he might end his days on his own farm had something touching about it.

Stolid, quiet, unimaginative old man, he bore with an occupation he frankly detested because of the reward it promised. His only reference to those West street years now is in his occasional declaration that he ran a quiet place.

"I always had good order in mein store," said he. "Dooas day could not fight in dere. I could not haf it."

"But how could you keep a bunch of longshoremen from fighting if they wanted to?"

"Yooast by hitting dem on dere heads wit a boomstarter!" explains Mr. Schneider, simply.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

It happens that a member of the Jewish race, Mr. Oscar Straus, was a prominent and efficient member of President Roosevelt's cabinet; that another member of the same race, Mr. Louis Brandeis, has proved one of the most useful citizens in private life today; that another, Mr. Jacob Schiff, is one of the most eminent philanthropists as well as financiers in the nation; that others of the race—men like Rabbi Hirsch of Chicago and Rabbi Wise of New York—are leaders in the American pulpit; in short, that in every department of American life the Jewish people occupy conspicuous positions of honor and trust.

In view of these circumstances it is little short of ludicrous that an unknown officer in the army should attempt to bar a man from promotion on the ground that he is a Jew.—Kansas City Star.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

By way of celebrating its 25th anniversary the class of 1886, Wellesley, will present to the college this month a costly set of bronze doors and a transom, which will be placed on the library building and will serve as a memorial to the late Prof. Eben Norton Horsford, who was an honorary member of the class. The bronze doors and transom are the work of Miss Evelyn Beatrice Longman of New York. The doors measure 6x12 feet, including the transom. In the main panels are two full-sized figures representing "Wisdom" and "Charity." In the transom there is a symbolism of special meaning to Wellesley. The motto "Non Ministrari Sed Ministrare" is on a ribbon forming the background, and at the center is a wreath of daisies, the '86 class flower, within which is the class motto in Greek and the class numerals.

Announcement is made of the award of the three thousand dollar prizes of 5500 each, offered by the Women's Educational and Industrial union of Boston. One has been conferred upon Miss Ruth Evans, Wellesley, 1911, the others upon Miss Marie A. Kasten, A. B. 1908, A. M. 1911, of the University of Wisconsin, and Miss Florence Murphy, A. Kemp is more than 30 years old, has attended more than 30 commencements at Columbia and has spent the greater part of his life over textbooks. Many years ago, it is said, a relative left Kemp an annuity of $25,000 to be paid him so long as he remained in college.

Sarah Bernhardt's tour this year has been remarkable even for her. She opened for American season in Chicago on June 28 and will end in New York on June 21, when she will sail for France. She then will have covered about 25,000 miles and will have played 255 performances in 235 days, appearing in 103 different American cities. Her manager says that the gross receipts of the tour will be nearly $1,000,000.

The first awards have been made under the Kahn Foundation, wherein distinguished American educators, preferably for the south and west, are enabled to spend a year in travel. Two members of the fellowships will be Professor John H. T. McPherson of the University of Georgia and Professor Francis Panofsky of Wabash college. The Kahn fellowships have been established for this country by Albert Kahn of Paris, the intention being to send for a year's travel abroad men whose tendencies are toward research and broadening their sphere of influence, and who have not means at their disposal to carry out their idea. The men are to be chosen each year preferably from smaller institutions of learning in the south and west, and they are permitted to visit any country they choose for observation, provided their itineraries are submitted to the trustees of the fund for approval. The present incumbents will travel for a year from July 1, 1911.

FELL TO DEATH FROM THE BORDER

Bankers Saw Man Killed Lowell Soldier Writes From Galveston

NEW YORK, June 17.—The financial district witnessed a gruesome incident at its busiest hour yesterday afternoon when William Anderson, a stone cutter, fell from the twenty-eighth floor of the Bankers' Trust company building, near completion, at Wall and Broad streets.

In setting a stone, Anderson slipped and fell. His one wild cry, as he fell, was "Down!" He struck the ground at the fourth floor and his body was so tremendous an arm was torn off and left lying on the sill as the body burst out and crashed onto the heavy wire netting that had been spread over Wall street, at the first floor, to protect traffic while the building was being erected.

The screen acted like a springboard and threw the body into the air again. It dropped twice, horribly mangled. In front of the Wall street entrance of the Stock Exchange. Excitement in the street was so intense and the crowd so dense that the police reserves had to be called out from the nearest station to restore order.

THRILLING FLIGHT WAS MADE BY MRS. MARTIN WITH AVIATOR ATWOOD

BOSTON, June 17.—While James V. Martin was speeding back to the aviation grounds at Waltham yesterday afternoon after a long cross-country flight his wife accepted an invitation from Harry Atwood for a little joy and adventure in the air. When Martin alighted Mrs. Martin was not ready, as she usually is, to discuss her flight with him, for she had slipped away just as he returned, seated in a passenger beside Atwood. Martin looked up in surprise and saw his wife sailing overhead as he stepped out of his machine.

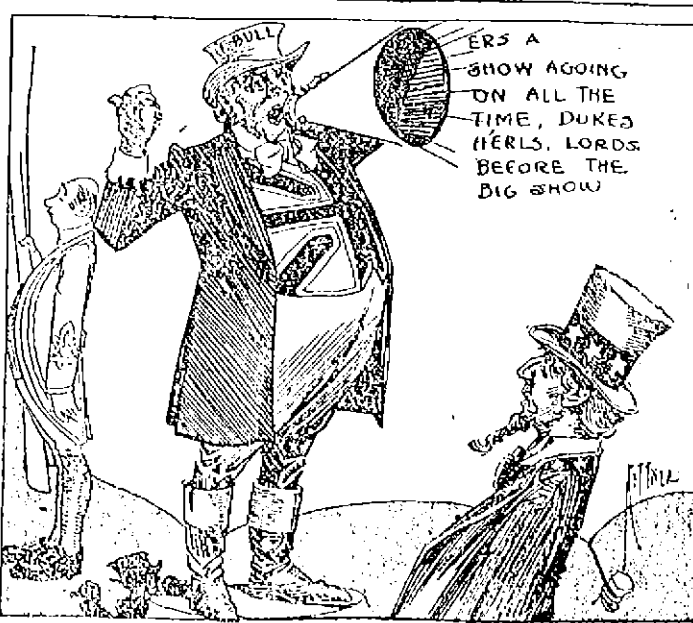

Atwood gave his passenger a thrilling ride. He has a way of going through the first manoeuvres of flight and then soaring up again. This time he came about as near hitting the earth in such a knock-out flight as a serious accident. The grass blades fairly bent as the biplane skimmed the field before its upward slant began.

All this time the reporters were trying to get Mr. Martin interested in the theory of an aerial elopement or a discussion of fatal accidents, but he refused to become nervous. His wife said, she expects to take a flight in her own aeroplane as soon as its motor is installed, he added.

FATE OF COOK WILL BE DECIDED BY THE JURY TODAY

CINCINNATI, June 17.—The fate of Edgar S. Cook, charged with embezzling $21,000 from the Big Four railroad, will be decided today by the jury which for five days listened to the sensational testimony presented by the different witnesses. When court opened all that was necessary to wind up the case was the charge to the jury by Judge Charles J. Hunt and a verdict by the former.

Master Reports In a Hay and Grain Fed the Milford Suit Flames

BOSTON, June 17.—Frank A. Hanson of Milford was awarded $2000 damages against the Milford branches of the Quarrymen's International union of North America by Arthur E. Hardy, master, to whom his complaint was referred. Mr. Hardy filed his report in East Cambridge yesterday. This is the largest award ever made in this state against a labor union for damages arising from alleged interference with the work of non-union men.

The defendants named in the suit are George Inis, John J. Mahoney, Patrick J. Dacey, John P. Jones and Pietro Googline, all of Milford, of the quarryworkers' union; Luigi Bassetti, Peter Sciarino, John Fusi, Angelo Antolino, Intervento Gargano and Enrico Milmani, of the derickmen's union.

It is only in recent years that damages have been awarded against unions in labor disputes. The case will be fought to a finish and may go to the full bench on rulings of law asked for by the defence and denied by the master.

The complainant is a granite cutter and in May, 1909, was a foreman of the Massachusetts Pink Granite company of Milford. He had worked in that capacity for Theodore N. Perry, president of the company. He was a member of the Quarrymen's union prior to 1903, when he took a withdrawal card because he was told that since he had become a foreman he could not belong to the union.

Soon after work at the quarry commenced in February, 1909, Mahoney and Dacey applied to Perry for work. He referred them to Hanson, who told them in substance that he had all the men he could handle, but would give them the same chance as anyone else when there was a vacancy. Dacey applied to Hanson several times for work and complained that he thought others had been given a preference, but Hanson denied this.

The master says: "It is this impression received by Dacey, regardless of whether it had any reasonable foundation, which was really at the bottom of the trouble which subsequently arose. There was no evidence introduced which in any way tended to show that the company or Hanson had violated any agreement with the union."

THE GOVERNOR SAYS STATE BOARD OF HEALTH SHOULD CONTROL MILK

BOSTON, June 17.—Gov. Fess sent his 53d message to the legislature yesterday transmitting Dr. Charles V. Chapin's report on the state board of health. The governor recommends legislation for the centralization of the control of the milk production in the hands of the board. He also asks the legislature to consider the advisability of consulting the boards of registration in dentistry, in medicine, in pharmacy and in veterinary medicine, into one board. He approves the appropriations for these boards, as well as the appropriation for the board of health.

He says in part: "Our present system of inspection is too scattered and is exercised under too many authorities to be either efficient as a state expenditure or equitable to the farmer."

"I recommend legislation to free the milk producer from the present multitude of regulations and to create one definite simple line of state control."

MUNICIPAL LANDSCAPE GARDENING

WRECK OF AN AUTO

Found Near Tracks of Nahant & Lynn Street Railway

NAHANT, June 17.—While patrolling the road between Nahant and Nahant in the darkness of the early morning hours, Patrolman Michael Kane of the Metropolitan park police stumbled over some wreckage at the side of the road, near the tracks of the Nahant & Lynn street railway. Further investigation showed that it was an overturned automobile of the limousine type. It was wrecked beyond repair. Nearby were found a straw hat and a derby hat but there was no other trace of the occupants of the car nor was there any indication that any person had been injured. The machine bore the Massachusetts number of Charles D. Stas of Woburn. Mr. Stas was notified by the police of the wreck; that he was not particularly interested, inasmuch as he had sold the car more than a month ago to a Boston firm of automobile dealers. The police have not been able to learn much from the dealers concerning further disposition of the automobile.

GAGAM KILLED

His Head Nearly Severed From Body

HAVERHILL, June 17.—Joseph Gagan, a barber, had his head nearly severed on being struck by an electric car at Groveland at midnight last night. He was asleep on the track and the motorman, in rounding a curve, failed to see him until too late to avert the fatality. He was killed instantly, the body being horribly mangled.

TEACHERS' BILL

NEW MEASURE VOTED BY THE COMMITTEE ON CITIES

BOSTON, June 17.—The committee on cities of the legislature, in executive session yesterday, voted to report the original bill for the increase in salaries of the elementary teachers, with a referendum added.

This bill provides that a sum of 10 cents for the financial year ending Jan. 31, 1913, and the sum of 12 cents each financial year thereafter, upon each $1000 of the valuation on which the appropriations of the city council are made, shall be appropriated by the school committee to provide an increase where the maximum salary is less than $1000 per annum. This sum shall not be appropriated for any other purpose. The referendum provides that the question shall be submitted to the voters as follows: "Shall the salaries of teachers in the elementary day schools who receive a salary of $1000 or less be increased?"

Except for the referendum clause this bill is virtually the same bill that Gov. Foss vetoed, and in which his veto was sustained. The committee believes that this clause will remove the objection which the governor had to the former bill, namely, that it was contrary to the principle of home rule.

Relief from Sunburn

Many people deny themselves half the pleasure of free outdoor life in the summer because of the painful effects of the sun's blistering rays upon their delicate skins. You can save yourself the discomfort of sunburn—with very little effort. Send for your druggist for a bottle of Talcott and keep it always at hand. Talcott has many uses besides affording relief from sunburn—it stops the painful effects of the sun's rays on the face, soothes the itchy out of mosquito bites, soothes tired feet, relieves sunburn, heals blisters. It is absolutely harmless and is efficacious when taken internally for coughs and throat troubles.

MONEY SHOWER

GATMAN AT MELROSE PICKED UP $108

BOSTON, June 17.—It rained money in Melrose yesterday morning, guineas, halves, bills of large denominations and not a few pennies and small silver pieces were thrown in the air. In all $108 "rained" during a very short shower. This all happened at the Emerson street crossing of the Boston and Maine railroad as the 10.44 train from Haverhill went by.

Tanger Walsh, the gate tender, saw the shower, he signaled the gate, the baggage master at the station, and they went hunting on their hands and knees for the money. When they had picked up all they could find they telephoned Boston and soon received reply that a passenger on the train had lost $125. Shortly before noon he visited the scene of the shower and recovered what the trainmen had found.

TRAIN WAS HELD UP

Armed Highwaymen Covered Mail Clerks and Looted Car

DRAIN, Oregon, June 17.—The south-bound Shasta Limited on the Southern Pacific which left Portland at 6 o'clock last night was held up and the mail car robbed by two highwaymen about midnight between Drain and Yoncalla. The robbers entered the mail car, held up the clerks and looted the car. They stopped the train at Yoncalla and made their escape. Possessions were searched for them west of Yoncalla this morning but up to a late hour they were still at large. Although the two robbers brandished their revolvers not a shot was fired. The mail clerks found themselves helpless before the weapons of the highwaymen. One robber held them covered while the other ripped open the mailbags and ransacked their contents. It is not known how much booty the desperadoes secured.

As the train neared Yoncalla one of the highwaymen pulled the emergency

HELD AS BANDITS

Eastport Lads Shot up Cottages

BANGOR, Me., June 17.—Two young boys sat in the police station yesterday afternoon and told with considerable gusto how for a week past they had been living in the cottages at Phillips lake, amusing themselves by shooting out windows, making targets of lumps and clocks, smashing doors with axes and living on canned goods and supplies they found.

Yesterday morning a man who lives near the cottage colony, which is 10 miles out on the Bar Harbor branch, discovered that several of the cottages had been broken into. Sheriff T. Herbert White was notified, and he sent Deputy Sheriff Burke out to investigate accompanied by several cottage owners. The two boys were seen making down the lake in a canoe. They were soon overhauled in a motor boat and held up their hands at the point of Deputy Burke's rifle.

The boys were brought to Bangor and locked up and will be turned over to Hancock county officers for a hearing at Ellsworth. They gave their names as Charles Forbes, 15, and Harry Roman, 18, both of Eastport. Forbes said he used to live in Woburn, Mass., but his parents were both dead, and he lived with a family in Eastport. The boys were dressed in wild west style and were loaded down with revolvers, hunting knives and cartridges, and each had a rifle, all of which had been stolen from the cottages.

BOY MURDERER

Was Sentenced to Die On Gallows

DIGBY, N. S., June 17.—In a voice trembling with emotion, Chief Justice Tenshield yesterday afternoon pronounced the following death sentence on 18-year-old John Tebo, Jr.: "You, John Oliver Tebo, shall be taken hence to the county jail and there confined, and from thence to the place of execution, there to be hanged by the neck until you are dead, between the hours of 5 o'clock in the forenoon and 10 o'clock in the forenoon on Monday, the 24th day of July, A. D. 1911." May God have mercy upon your soul.

Tebo was cool as ice and apparently unconcerned as to his fate. While strong men and women about him were moved to tears, Tebo stood in the dock chewing gum. Even after he knew his fate and was being led back to jail, Tebo heaped curses on everybody connected with his trial.

DEPARTMENT HEADS

Tell Appropriations Committee That They Need More Money

The committee on appropriations met last night and heard from heads of departments that are in need of money. The committee went out on a tour of inspection during the afternoon and did not reach the hall until 8.30 o'clock, although the meeting was scheduled for 8 o'clock. Somebody said they went on a joy ride but that was indignantly denied. The committee voted to recommend the sum of $10,000 for work at Shield park.

Purchasing Agent Foye asked for $185 for a new carriage. He said that the old carriage had come to pieces and a new one was required. Somebody suggested an auto and another thought that Mr. Foye could borrow a carriage from the superintendent of streets.

Agent Bates of the health department asked for $6.40 for yard sundries. In January the department asked for $10.75 for yard sundries and was allowed $13.50. Agent Bates was free to admit that he would be back again to the committee for money to pierce out other branches of the department.

Smoke Inspector Hollowood asked for remuneration for his services. He has been working for nothing and he allows that he is entitled to pay for his services. He thought the job ought to be worth $700 a year. The office was instituted by the city government according to law and a salary should be attached to it as there is a great deal of work connected with it. In following up observations the work necessitates from eight to nine hours a day. The smoke inspector in Boston gets $1800 a year and he has two assistants. Mr. Hollowood said that Boston had about twenty-five per cent. more smoke than we have in Lowell. He told of the complaints that had reached him from different parts of the city and said that the smoke as it is today is a nuisance and a menace to public health.

Inspector Dow of the lands and buildings department asked for $6000 for various building repairs, a majority at the Chelmsford street hospital and an additional $20,000 for a new engine house to replace the present one at the junction of Race and Merrimack streets.

The chairman called another session for next Monday afternoon and evening at 2.30 and 8 o'clock. The purpose is to view the Chelmsford street hospital, the Franklin school and the Race street engine house.

ANNUAL RECITAL

HANLEY'S EXPERIENCE FOR NEW CONVENT GOVERNMENT CLERK

Marlboro Man Tells How He Went for Days Without Water

MARLBORO, June 17.—Reasons for turning suddenly to William D. Hanley, the young man who was found yesterday in a field near the Marlboro station, were that he had been in the woods for 36 days, during which time he was without food and had very little water.

He is confined in a room in the home of his brother, John J. Hanley, at 45 Liberty street, and no one but the clergy, the attending physician, a trained nurse and his relatives are permitted to see him. He is in a very weak condition. When he went away, he weighed 140 pounds and now he will not balance the scales at 85.

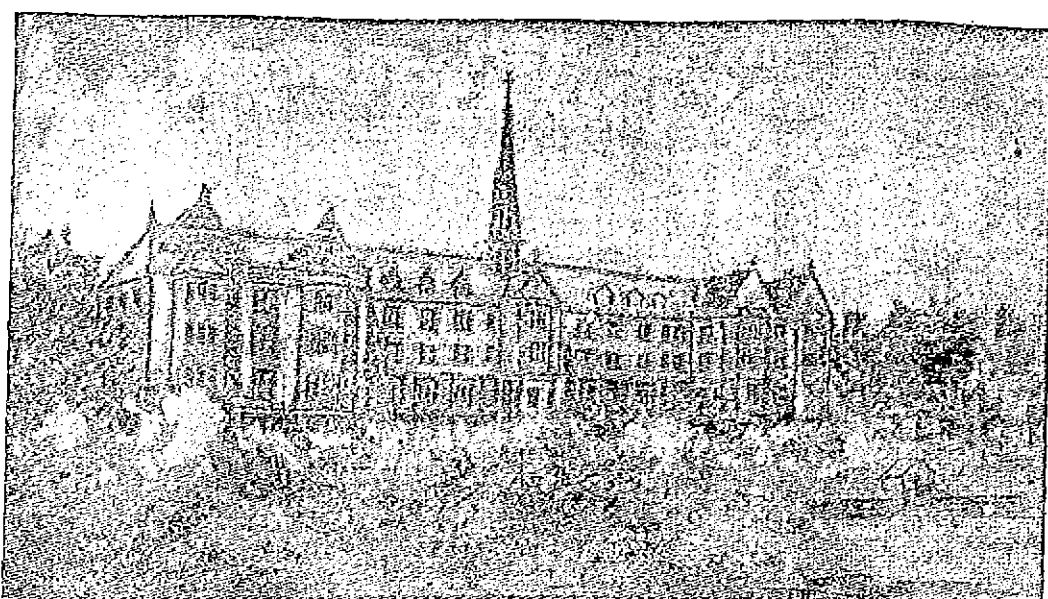

When he was found his hat was crushed down flat on his head and mosses were growing out of it.

During intervals of reasoning, Hanley has told brief stories of his experience during his prostration upon the stunted cabbage tree.

"As a general thing," he said, "I was awake throughout the long nights and I laid upon my bed of cabbage leaves and listened to the sounds of the music from the dancing pavilion at Lake Champlain, a mile away. Often I attempted to get up and go there, but something held me back and I did not have the strength to break my bonds. I could hear the electric cars whizzing by on the street railway a short distance away from where I was reclining. I thought of my home in Marlboro and of my relatives, and I longed to be back home and with my dear relatives and friends.

"In the early mornings I could hear factory whistles blowing and I imagined I could see the working people rushing through the streets laughing and having a good time as they went to work. I knew they were only four miles away in Marlboro and I longed to be back there with them. I wished every hour to be back home in dear old Marlboro, but I could not seem to get up and go.

"A number of evenings a man and woman walked by and I could hear them talking and laughing. They were

PROPOSED NEW ACADEMY OF NOTRE DAME AT TYNGSBORO

Notre Dame Academy Plans Convent in Tyngsboro

Next year will mark the 60th anniversary of the coming of the Sisters of Notre Dame to St. Patrick's church in this city, and will also mark in all probability the last year of their celebrated academy of Notre Dame, in Adams street, as the change of the location and the growth of the institution have made a move to other scenes and buildings an absolute necessity.

Hence, a year or more, it is hoped, will see the good sisters encoined in a modern academy and convent in one of the most beautiful spots in all New England, where they will continue to conduct one of the largest boarding schools for young ladies to be found in the east.

As is already well known, the sisters have purchased the old Brindley estate in Tyngsboro, also known as the Nance O'Neill estate, having been occupied for a time by the eminent tragedienne of that name. This estate at present consists of a large colonial mansion containing 43 rooms, several hundred acres of land, including a beautiful pine woods, a half mile track and an exquisite trout pond, and other health-giving and attractive features. Barring, perhaps, the half mile track, the good sisters have elaborate plans for the use of every part of the estate. It was utilized as a parochial school. In 1864 the middle building, known as the sisters' house, was constructed, and in 1867 the present brick parochial school was built. In 1872, the last of buildings was put up. Sister Desre remained in charge of the academy until her death in 1879. She was succeeded by Sister Agnes Aloysius and she in turn by the following superiors: Sister Mary Bernardine, Sister Clara of the Sacred Heart, Sister Theresa Aloysius and Sister Constantine. While a majority of the pupils have been residents of Lowell and vicinity many have come from a great distance, from the middle, western and southern states, while this year's graduating class has a member who comes from faraway Alaska, who will return to her home in Nome City the latter part of this month for the first time in four years.

Many of the past graduates of Notre Dame have entered religious lives, as members of the order of Notre Dame and in other orders and some former pupils of the academy have returned years afterward to teach at their Alma Mater. Graduation this year will be held on June 20 and 10 days later the sisters of the local institution together with the members of five neighboring communities, considerably over 100 in all, will make their annual eight days' retreat at the academy. The retreat will be conducted by a member of the Jesuit order. After the retreat all the Lowell sisters will go to their estate in Tyngsboro and remain there for the remainder of the vacation. A pretty chapel has been installed in the mansion at the Brindley estate and one of the local clergymen will officiate as chaplain during the summer. None of the original sisters is now at Notre Dame, all having since passed to their reward. The oldest sister, in point of residence, at the academy, is Sister Mary Annellina, who has been in Lowell continuously for 41 years. Sister Mary Annellina has a very keen memory for names and faces and she is in great demand on the occasion of the annual Alumnae meetings when former pupils who have met for years return to their Alma Mater, because "she knows everybody," and can tell who's who no matter what changes Time's relentless finger may have made in them.

Notre Dame Graduates.

Following is a list of graduates of Notre Dame academy, many of whom have since through matrimony or the religious life changed their names but these names of girlhood days will be readily recalled by those who were their contemporaries.

The graduates known to be deceased are marked with a star.

Notre Dame was ever famed for its proficiency in music and the musically given periodically by the pupils are noted for their excellence. Pupils are thought piano and vocal music, chapel and cabinet organ, harp, violin and mandolin and guitar.

In the 59 years of its existence Notre Dame academy has never gone down nor gone back, as the popular phrase goes. It has progressed steadily and the extent of its progress is emphasized by the deterioration of its surroundings. The academy is under the wise and zealous administration of Sister Constantine and there are 60 nuns connected with the institution. There are at present 120 pupils in the academy and 700 in the parish school. The sisters came here originally five in number under Sister Desre, the first superior. In September, 1852, and were escorted to Lowell by the late Bishop Fitzpatrick of Boston, who dedicated their convent and school, a wooden building on the site of the present academy buildings. Two days later they opened the parish school. Their first year was a memorable one. It was in the days of no-nothingness, the fanatical outbreaks of which need not here be recited as they are matters of history. The Lowell convent was threatened but was not molest.

In 1854 the first academy building was constructed and the first boarders taken in, while the wooden building was utilized as a parochial school. In 1864 the middle building, known as the sisters' house, was constructed, and in 1867 the present brick parochial school was built. In 1872, the last of buildings was put up. Sister Desre remained in charge of the academy until her death in 1879. Says He Was Told Not to Mention About Day Picture

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Thomas Morrison, disbursing clerk of the state department, told the house committee on expenditures in that department yesterday that he was instructed, when the missing voucher in the Day portrait case, under investigation, was found on the floor of his office a few days ago, to keep still about the discovery. This instruction, he said, was given him by Wilbur J. Carr, chief of the consular bureau.

The disclosure was made when Chairman Hanlon asked him if he had made any further attempt since his examination a few days ago to discover how the long missing voucher came to be on the floor of his office.

"I was instructed not to say much about it," Mr. Morrison testified.

"Who instructed you not to say much about it?"

"I think it was Mr. Carr."

"Well, you must know whom you talked to about it."

"Yes, Mr. Carr told me not to discuss the matter. He said it was not advisable to say much about it, as it would be investigated."

The serious view taken of the matter by the state department officials was reflected in a copy of a letter from Charles Denby, consul general at Vienna, Austria, former chief clerk of the state department under Secretary Root when the first investigation of the $2450 voucher for an $850 portrait was made. Secretary Knox submitted this letter, dated Vienna, May 20, 1911, and a cablegram previously received.

Answering Mr. Knox's first cablegram from an explanation of the portrait payment, Mr. Denby cabled from Vienna on May 30:

"No written report was made. Careful preliminary investigation failed to continue the department that criminal charges could be sustained."

Reporting by mail, Mr. Denby explained that the discrepancy as to the voucher was discovered in 1906, when the department negotiated for a portrait of Secretary Hay, and that prior to the Root regime it was customary to include in one voucher smaller sums paid for a number of expenses out of the appropriation allotted to the department to be expended at the secretary's discretion.

As to the result of the investigation conducted by the department in 1906, which Mr. Denby says was never known outside of the department, the former chief clerk reported:

"How far the alleged irregularities in the use of the particular fund in question were within the knowledge of Secretary Hay could not be ascertained, as he died in 1905, in which year also Mr. Michael was consul to Calcutta. Such practices were not continued under Secretary Root, but reports were brought to my knowledge while chief clerk that the practice had existed previously."

"In view of the entire lack of reliable proof of misappropriations of funds, the inevitable, unpleasant criticism of the administration of an honored man, which would result in public action, the incident was passed over and no official action was taken."

Mr. Morrison explained to the committee yesterday that on the day he paid the $2450 in cash to ex-Chief Clerk Michael, in June 13, 1904, he ordered his clerk to insert the words "two hundred and fifty dollars" in the printed voucher, and that half an hour after he had paid the money to Michael he inquired what the payment was for and was told in Michael's office that it was for the Day portrait. Then he immediately instructed the clerk to write on the voucher that it was for that picture. Notations on the back which appeared later, referring to emergency payments for diplomatic business, Mr. Morrison said, were not on the voucher that day.

FATHER ARMED

He Thought Child Was Abducted

It was a case of "wait for the wagon and we'll all have a ride," with a Polish resident of Lakeview avenue last night, and for several hours the police were kept busy trying to locate the man.

Michael Assadorian of Lakeview owns a place of horseflesh which he considers the best ever, and when he drove to his home about 7 o'clock last night he saw scores of children in the street and decided that if he only had the time he would them all a joy ride, but he had other business on hand and was unable to carry out his wishes.

Seeing a friend of his standing in the street, he asked the friend if he would like to give the children a ride. The friend consented and started off with one of Assadorian's children and a neighbor's child.

When 10 o'clock struck, the owner of the outfit worried about his horse and child and telephoned to the police that his rig had been stolen and his child abducted and then there was something doing in the telephone room at the police station. Every officer was informed of the alleged larceny and abduction and the city was searched but there was no sign of the missing Pole.

About 11 o'clock a man drove up to Assadorian's door and after assisting the children out of the carriage said he would have returned earlier but for the fact that he wanted to give the children a good ride.

PRESENTED A SILVER SET

Miss Lillian Harrington of 30 Crawford street, Pawtucketville, was entertained by a number of her friends last night and presented a beautiful silver set. During the evening an entertainment program was carried out and refreshments were served. The program consisted of piano selections by Misses Mary Thistle and Ella Callahan, and songs by Messrs. Roy Dunster, Dan Whaley and John McManahan. Refreshments were served and the guests departed, wishing the hostess many happy returns. Those in charge were Misses Grace Reynolds, Katharine Cogger, Bertha Douglas, Esther Schonborn and Ella Callahan.

WATER BOARD

DISCUSSED WAGES AND SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY

The water board discussed wages at its meeting last evening, as the department is affected by the new scale law which requires certain employees to work but eight hours per day, six days a week.

The department will need one extra engineer, also extra firemen, officers and watchmen. At the present time the engineers are receiving $18 for seven days per week and on vote of the board it was decided to allow them the same pay for a six day week. The firemen will also be given $15 a week, for six days.

The watchmen and others, two of the members believed, should be paid by the day. At the present rating they receive $2 daily or $14 per week. On a motion offered by Mr. McDowell and seconded by Mr. Hill that these men receive pay at the present rate per day for six days, or in other words $12 for their six days labor. The motion was opposed by Messrs. Van Tassel and Furlong. It was later stated that the men's rating was at present figured by day pay and that in view of the board's action they would receive only $12 weekly.

There was some discussion over the Saturday half-holiday bringing about increased expenses for the department, but it was finally voted to grant the afternoon as voted by the city government.

A number of minor matters were considered.

WATER BOARD

DISCUSSED WAGES AND SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY

The water board discussed wages at its meeting last evening, as the department is affected by the new scale law which requires certain employees to work but eight hours per day, six days a week.

The department will need one extra engineer, also extra firemen, officers and watchmen. At the present time the engineers are receiving $18 for seven days per week and on vote of the board it was decided to allow them the same pay for a six day week. The firemen will also be given $15 a week,

BUSINESS IS BRISK

Local Contractors Have Plenty of Work on Hand

And still business is booming in the building line. The contractors are kept very busy and very few carpenters are out of work. There are one or more houses going up in practically every district of the city, especially in the new Highland district, where a number of one and two-apartment houses are being constructed.

The concrete building is making headway in this city. Contractor Zool Houde of Dracut is very busy putting up concrete houses. At the present time he is erecting a couple of Centralville heights, and besides has several important contracts on hand.

Mr. Richard Buckley of Ludlum street is having a two-apartment house built in Boynton street. The building is of cement blocks and will be fitted with the latest improvements.

Contractor H. E. Drole is as busy a man as there is in town. He is just completing a two-apartment house in Hildreth street, for Patrick Daly, the Broadway butcher, and will soon start on the erection of several buildings in Billerica.

Besides this he is making alterations to the house of Samuel Gauthier, 29 Tunnel street, where the kitchen is to be enlarged. Mr. Drole is also adding a piazza to the residence of Robert J. Houston, 43 Beech street.

Mr. Rosario Lussler of Cumberland road has given a contract for an eight-room cottage to Contractor Edmund Travers, near the Dracut line. The contract has been awarded to Charles Hanel and the estimated cost will be $1800.

One of the largest pieces of real estate in West Centralville, the Lussler flat, at the corner of Lilley avenue and Cumberland road, has been sold to Mr. Edmund Hanger of Arkwright street. John Welch of the firm of Welch Bros. has moved into his new home, 70 Livingston street.

Charles H. Abbott will erect a seven-room cottage in Chelmsford street near the Chelmsford line.

Cornelius Collins will make a few changes to his property at 131 Fort Hill avenue, and he has given the contract to Fred Vinal.

The well known firm of J. A. Brien in Chelmsford street, furniture dealers, has added another addition to the already large store. This is the second addition to the place within a year, and this is good proof of the extensive business being carried on by the firm of J. A. Brien.

D. H. Sullivan has plans out for a three-story building at the corner of Westford and Stevens streets. The plan calls for two stores on the ground floor.

A Fine Structure
The magnificent building erected at the corner of Moody and Austin streets is completed, and now Mr. Frank Ricard, the Merrimack street jeweler, is the owner of as fine a piece of property as there is in that district.

The building is a three-story house and contains 45 rooms and three stories on the ground floor, with all the modern improvements such as gas, electricity, bath, hot and cold water. The building is equipped with a large washroom on each floor and is steam heated. It is a wooden structure and was built by Contractor Denis Descheneaux.

Eugene Gosselin of Lilley avenue will begin work next week on an eight-room cottage house in Henry avenue, near the Dracut line. The contract has been awarded to Charles Hanel and the estimated cost will be $1800.

MUSICAL TIME
LOCAL MUSICIANS ENTERTAINED
SWEET'S CONCERT BAND

The "Hump-De-Did-De" club, composed entirely of Lowell musicians, entertained the members of Sweet's Concert band of Ringling Bros. circus in Brunswick hall Thursday evening after the circus. President Charles Husband was master of ceremonies, and James Buckley was toastmaster.

There were refreshments galore and a delightful entertainment program, which included piano solos by Joseph Proffier, piano solos, Edward Hiron, monolog, Thomas Hoban, songs, Messrs. Sturtevant and Manchester, and selections by the Paragon quartet. The visitors were given a royal time and several of them voted their appreciation in neat speeches.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Patrons of the Merrimack Square theatre will no doubt be pleased to note the return engagement of Mortimer Snow & Co. presenting that favorite romantic comedy, "Her Broken Idol".

The piece is one in which Mr. Snow and Miss Lillian Lee Anderson, the young woman who won favor on her former appearances here, will be seen to excellent advantage. As an added feature in connection with the presentation of this one-act play, will be the introduction of one of Lowell's amateur performers, a young woman who has shown excellent promise during the times she has appeared before local audiences. The staging of the piece will be looked after in the usual excellent style.

Another feature of the week's bill is the engagement of Miss May E. Whitteley, Lowell's favorite soprano, who will appear in songs. Others who go to make up the excellent bill are Sturgeon and Smith, colored entertainers, whose line of amusement is clean and thoroughly enjoyable. Christine is a ventriloquist whose work places him high in the ranks of his particular line of entertainment and besides the above there will be a new and novel series

For the second concert Sunday afternoon and evening a number of high-class stars have been secured, all presenting clean, wholesome amusement. Billy Ray will give a refined musical act and the Royal Trio are singers of excellent standing. Jack Foley is among the best in his line, and the Quinn Trio compare favorably with the most unique artists of their class. Delaney and Wohlman will conclude their week's run in songs and The Summer Girls will be heard in songs. These will also be a series of motion pictures of the same high standard of the past.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE
Everything is in readiness for the opening of the stock season at Lakeview theatre, commencing Monday night next, June 19th. The rehearsals are all over, and the scenic painters, carpenters and electricians will finish tonight. Mr. Joseph J. Flynn, whose stock company will produce the plays this season, has secured one of the best dramatic companies ever seen in Lowell and the opening bill is that well known play by Geo. Brounchurst, "The Man of the Hour." There will be a matinee every day excepting Mondays and the curtain will go up at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. all next week as the play is lengthy and it is the desire of the management to have the performance over by 10.30 at the latest. The prices will be: Matinees, 10 and 20 cents; evenings, 10, 20 and 30 cents. Seats are on sale at Carter & Sherburne's drug store.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS
Commencing Monday the Theatre Voyons will show the motion pictures of the 500 mile international sweepstakes race at Indianapolis last Memorial day. This race was the first and probably the last 500 mile contest to be held in this country and the competitors were the fastest and most varied types of machines ever entered in a race anywhere in the world. Every entrant had to show a speed of 75 miles an hour before he was allowed to start his car in the race and the result was a record breaking race in point of time.

The motion pictures show every event of interest including a most sensational accident involving three cars. The speed kings all appear in the picture and every auto enthusiast should see this picture.—Adv.

SUCCESS IN TREATING SKIN TROUBLES

A Remarkable Record of Itching, Burning, Disfiguring Eruptions Completely Eradicated.

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from eczema, itching, burning, disfiguring eruptions of the skin and scalp, and who have lost faith in all manner of treatment, may learn what Cuticura soap and Cuticura ointment have done for other skin-sufferers by reading the following remarkable testimonial.

Mrs. Wm. Hight, 250 Fairmount Ave., Newell, N. J. "Whole body a mass of red, torturing eczema. Agony was beyond words. Hair all fell out, and skin seemed ready to drop off. Clothing would stick to bleeding flesh. Hoped death would soon and fearful suffering. Cuticura remedies cured the itching, bleeding flesh at once and soon cured her."

Mrs. M. O. Maitland, Jasper, Ont. "Itchy rashes on my baby's head when he was months old. It spread over entire body. Put mittens on him to prevent tearing skin. Reduced to a skeleton. One bath with Cuticura soap and application of Cuticura ointment pushed him to sleep. One lot of each cured him. Thanks child would have died but for Cuticura soap and ointment."

Twenty-four hours he became raw from head to foot with a dreadful burning itch. Battered agonies and could not lie down or sit up. Cuticura soap and Cuticura ointment cured him in a single day.

Mrs. Delaware Barrett, 611 King St., Wilmington, Del. "Had a breaking out all over her body. Worst itching. Would bleed and become very sore. She could scarcely sleep, as the itching was worse at night. Used Cuticura soap and ointment three weeks and trouble disappeared."

Mrs. R. B. Householder, 204 Wilkins St., Baltimore. "Her baby had itching, torturing eczema. Nose and eyes nothing but sores. Had one doctor's bill after another but it did no good. One case of Cuticura ointment and one box of Cuticura ointment cured her."

Helo Bordwell, Tipton, Ia. "Itching eczema from birth until 15. Found no relief. Body formed as big as a football. In frightful condition and could hardly work. Used Cuticura remedies eight months and is cured."

CHARGE OF LARCENY

Brought Against John Cassis in Police Court

John Cassis was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with the larceny of $500 in money, the property of Waffa Cassis. He entered a plea of not guilty and was ordered to furnish a bond in the sum of $500 to appear before the court next Saturday morning to answer to the complaint. The case is as peculiar as it is complicated, according to what has been learned by the police, and there are really two cases against the man, one being civil and the other criminal. From what can be learned the complainant and defendant, both of whom bear the same surname, are not related to each other, but had lived in the same house in this city for a long time. Both are thirty, and as much as the woman had a crippled husband and children living in Assyria, she saved her money and when she accumulated $500 informed John Cassis that she was going to send the money to the old country. It is alleged that he volunteered to send the money and entrusting him with the $500 she felt that it would reach its destination and mean a little fortune to the husband and children. It is alleged that Cassis secured a draft for the money and sent it to Assyria, but that the draft was payable to no one but a person who had an or-

PRIEST'S WORDS

Prevented Man From Slaying foe

NEW YORK, June 17.—The sudden appearance of a priest on a truck, which was the battlefield of a striker and strikebreaker, saved the striker from being shot by his opponent last night. The strikebreaker had pointed a revolver at his opponent, but the priest's order, "Don't shoot," caused the strikebreaker, Frank Boedje, twenty-one years old, who gave his address as No. 551 First avenue, to raise the revolver as his finger was pressing the trigger, and the bullet went into the air. Then he turned to the priest, Father Joseph Spalin, of St. Ignace Loyola church, Park avenue and Eighty-fourth street, and said: "Father, if you had not come at that minute, I would have killed that man." Boedje realized that the priest had probably saved him from being a murderer, and thanked Father Spalin effusively. The other man escaped. Boedje was driving a truck belonging to the Bell Manufacturing company, at the foot of East 48th street. There has been a strike among the drivers. Five wagons of the company at Madison avenue and 53d street were attacked by 200 striking drivers and their friends. One man climbed up and attacked Boedje with a wagon stove. He was hit twice on the head with the wagon stove. He pulled a revolver and pointed it at his assailant. Boedje turned the revolver over to Father Spalin. Patrolmen Echeverre and Hurton arrested him. The attackers dispersed when the policemen appeared.

Plater, of the firm of Plater & Smith, glassmakers. The suit is the result of a contract for memorial windows in the church. Mr. Brandt declares Mr. Plater wrote a "confidential" letter practically accusing him of "grafting." The part of this communication, which the minister objects to, is: "He requested us to make the price $200 and asked us to give him fifteen per cent. of this amount."

CARDINAL GIBBONS

Women should not want to vote, but if they took such interest in the affairs of their husbands and brothers they could easily have them cast their ballots in the right manner. In doing this woman is the champion of what is right."

THE MANNING FAMILY ON MURDER CHARGE

THE MANNING MANSE AT BILLERICA.

Held Annual Reunion at Manning Manse Today

If you are looking for any of the Mannings today, it will be necessary to go to Billerica, for nearly all the Mannings from Lowell and miles around have assembled once more at the ancestral home in that town for the annual reunion of the Mannings family association. The guests began to arrive during the early hours of the morning, and the forenoon was spent in the removal of old acquaintances and social chat under the trees or in the different rooms of the old manse. Since last year many interesting relics have been added to the collection at the manse and these were inspected with great interest by the guests. A noon luncheon was served under the trees, after which a short business meeting was held at which officers were elected, and then the day was given up to sports, such as baseball and tennis and races and music. A delightful day was enjoyed as weather conditions could not have been more favorable. Officers Elected: The following officers and committees were elected: President, Earl E. Manning; vice-president, Francis Reid North; secretary and treasurer, Warren H. Manning; historian, William H. Manning; executive committee—H. Seymour Manning, Joseph McCabe, Arthur M. Manning, Edward W. Walker and Frank Manning Short. Entertainment committee—Mrs. Edward W. Walker, Mrs. George W. Foster, Miss Mabel Hall, A. P. Adams and Mrs. Earl T. Manning. Refreshment committee—Mrs. Eva B. Dutton, chairman; Mrs. Anna Howard, Mrs. L. S. Armstrong and Mrs. Edwin Manning. Reception committee—Mrs. Sam W. Manning, Miss Martha Warren, Mrs. Leroy Parkhurst, Mrs. Frank M. Short, Miss Mabel Hall, Miss Louise Searle, Mrs. Edwin H. Warren, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, Miss Alice McCabe and Mrs. A. D. Marble. Committee to increase sale of stock—Edward W. Walker, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, Mrs. Earl E. Manning, Edward Manning, Henry M. Gailick and Alford Manning. The Manning Manse was erected in Billerica in 1696 by Samuel Manning, grandson of William of Cambridge, and occupied by his descendants for over 100 years. It is now owned by the Manning association, incorporated by the Mass. legislature in 1901. The old place has a peculiar interest for every living member of the family for the reason that they are all direct descendants of Samuel as he had neither brother nor uncle who lived to marry, so that it is an ancestral home. Erected as it was in the time of the Indian outbreaks and massacres, it was for a time one of the officially appointed "garrison houses" in which an allotted number of families could take refuge in time of danger. There were times when it was filled with frightened fugitives and armed men, watching for the coming of the dreaded red foe. Later on in history it became known as the Manning Tavern, and at one time during the revolution a detachment of patriot troops, including a general and his staff, stopped there. Here, too, was located a "pet" house where saltpeter was made for use as one of the component parts of gunpowder to be used by the patriot troops in the war of the Revolution. It stands today one of the few old landmarks that remain to tell of the earlier days so full of tradition and history that are dear to the descendants. It is in a fine state of preservation and as nearly as possible in its original shape. With its immense fire places and swinging cranes, the old Dutch ovens, the quaint low studded rooms with their beamed ceilings heavy out of logs, the winding stairway, the wooden latches with the old time latch strings, it is indeed a possession to be coveted. Standing alone, with a fringe of green woods all about it in the near distance and nestled under the shade of noble trees, it commands attention and respect and could well furnish a theme for the poet or painter. The old manse is filled with a large collection of objects of interest to every member of the family and includes antique furniture, documents, deeds, letters, family paintings, spinning wheels, and a wealth of articles of bygone days, all of which have been donated by different members of the family, and the collection is being added to constantly. The Manning association is a family institution and was formed for the purpose of preserving the identity and prominence of the Manning family as well as to stimulate social intercourse between the various branches and members of the family. Reunions are held annually on June 17.

George Genakos to Go On Trial Week After Next

Second Assistant District Attorney Sawyer and State Inspector Charles E. Byrne was in Lowell today making final arrangements for the trial of George Genakos who is to be tried on a charge of murder before the superior court one week from Monday. It is alleged that Genakos and Arlides Georgopoulos had been good friends until a rumor was circulated that Georgopoulos had been making statements about Genakos's sister. On the night of July 31, 1910, both men met on the canal bridge near the corner of Suffolk and Ford streets and it is alleged that after they had argued at some length Genakos drew a revolver and shot Georgopoulos. The latter was hurried to the Lowell hospital, but died. The police then made a search of the city for Genakos, who it is alleged did the shooting, and finally found him in a tenement in Elm street. He was arrested by Sert, Ryan, and Special Officer John Regis and John Mahan. He was arraigned in police court and after the government had offered its case the court found probable cause and declining jurisdiction, held the man for the superior court.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Robbers today broke into the home of Mrs. Morando in the lower East Side, tied a rope about her neck and murdered her by tightening it with a stick. Mrs. Morando, who was 34 years old, and the wife of a prosperous merchant, had sent her two small children out to play

A LIVELY BLAZE

In Grocery Store in Chelmsford Street

An alarm from box 52 at 12:51 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a lively blaze in the grocery store conducted by Mrs. D. Lavigne, at 131 Chelmsford street. The property is owned by Samuel Sil verblatt. The fire was caused by children playing with matches. The firemen were soon on the scene and extinguished the blaze in short order, but before it had been done considerable damage to the interior of the store and the contents of the place. Defective Chimney An alarm from box 325 at 5:55 this morning was for a blaze in a tenement in Sullivan's court, off Fenwick street. The fire was due to a defective chimney, but was extinguished before any material damage was done. Tar on Fire A fire started in a tar kettle at the corner of Market and Shattuck streets this morning shortly before 8 o'clock, which occasioned the sounding of an alarm from box 7. When the firemen arrived the tar was ablaze but the blaze was soon extinguished. ELECTRICAL WORKERS A well attended meeting of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, local 585, was held in Carpenter's hall, Runels building, last night. Important business was transacted, officers being elected for the ensuing six months. President J. A. McNeil was also elected. A delegation from the Trades and Labor council addressed the meeting, urging the electrical workers to take action on the Labor day celebration to help make it a grand success. Other able speakers from New York and Boston addressed the members on the good of the order. It was also voted to hold an open meeting, which will be Friday, June 29.

CARD SHARPS

CLEANED UP $2,500 ON THE LUSTITANIA

NEW YORK, June 17.—Another story of card sharps swindling passengers in mid-ocean was brought to port yesterday by Dr. Carl Anderson, of Jersey City, who arrived on the Lusitania. He said that George Hobard of Reno, Nev., and H. A. Warwick of London, were fleeced of $2,500 by two gamblers who had been recognized by other passengers as men who had played cards on other ships. Neither Hobard nor Warwick would make any complaint and the sharps were permitted to leave the pier after their baggage had been passed. "Hobard and Warwick are friends of mine," said the doctor, and we were in the smoking room Monday evening when two young men proposed a game. They were well dressed and looked honest, so four of us sat down. "After playing for small stakes for a little while, stopped, as I didn't like the way things looked. Not much money changed hands that night, and I warned my friends not to play again. They would not listen to me and resumed play Tuesday night. Between them they lost $2,500 that night. They did not play again." Melvin Vanham, engineer of Wellman's death, was a passenger on the Lusitania. He left last night for Atlantic City, where he will make another start across the Atlantic in a dirigible next October. His Barker is F. S. Stribling, president of chamber of commerce at Akron, O. Another passenger, was William C. Endicott, brother-in-law of Joseph Chamberlain, the English statesman.

THE POSTAL DEPT.

SAID TO HAVE AIDED MONOPOLY OF MAIL CHUTE BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Charges that officials of the post office department are aiding and abetting the existence of a monopoly in the mail chute business were made yesterday before the house committee on expenditures by F. T. Nesbit, of New York, a contractor, and Edwin F. Nault, president of a mail chute company in New York. Mr. Nault declared that his company had been prevented from competing with the Rochester company on government contracts and in the equipment of private buildings. "Some years ago," he said, "I was forced to give up $7,000 worth of contracts for installation of our mail chutes because the post office department would have required bonds as exorbitant that we could not furnish them."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

BUNKER HILL

JUNE 17.—This is the day made memorable by the battle of Bunker Hill. This is the day when 2300 "farmers" who had been throwing up fortifications all during the night of the 16th, rushed their pay checks. And in doing so they almost put the English out of business. Israel Putnam was in command of the "ruffians" and he made a short speech in which he explained that they did not have as much powder as the Powder Trust, and he would like to have them be careful. That is to be careful that every time they blazed away to be careful that some Englishman would quit hill climbing. He ordered them to wait "until they could see the whites of the enemy's eyes." If history was any war observer this might give the impression that Gen. Howe was going to attack with a regiment of "coons" but they were white. The "ruffians" followed orders all right and waited till the English were on them. Then they cut loose, and the entry clerk in Paradise had to call for assistance in about a minute. About half of the 6000 English were converted into porous plasters and the rest tried to see how quick they could run down a hill. They were rallied and repulsed, and rallied again. The third time found the Americans out of powder and shot and forced to meet a bayonet charge with staves and clubbed muskets. Putnam seeing the uselessness of this defense ordered a retreat, and what was left of the English sat around and talked about the "victories."

IN POLICE COURT

Minor Cases Disposed of Today

John O'Neil, Thomas Carroll and James Poole, three young men were arraigned before Judge Hickey in police court this morning on a complaint charging them with the larceny of 200 pounds of hay of the value of $2.50. At the request of Thornton Alexander, counsel for the Boston & Maine railroad, the case was continued till next Tuesday, each of the defendants being held under bonds of $200.

It is alleged that a number of holes of hay were in a freight car of the Boston & Maine and while the train was passing the power house of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. in Middlesex street yesterday one of the holes either fell out or was thrown out.

Patrolman Daly while passing through Middlesex street yesterday afternoon saw the defendants carrying the hay through the street and after questioning them as to where they got it their answers aroused his suspicions, and he sent them to the police station where they were booked for larceny from an unknown person.

STREET COMMITTEE A GRAND PARADE JAMES B. CONNOLLY

Acted on Number of Petitions for Street Improvements

The committee on streets met last night and considered a pile of petitions that reached almost to the ceiling. The meeting was called for eight o'clock but the committee did not meet until nine o'clock and then with only a quorum.

The committee voted to recommend the laying out and acceptance of Burton street for a distance of 534 feet. Representatives of all making companies were before the committee and were all primed to say nice things about their lots. Alderman Connors said that the committee on streets had nothing to do with the purchase of oil for the street department. He said the committee might recommend a certain kind of oil, but that let them out. It was a waste of time, he said, for oil magnates to talk to the committee. They talked, however, and so did Mr. Connors.

Speaking of the committee's trip to Boston as the guest of an oil concern and for the purpose of seeing streets that had been treated with oil, Mr. Connors said: "I don't blame the committee for accepting invitations from the company if the company was fool enough to extend an invitation to a committee which has nothing to do with the matter."

After a lot of useless talk had been indulged in the committee got down to business.

It was voted to instruct the superintendent to fix up a sidewalk in Agawam street.

Hearings were granted on petitions for watering Humphrey street.

A vote was voted on petition to macadamize Columbus avenue.

A petition for cinder sidewalks on Georgia avenue was recommended.

A petition that an unnamed street running from Stevens street to Bennett street be named Light street was recommended.

A petition that a sidewalk on the south side of Keene street be repaired was recommended.

The petition that Andover street from Nesmith street to Park street be put in proper condition was tabled.

A petition to accept Groves avenue was referred to the city engineer for profile.

A petition that back Central street sidewalk be repaired was left to the superintendent.

A petition that Shaw street be repaired from School street to Warwick street was referred to the superintendent with instructions to repair the street after the water department is through.

The petition to macadamize Howard street was referred to the superintendent.

A petition for edge-stones in front of 24 East Bowers street was recommended.

A petition that Island street be laid out, defined and accepted, was read and a hearing voted.

A petition to lay down Agawam street was tabled.

A petition that Fort Hill avenue from Sherman street to Rogers street be macadamized was tabled.

A petition that Orleans street be laid out and accepted was read; hearing voted.

A petition to macadamize Suffolk street from Merrimack to Moody streets and that a sidewalk of cinders be laid, was considered. The matter of putting the street in proper condition was referred to the superintendent.

A petition that Lincoln street be paved from Lincoln square to Gotham street was tabled.

A petition that Mammoth road and Varnum avenue be widened at their intersection was read; vote voted.

A petition to macadamize Howard street from Westford street to Middlesex street was referred to the superintendent.

A petition to close a portion of Shattuck street to public travel for two months was read and a hearing voted.

It was voted to recommend a loan order for $3500 to paint and repair the Allen street bridge and $75 to paint the Newhall street bridge.

A petition to rough grade White street, with the engineer's estimate of $125, was recommended.

GRAINS OF WHEAT

THAT LAY IN EGYPTIAN TOMB FOR 1000 YEARS GERMANATED

GREELEY, Colo., June 17.—After lying in the tomb of an Egyptian mummy for probably more than a thousand years, ten grains of wheat sent to a Greeley farmer and planted west of here germinated. From it eight stalks of wheat have grown and this promises a variety of wheat superior to any growing in this locality.

Annual Encampment of Patriarchs Militant Held Here Today

A big celebration was held in this city today, the affair being the annual encampment and parade of the Massachusetts department, Patriarchs Militant. The celebration is under the auspices of Canton Pawtucket, P. M. I. O. E. and as it is the first time that the event has been held in Lowell, the members of the canton have arranged an elaborate program and nothing has been spared to make the occasion a pleasant one for the visitors.

Canton Pawtucket was organized on March 3, 1884, and is the outcome of the Uniform Degree camp which was formed in 1833 with Col. Albert Pinder as first commander, and Horace V. Kittredge, second commander. The canton is now associated with the fourth regiment, which includes Lawrence, Haverhill and Newburyport, and a large number of guests from the latter places, as well as Boston, Brockton, Charlestown, Somerville and Waltham are in town today enjoying the hospitality of the local canton.

The day was ideal for such an outing and the patriarchs made a grand showing in their rich uniforms and regalia. Their marching was good and elicited the applause of the large throngs that lined the sidewalks along the route. The hospitality of the local canton was highly appreciated by the visitors while the latter also expressed their admiration of the city. The trip to Lakeview and Willow Dale was immensely enjoyed, and at the grove, in the dance hall and at the lake, the patriarchs had a most delightful time.

of worth hundreds of thousands of dollars was destroyed. A peculiar phase of the catastrophe was that it occurred on the very day that General Francisco I. Madero arrived in the capital city from Juarez.

Famous Author of Stories of Sea Life to Address O.M.I. Cadets

A very enthusiastic meeting of the O. M. I. Cadets was held in Immaculate Conception school hall last night to make preliminary arrangements for the annual tour of camp duty to be held at Milligan's Grove in Wilmington.

The boys turned out in large numbers and were addressed by their chaplain and orator, Rev. D. A. Sullivan, O. M. I. When Fr. Sullivan told the cadets that the tour of duty would last at least for one week and possibly for two weeks there was loud cheering. But there were other surprises in store for them, which when announced, impressed the boys with the great preparations that are being made to provide entertainment for them during their outing.

The affair promises to be the greatest ever undertaken for boys in this section of the country. When the cadets arrive at camp they will find all tents pitched and everything in readiness. The drill and parade grounds will be rolled over and put in the best of condition. A doctor and four trained nurses will be on duty at the camp, night and day, and in the early evenings there will be concerts by a military band. Another feature that will please the boys will be the temporary library that will be established. In this library will be books written by the best authors of war and naval stories and these will be at the disposal of the boys during their free moments. Arrangements are being made to have Mr. James B. Connolly, the great writer of stories of the sea, deliver two lectures to the boys and these will be treats for Mr. Connolly has a national reputation as a writer and speaker on sea life. Then, too, officers of the national guard have promised to spend a day at camp and watch the drill of the cadets. The box of food will be provided by a local caterer and the camp will be conducted on a grand scale.

It is expected that close to 300 boys will be in camp, and the strictest discipline will be observed. The boys will be in charge of, and McArdle who with Fr. Sullivan, physical director, Mat McConn and a few guests will spend the entire time at camp. Another meeting of the cadets will be held next Friday night when all those who intend to go to camp will hand in their names so that provisions can be made with the exterior to insure plenty of everything in the eating line.

The cadets will meet at Immaculate Conception school hall at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to take part in the Corpus Christi procession. The cadets will act as guard of honor and will wear blue uniforms and white gloves.

bills and resolves without his signature. Four of these have been passed over his veto, which is also a record unprecedented in Massachusetts. If not in any other state. The bills so passed were those increasing the pay of employees of the Metropolitan park and water and sewerage boards, increasing the salaries of state prison and reformatory watchmen, the bill providing for medical milk examinations, and the Lomasney civil service bill.

The engineers and firemen's bill which he now threatens to veto was introduced on petition of Arthur M. Huddell. It amends chap. 102 of the Revised Laws, and provides that to be eligible for a first class fireman's license a person must have been employed as a steam engineer or fireman in charge of or operating boilers for not less than one year, or must have held and used a second class fireman's license for not less than six months. It also changes the requirements for a second and third class engineer's license.

The governor's objection is understood to be that it makes the law too restrictive to engineers and firemen too involved, and imposes unreasonable restrictions affecting both employers and persons wishing to serve as engineers and firemen.

HIS NECK BROKEN BOY PASSED AWAY AFTER SUFFERING FOR FIVE DAYS

NEW YORK, June 17.—After five days of a brave fight for life, with his fourth vertebra broken and the fragments of bone pressing against his spinal cord in such a way as to check his breathing, Leonard J. Smith, nine years old, of No. 231 Harrison avenue, The Bronx, died last night in Washington Heights hospital. He dived off a springboard into shallow water at the Manhattan bath, one hundred and forty-ninth street and the Hudson river. Sunday afternoon, and struck on his head on the hard bottom.

REHEARSAL OF CORONATION PARADE WITH A PRISON VAN USED AS A ROYAL COACH

LONDON, June 17.—The rehearsal of the coronation ceremony here attracted immense crowds of sightseers and afforded an interesting free entertainment to the many American visitors here. The rehearsal of the coronation procession was particularly interesting. The officials in charge of the coronation had a "dummy" coach go over the route that will be followed by the king and queen June 22 from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey. The dummy used as a substitute for the royal coach was a police wagon, used for carrying prisoners and known in this country as a "black Maria." The cream colored horses, shown in the illustration, are those that will draw the royal coach at the coronation.

DIDN'T SAIL

CREW REFUSED TO WORK UNLESS DEMANDS WERE GRANTED

LONDON, June 17.—The steamer Minnowaska of the Atlantic Transport line was unable to sail for New York today, the crew refusing to sign on the old terms and the owners declining to grant an increase. The ship owners at Liverpool are meeting the strike situation by importing foreign seamen, many of whom are taking the places formerly filled by Britishers. BE WISE IN TIME

You cannot keep well unless the bowels are regular. Neglect of this rule of health invites half the sicknesses from which we suffer. Keep the bowels right; otherwise waste matter and poisons which should pass out of the body find their way into the blood and sicken the whole system. Don't wait until the bowels are constipated; take Bloodline Liver Pills.

They are the finest natural laxative in the world—gentle, safe and prompt and thorough. They strengthen the stomach muscles, and will not injure the delicate nervous lining of the bowels. Bloodline Liver Pills have a constitutional action, that is—the longer you take them, the less frequently you need them. They help Nature help herself and keep the bowels healthy, bile active, and stomach well. They never sicken, weaken or gripe.

P. H. COLBURN, NOBLE GRAND.

Highland Veritas Lodge, I.O.O.F.— Its History and Officers

Highland-Veritas lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., is one of the largest branches of the order in this city. Its membership roll is composed of members of the former Highland and Veritas lodges, formerly two distinct branches of the Odd Fellows.

Veritas lodge, No. 19, was instituted Oct. 21, 1844, with the following 14 charter members: Joseph H. Cole, Jonathan M. Reed, J. W. Heard, Seth W. Hatch, Milo Pierce, Joseph Reed, Charles N. Carter, Henry J. Baxter, Joseph Rynes, S. J. Gilman, Thomas Sprague, Horace Eaton, Gilbert Ferrin, Wilder Bennett.

This lodge did not last long, however, for after a few years the charter was surrendered. But again a number of men assembled and reconstituted the lodge on Aug. 13, 1871. Those who took up the initiative of putting Veritas lodge on its feet again were: Thomas L. Richardson, Jonathan Rice, John E. Webb, J. W. Washburn, Wm. D. Butler, D. R. Wallace, E. A. Thistle, A. W. Plimman, Charles Hayes, Solomon A. Abbott, Philip Hirschfeld, Wilder Bennett, Cyrus A. Durgin, Andrew T. Nute, W. F. Fuller, E. A. Sanborn, E. C. Hill, James W. Nash, Charles A. Bailey, L. S. Daly, E. B. Aldrich, A. E. Libby, Daniel W. Atwood, John D. Lyford, Frank W. S. Daly, Joseph Field, E. H. Colburn, A. W. Mead, J. W. McMonaghe, Benjamin C. Baldwin, Charles Hartford, Joseph B. Javett, Daniel Whitaker, George B. Fargo, John Russell, N. P. Ward, Melvin S. Gorse.

On Aug. 31, 1874, the following 23 men got together and formed the Highland lodge: W. T. Fuller, W. G. Morse, A. L. Russell, A. P. Bateman, C. F. Crosby, M. J. Fletcher, O. A. Colburn, S. G. In 1894 several members of the two lodges deemed it advisable to consolidate and finally the matter was brought before the judges. The results were that in February, 1906, Highland and Veritas lodges were consolidated under the name of Highland-Veritas lodge, No. 6. The first board of officers was as follows: Ossian V. Robie, N. VALE CLASSES

MAKING GREAT PREPARATIONS FOR THE REUNION

NEW HAVEN, June 17.—Over the portico of the Townbridge residence, one of the gay, commodious structures facing New Haven Green that have a history was thrown today a big blue banner bearing the figures "71," which signified to Yale men who are returning for the commencement that the men who have been four years out of hall will meet there for reunion. On many dormitories, both on the college campus and in the "sheds" section, there quickly appeared other flags with symbolic figures marking the beginning of reunion classes. Every train brought in reunionists. The class of '81 came over from New York on the yacht of E. W. Harkness and proceeded to the music school which will be used for 30 years. All was stir and bustle throughout the university preparing for commencement. The program will open with the performance on the campus tonight by the Dramatic association of "The Knights of the Burning Pestle" with 92 in the cast.

Tomorrow President Hadley will deliver the baccalaureate sermon in Wesley hall. Most of the reunion dinners will be held Monday and Tuesday.

Rectory Side grove, the grounds adjacent to St. Mary's church in Collinsville, was the scene of a delightful field day this afternoon and a concert and dance will be held there this evening. The affair is in aid of St. Mary's church and the hustling pastor, Rev. Thomas A. Walsh, assisted by committee made up of parishioners, together with the large attendance of people of Collinsville and Lowell made the affair the most successful ever held by the parish.

Shortly after noon the people began to arrive at the grounds and every car brought scores of people. The grounds were decorated in an appropriate manner and tonight Chinese and Japanese lanterns, which have been strung about the place, together with the full moon that is promised, will make the grounds as bright as day.

At various points of vantage about the grounds tables are stationed where good things can be purchased and all were well patronized. The tables were presided over by active workers of the parish.

Many of the townspeople as well as Lowell people furnished automobiles to give rides to those present and it goes without saying that their autos were kept busy.

During the afternoon there was a ball game between a picked team from Lynn and the strong Beaver Brook team. The game started shortly after 2 o'clock and between 3 and 4 o'clock there was a baby show which attracted the attention of the people present. There were all kinds of little ones in the show; some were small, some large for their age, some handsome, and they all were jolly babies. Then there were crying babies, the strenuous youngsters. All were attired in their best clothes and presented a very neat appearance. Suitable prizes were awarded to the winners.

A feature of the afternoon was the fine program of sports carried out in which many of the best athletes in this vicinity participated.

This evening there will be a fine concert program carried out and dancing will be enjoyed.

Mr. Thomas J. Burke had general charge of the arrangements, and he was ably assisted in making the affair a success by the following committees:

KING AND QUEEN

Returned to London and Coronation Festivities Are Opened

LONDON, June 17.—The coronation festivities were fully inaugurated with the return today of the king and queen to Buckingham palace from Windsor and the functions connected with the central event of next Thursday will crowd one upon another until July 1, when the court will again leave London.

Semi-state marked the arrival of their majesties in the metropolis, the procession from Paddington station to Buckingham palace consisting of landaus drawn by four bays with postillions and escorted by the royal horse guards.

Large crowds everywhere welcomed the king and queen with hearty cheering and followed them over the whole route.

Monday will witness the arrival of most of the royal guests and other special missions from abroad. John Hays Hammond, special ambassador from the United States, who will make his official entry into the city at noon, has arrived from the country, where he is spending the week-end. He will be met at the Victoria station by the Duke of Connaught, representing King George, and other officials and the staff, consisting of Baron Sandhurst, Captain C. P. Sowerby and Lieut. Col. Bernard R. James, especially appointed to attend the American envoy throughout his mission.

Dowager Empress Maria of Russia, who will spend the coronation period with Queen Mother Alexandra at Sandringham, arrived this afternoon. She was welcomed at the railroad station by King George and Queen Mary, Queen Mother Alexandra and a host of other members of the royal family and diplomats. This afternoon at Buckingham palace the king received the American and other foreign officers participating in the jumping competitions at the horse show at Olympia. The officers were in full dress uniform and made an brilliant picture. His majesty welcomed the visitors with a cordial handshake and had a few personal words with each of them.

SEAMEN ON STRIKE

An Attempt to Tie Up All Coastwise Shipping

NEW YORK, June 17.—Fifty stewards on the steamer Momus, plying between New York and New Orleans in the marine department of the Southern Pacific railroad, struck today. They said they would take 40 others with them and that 120 seamen, stokers and coal passers would follow the forty. The men quit without disorder.

Organizers of the coastwise seamen have said that they control between 15,000 and 20,000 men and that a general strike order if obeyed would stop all coastwise shipping but the general situation will not form until Sunday, when a mass meeting of the International Seamen's Union of America will be held. The Momus was due to sail at noon. Earlier in the day S. I. Cooper, of counsel for the Morgan line, said:

"All this trouble is being stirred up by walling delegates who are trying to show that they are doing something to earn their salaries."

Henry T. Griffin, general secretary of the union, said in reply:

"Every man of a Morgan ship that comes into this port will walk out as soon as he sets foot on shore. We gave the company until ten o'clock this morning to answer our grievances and we have not heard a word from them."

The men ask pay for overtime, better sleeping quarters and better rations.

TO PREVENT BED SORES

Both physicians and nurses greatly dread the formation of bed sores, so likely to occur on the backs of patients long confined to bed. The pressure of the body, and the perspiration, often cause almost incurable sores.

By dusting the patient freely with Comfort Powder several times daily all such trouble is prevented. Caroline Angus, trained nurse, New York, says "It certainly keeps the skin comfortable and is a certain preventive and cure for bed sores." Comfort Powder is a skin healing wonder. E. S. Sykes' signature is on the genuine.

COMMERCIAL MEN PARADE

NEW HAVEN, June 17.—This is the day for grand frolics of the United Commercial Travellers who have been meeting in convention. The day's fun began with a street parade of the various councils. The cities largely represented were Hartford, Norwich, Bridgeport, Boston, Providence, Worcester, Haverhill, Lynn, Lowell, Somerville, Portland, Lewiston, Manchester, St. Johnsbury, Rutland, Burlington, Bangor and Dover.

After the march about the city the councils were placed on rollers and taken to Savin Rock, where the New Haven council became the host of all at spreads and amusements. The council has selected Worcester for next year's gathering.

NEW BEDFORD BOAT

NEW BEDFORD, June 17.—Whaling has been successful with the schooner A. M. Nicholson of New Bedford, which was on the whaling grounds in latitude 38.10 north; longitude 72.30 west, on May 24. The schooner signalled the schooner E. Marie Brown on that date, saying that seven whales had been taken within a week, asking to be reported to The Associated Press as "All well," so the folks at home would get the good news. The Brown arrived here this morning from Jacksonville and the master delivered the message as soon as he had dropped his mud-hooks overboard.

BOSTON'S MAYOR

CENSURES CITY COUNCIL FOR FAILURE TO ACT ON LOAN ORDER

BOSTON, June 17.—Mayor Fitzgerald's censure of the city council for failing to give a first reading at Tuesday's meeting to his loan order for $400,000 for separate sewer drainage, and the council's action in repudiating the blunder it made when it allowed the consolidation of the consumptive's hospital department with the health department because it failed to take account of the features of yesterday's special session of the council.

The mayor unexpectedly dropped in during executive session and rebuked the members for sidetracking his loan order, which is authorized by statute, by referring it to the committee on finance instead of giving it a first reading. He said the delay meant the suspension of the entire sewer force, some 250 men, before July 10 unless action was taken at once.

He said the city was authorized to spend $720,000 a year for the separate system of drainage, but that $400,000 would be sufficient for this year. He explained that the money left over from last year was rapidly diminishing.

President Collins objected to action during the absence of Councilman Kenny, chairman of the committee on finance, and then the mayor criticized Kenny for his absence and said he had failed to respond to three invitations to discuss such matters as the separate drainage loan.

General Diaz is saddened by the recent events in Mexico and the ingratitude of his countrymen.

"He voluntarily sacrificed his ambition in the hope of obtaining tranquility for the nation, foreseeing that if he continued to defend his cause he might afford a pretext for intervention.

"The bitterness and deep disappointment which he felt was mitigated by the warmth of the manifestation of sympathy upon his departure from Vera Cruz.

"Much has been said about a military dictatorship, but can one thus define a regime which rested upon an army reduced to 14,000 men?"

"General Diaz when he assumed power had to deal with conditions requiring energy, but afterward the nation ripened and was more able to direct itself constitutionally. General Diaz's later policies were interpreted by his adversaries as a sign of weakness."

"General Diaz, confident in the good sense of the people, thought that the agitation would disappear but the people, easily forgetting the merits of the Diaz administration, allowed them-

EX-PRESIDENT DIAZ

Reproaches His Countrymen for What He Calls Their Ingratitude

CORUNNA, Spain, June 17.—Physically enfeebled and sick at heart, General Porfirio Diaz, an exile from the republic of which he was chief builder, at last has yielded to an impulse of self-defense. In a formal statement he justified his administration as president of Mexico and reproached his countrymen for what he describes as their ingratitude.

The expression, the first of a personal nature since he was forced from office, was made on board the steamer Ypiranga during the brief stop of the vessel in this harbor last night. Diaz had received the governor of Corunna and the commandant of the port, who with their staffs, had boarded the vessel at the direction of the government to present the greetings of Spain and the Mexican consul, when he was approached by newspaper representatives. At first he asked to be excused, pleading indisposition, and explaining that though the troublesome tooth had been extracted, he still suffered from an abscess in the lower jaw. However, after consultation with members of his party, the following statement was given to the Prensa Agencia, the official press association of Spain:

"General Diaz is saddened by the recent events in Mexico and the ingratitude of his countrymen.

LEADER OF GIANTS, WHOM FANS TRY TO MAKE IT HOT FOR ON THE DIAMOND

NEW YORK, June 17.—Probably no other manager in baseball today or, in fact, any other season has had to put up with as many taunts and vulgar personalities thrown at him from the fans as Johnny McGraw of the Giants. In every city except his home the fans have taken all kinds of methods to stir the little manager up into a pugnacious mood, but so far he has resisted all the nagging epithets hurled at him. It requires a great deal of self-restraint to keep cool and collected when

5000 or 10,000 wild eyed fans are out to get your goat. But McGraw has never yet argued a point with the occupants of the grandstand or bleachers. True, he has had many mixups with the umpires, both when a player and since he became a manager, but what spirited leader of a big league team has not? McGraw stated recently that in the future he would not argue with theumps. He has evidently come to the sensible conclusion that his services are much more valuable to his team on the coaching lines than in the bomb proof, where irate umpires have so frequently and often without just cause banished him. McGraw is hard on the team, and he has adopted the plan that will be most beneficial to the club players. Any man considered by his employer to be worth a five year contract at $15,000 a year would hardly be earning this salary if much of his valuable time was passed in enforced retirement as the result of penalties inflicted by umpires.

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

The sworn daily average circulation of The Lowell Sun for the year 1910 was

15,976

Sworn to by John H. Harrington, proprietor, Martin H. Reidy, business manager, and Alfred Pilotte, pressman, of The Sun, before me, January 2, 1911. J. JOSEPH HENNESSY, Notary Public.

It is alleged that the idleness of some thousands of mill girls in Rhode Island is due to the decreased demand for dress fabrics, due to the hobble skirt for which not more than half as much cloth is required as for the ordinary skirt. It is time to revive the hoop skirt and crinolines.

The amendment to the reciprocity pact in the interest of the paper trust as offered by Senator Root and backed by Senator Lodge is regarded merely as a ruse by which to defeat the whole measure without appearing to have that intention. Root and Lodge should be exposed in their deceitful move. The passage of the measure through the senate is now practically assured in spite of all underhand methods adopted to defeat it.

The ghastly remains of the battleship Maine, in Havana harbor, show what an explosion will do to the best of these great floating fortresses. The knowledge thus to be gained of the wreck is of sufficient historic importance to warrant the great expense, while it will be of some satisfaction to the relatives of those whose bodies were there entombed to know that even the bones have been recovered.

A very remarkable case of "horse sense" was shown by one of the fine horses of Melrose the other day. The animal had broken away, while out for exercise, and after futile attempts to capture him, the driver hurried to the station and sounded one stroke on the fire alarm. The horse on hearing the bell turned and galloped at full speed to his place in the firehouse. In so doing that fire stead showed not only the effect of good training, but a sense of duty higher than that shown by some men.

THE DIRECT NOMINATION LAW

The law for direct nominations just enacted will simplify our political system and will prevent many of the convention rows that have been too frequent in the nomination of candidates by party conventions. The conventions will now have little to do beyond outlining party platforms and methods by which the ticket may best be supported. The change will at least prevent the efforts to defeat the will of the people that have so often been noticeable at political conventions.

OPTIMIST AND PESSIMIST

Some people are evidently of the opinion that it is the duty of a newspaper to paint every temporary evil in its worst colors and to hold the picture up to horrify the community, while some others believe that it is the newspaper's proper course to set down every such evil at its face value and do everything possible to bring about the remedy. These two courses are open to the daily newspaper in a great variety of cases of frequent occurrence, and in each and every one the paper has to adopt one course or the other. If it tries to make bad worse it is a pessimist; if it looks upon the sunny side of things or sees in the darkest cloud a silver lining, then it is optimistic.

The first policy, if pursued by the press, would drive men to desperation and despair, while the second serves even in the face of adversity to inspire them with hope and courage, the elements necessary to enable them to overcome whatever obstacles beset their path.

Business reverses of one kind or another may come and do come, sometimes when least expected; but that is no justification for representing them in such a bad light that the parties affected will become discouraged and abandon the struggle. It is the resort of demagogues and revolutionists to take up isolated cases of this kind, exploiting them as horrible examples from which the whole system is to be judged and condemned. When business depression comes, the men who are working to abolish the wage system seize upon it as an opportunity to advance their theories, very often spreading false ideas as to the real cause and painting imaginary pictures of the ideal conditions they claim would exist if all properly were owned in common and the state were responsible for the comfort and well-being of every citizen.

These pictures might do good if they were not used to create prejudice against existing conditions or existing institutions. In our political system bad men will get into office and bad measures will be enacted; but in nine such cases out of ten, a large portion of the responsibility for these things rests upon the shoulders of the people who complain most loudly, because instead of using the power placed in their hands to prevent these evils and bring about ideal conditions they neglect to use the ballot for their own protection and then rail vociferously because some robber trust or combination has come into existence to extort unjust prices from the consumer. The oppressive trust, the consequent high cost of living and the restriction upon open competition, are all evils that can be remedied by the people if they make up their minds to do so by the power placed in their hands. Were it otherwise the republican form of government based upon universal suffrage would be a demonstrated failure.

Some of the recent decisions of the supreme court show that fair play and opportunity must be guaranteed alike to all. There is much to be reformed and improved in our political and industrial system; but there is ample power in the hands of the people to bring about all the needed reforms by strictly constitutional methods and without resorting to any of the wild or revolutionary schemes now so openly advocated. The pessimists refuse to believe this; the optimists are ready to prove that it is thoroughly practicable if the people will only use their power intelligently for their own and for the common good. The pessimist looks upon everything through smoked glass, as it were, seeing all enveloped in gloom while the optimist views things in the sunshine of hope, inspiring cheerfulness and that spirit of confidence necessary to the success of every undertaking. The pessimist would make the world more dark and gloomy and would supplant the light of hope by the gloom of despair, while the optimist makes the world better and brighter, the people more contented with their lot and more capable of moving onward and upward to a nobler destiny.

SEEN AND HEARD

The farmers say we are badly in need of more rain. The ground was so thirsty that the recent rain was not sufficient to quench it.

A chauffeur who had just returned to the garage for taking the state's examination to be licensed, says the New York Sun, was asked by a fellow worker what the questions were. "One of them was about meeting a skittish horse," he replied.

"They asked me what I would do if I approached a horse which showed signs of being afraid of the car and its driver held up his hand to me."

"What was the answer?" asked a bystander.

"Oh, I had that all right," the chauffeur replied.

"I told them I'd stop the car, take it apart, and hide the pieces in the grass."

For forty years old Schneider—that is not his name—kept a saloon for longshoremen. Longshoremen, who have a fancy for using cotton hooks when they are in their cups.

West street saloon keeper is not a pathetic figure, but that picture of old Schneider, leaning back patiently for 10 years in order that he might end his days on his own farm had something touching about it.

Stolid, quiet, unimaginative old man, he bore with an occupation he frankly detested because of the reward it promised. His only reference to these West street years now is in his occasional declaration that he ran a quiet place.

"I always had good order in mein store," said he. "Peoples dey could not fight in dere. I could not haf it."

"But how could you keep a bunch of longshoremen from fighting if they wanted to?"

"Yous by hitting dem on dere heads with a boomstarter," explains Mr. Schneider, simply.—Cincinnati Times-Star

It happens that a member of the Jewish race, Mr. Oscar Straus, was a prominent and efficient member of President Roosevelt's cabinet; that another member of the same race, Mr. Louis Brandeis, has proved one of the most useful citizens in private life to-day; that another, Mr. Jacob Schiff, is one of the most eminent philanthropists as well as financiers in the nation; that others of the race—men like Rabbi Hirsch of Chicago and Rabbi Wise of New York—are leaders in the American pulpit; in short, in every department of American life the Jewish people occupy conspicuous positions of honor and trust.

In view of these circumstances it is little short of humorous that an unknown officer in the army should attempt to bar a man from promotion on the ground that he is a Jew.—Kansas City Star

PEOPLE OF NOTE

By way of celebrating its 25th anniversary the class of 1886, Wellesley, will present to the college this month a costly set of bronze doors and a transom, which will be placed on the library building and will serve as a memorial to the late Prof. Eben Norton Horsford, who was an honorary member of the class. The bronze doors and transom are the work of Miss Evelyn Beatrice Longman of New York. The doors measure 6x13 feet, including the transom. In the main panels are full-sized figures representing "Wisdom" and "Charity." In the transom there is a symbol of special meaning to Wellesley. The motto "Non Ministrari Sed Ministrare" is on a ribbon forming the background, and at the center is a wreath of daisies, the '86 class flower, within which is the class motto in Greek and the class numerals.

Announcement is made of the award of the three research fellowships of $500 each, offered by the Women's Educational and Industrial union of Boston. One has been conferred upon Miss Ruth Evans, Wellesley, 1911, the others upon Miss Marie A. Kasner, A. B., 1908, A. M., 1911, of the University of Wisconsin, and Miss Florence Murphy, A. B., 1908, Dublin university, A. M., 1910, Columbia university.

William Cullen Bryant Kemp, A. B., A. M., LL. B., LL. M., C. E., E. E., E. M. S., to be affixed at the commencement exercises of Columbia university several days ago, announces that he intends to spend at least two years more in studying for the degree of Ph. D. Kemp is more than 60 years old, has attended more than 50 commencements at Columbia and has spent the greater part of his life over textbooks. Twenty years ago, it is said, a relative left him an annuity of $2,500 to be paid him so long as he remained in college.

Sarah Bernhardt's tour this year has been remarkable even for her. She opened her American season in Chicago on Oct. 29, and will leave New York on June 21, when she will sail for France. She then will have covered about 25,000 miles and will have played 285 performances in 238 cities, appearing in 103 different American cities. Her manager says that the gross receipts of the tour will be nearly $1,000,000.

The first awards have been made by the Kahn Foundation, wherein distinguished American educators, preferably for the south and west are enabled to spend a year in travel. The two incumbents of the fellowships will be Professor John D. T. McPherson of the University of Georgia and Professor Francis Daniels of Wabash college. The Kahn fellowships have been established for this country by Albert Kahn of Paris, the intention being to send for a year's travel abroad men whose tendencies are toward research and broadening their sphere of influence, and who have not the means at their disposal to carry out their ideas. The men are to be chosen each year preferably from smaller institutions of learning in the south and west, and they are permitted to visit any country they choose for observation, provided their itinerary is submitted to the trustees of the fund for approval. The present incumbents will travel for a year from July 1, 1911.

That the gift of one million dollars by Morion F. The object of having the name changed from Thames college to the Connecticut College for Women is because of the desire to have the name of the state figure more prominently. Among the subscriptions announced is that of $1000 from Governor Baldwin.

FELL TO DEATH FROM THE BORDER

Bankers Saw Man Killed in New York

NEW YORK, June 17.—The financial district witnessed a gruesome incident at its busiest hour yesterday afternoon when William Anderson, a strong cutter, fell from the twenty-eighth floor of the Bankers' Trust company building, near completion, at Wall and Broad streets.

In setting a stone, Anderson slipped and fell. His one wild cry, as he realized his doom, attracted the attention of bankers and brokers as his body came hurtling down. On a stone coping at the fourth floor it struck, and its impact was so tremendous an arm was torn off and left lying on the sill as the body bounded out and crashed onto the heavy wire netting that had been spread over Wall street, at the first floor, to protect traffic while the building was being erected.

The screen acted like a springboard and the body hit the air again. It dropped, finally, horribly mangled, in front of the Wall street entrance of the Stock Exchange. Excitement in the street was so intense and the crush so dense that the police reserves had to be called out from the nearest station to restore order.

THRILLING FLIGHT WAS MADE BY MRS. MARTIN WITH AVIATOR ATWOOD

BOSTON, June 17.—While James V. Martin was speeding back to the aviation grounds at Waltham yesterday afternoon after a long cross-country flight his wife accepted an invitation from Harry Atwood for a little joy ride above the clouds. When Martin alighted Mrs. Martin was not ready, as she usually is, to discuss her flight with him, for she had slipped right off just as he returned, seated as a passenger beside Atwood. Martin looked up in surprise and saw his wife sailing overhead as he stepped out of his machine.

Atwood gave his passenger a thrilling ride. He has a way of going through the air that is full of grace and then soaring up again. This time he came about as near hitting the earth in such a unbalanced attitude as he could without meeting with a serious accident. The grass blades fairly bent as the biplane skimmed the field before its upward slant began again.

All this time the reporters were trying to get Mr. Martin interested in the theory of an aerial ejection or a discussion of fatal accidents, but he refused to become nervous. His wife was perfectly at home in the air, he said. She expects to take a flight in her own aeroplane as soon as its motor is installed, he added.

FATE OF COOK WILL BE DECIDED BY THE JURY TODAY

CINCINNATI, June 17.—The fate of Edgar S. Cook, charged with embezzling $24,000 from the Big Four railway, will be decided today by the jury which for five days listened to the sensational testimony presented by the different witnesses. When court opened all that was necessary to wind up the case was the charge to the jury by Judge Charles J. Hunt and a verdict by the former.

NOW FOR THE BIG SHOW

Lowell Soldier Writes From Galveston

Coro. Edward Duffy of the 5th band, 3rd Prov. regiment, now stationed at Fort Crockett, Texas, writes an interesting letter to his brother, Thomas F. Duffy, of Market street, a part of which reads as follows:

We certainly are having some warm times down here at present. The thermometer goes to 100 to 120 in the sun and always above 90 in the shade during the day, although the nights are as pleasant as any one could wish. Our whole brigade of 4300 men, officers, three bands and hospital corps, has just returned from a march to Houston and back. We started out from Galveston May 29th and got back on June 17th. In all we hiked about 125 miles across the prairies, striking small towns about every 10 or 15 miles. That's going some when you have about 50 or 60 pounds strapped around you. Each man has all that he uses, such as a part of a tent, a mess kit, cartridge belt, haversack, canteen filled with water and a rifle, also a blanket and soap, towel and necessary toilet articles.

The third day we were out the whole brigade broke camp about 5 o'clock in the morning and started out from a little place called League City for the town of Dumont. It was as warm as any day I ever experienced in the Philippines. By 1 o'clock there were about 500 men overcome by the heat, some with heat prostration and others with blistered feet. If we had to go for two or three hours more there would not have been one thousand men able to make it. Nothing but pure grit brought half of them so far. When you are sweltering with the heat (the thermometer registered 120 in the sun) and you have warm, rancid water to drink to try and cool yourself, you have no idea what a pleasure it would be to get in the shade, but there is no shade because there are no trees within ten miles of the camp, and when we stopped to rest it was worse than walking, sitting down in the sun on the gumbo that bakes your feet. There were a good many of the young men who when we started out were shouting and laughing. Toward the end of the day you could see them just weakening with every step. However, now that we are back in Galveston and look back at the last ten days it does not seem as though we went through any great hardship in comparison with what we might have to do if we were down in Mexico. There seems to be an impression around camp here that we will start back up north this coming week and the troops that are stationed in San Antonio are distributed around Texas so they can mobilize quickly if there should be any need for them to do so. The major portion of the brigade here will certainly be happy when the order is issued to pack up and proceed to home stations. For myself I like this place. The Gulf of Mexico is just 150 yards from our tent and every morning you can bathe on a good, clean, hard sandy beach. Autos, horses and carriages can run along on the sand just as though it were a macadamized road. There is good fishing and lots of duck shooting a few miles out and altogether it is a nice place, only you are liable to get the Spanish habit of manana, meaning that you will put off anything that has to be done until tomorrow.

Master Reports In a Hay and Grain Fed th Milford Suit Flames

BOSTON, June 17.—Frank A. Hanson of Milford was awarded $3000 damages against the Milford branches of the quarryworkers' international union of North America by Arthur P. Hardy, master, to whom his complaint was referred. Mr. Hardy filed his report in East Cambridge yesterday.

This is the largest award ever made in this state against a labor union for damages arising from alleged interference with the work of non-union men. The defendants named in the bill are George Innis, John J. Mahoney, Patrick J. Dacey, John F. Jones and Pietro Geppellini, all of Milford, of the quarryworkers' union; Luigi Bascetti, Peter Sciarini, John Fussi, Angelo Antonio, Interventi Gargano and Enrico Mimani, of the derickmen's union.

It is only in recent years that damages have been awarded against unions in labor disputes. The case will be fought to a finish and may go to the full bench on rulings of law asked for by the defence and denied by the master.

The complainant is a granite cutter and in May, 1909, was a foreman of the Massachusetts Pink Granite company of Milford. He had worked in a like capacity for Theodore M. Perry, president of the company. He was a member of the Quarrymen's union prior to 1903, when he took a withdrawal card because he was told that since he had become a foreman he could not belong to the union.

Soon after work at the quarry commenced in February, 1909, Mahoney and Dacey applied to Perry for work. He referred them to Hanson, who told them in substance that he had all the men he could handle, but would give them the same chance as anyone else when there was a vacancy. Dacey applied to Hanson several times for work and complained that he thought others had been given a preference, but Hanson denied this.

The master says: "It is this impression received by the quarrymen, whether it had any reasonable foundation, which was really at the bottom of the trouble which subsequently arose. There was no evidence introduced which in any way tended to show that the company or Hanson had violated any agreement with the union."

THE GOVERNOR SAYS STATE BOARD OF HEALTH SHOULD CONTROL MILK

BOSTON, June 17.—Gov. Foss sent his 53d message to the legislature yesterday transmitting Dr. Charles V. Chapin's report on the state board of health. The governor recommends legislation for the centralization of the control of the milk production in the hands of the board. He also asks the legislature to consider the advisability of consolidating the boards of registration in dentistry, in medicine, in pharmacy and in veterinary medicine into one board. He approves the appropriations for these boards, as well as the appropriation for the board of health.

He says in part: "Our present system of inspection is too scattered and is exercised under too many authorities to be either efficient as a state expenditure or equitable to the farmer."

"I recommend legislation to free the milk producer from the present multitude of regulations and to create one definite simple line of state control."

MUNICIPAL LANDSCAPE GARDENING

WRECK OF AN AUTO

Found Near Tracks of Nahant & Lynn Street Railway

NAHANT, June 17.—While patrolling the road between Nahant and Lynn in the darkness of the early morning hours, Patrolman Michael Kane of the Metropolitan police stumbled over some wreckage at the side of the road, near the tracks of the Nahant & Lynn street railway. Further investigation showed that it was an overturned automobile of the limousine type. It was wrecked beyond repair. Nearby was found a straw hat and a derby hat but there was no other trace of the occupants of the car nor was there any indication that any person had been injured. The machine bore the Massachusetts number of Charles D. Stas of Wrentham. Mr. Stas was notified by the police of the wreck of the machine, but told officers that he was not particularly interested, inasmuch as he had sold the car more than a month ago to a Boston firm of automobile dealers. The police have not been able to learn much from the dealers concerning further disposition of the automobile.

TEACHERS' BILL

NEW MEASURE VOTED BY THE COMMITTEE ON CITIES

BOSTON, June 17.—The committee on cities of the legislature, in executive session yesterday, voted to report the original bill for the increase in salaries of the elementary teachers, with a referendum added.

This bill provides that a sum of 10 cents for the financial year ending Jan. 31, 1913, and the sum of 20 cents for each financial year thereafter, upon each $1000 of the valuation of the city shall be appropriated for any other purpose. The referendum provides that the question shall be submitted to the voters as follows: "Shall the salaries of teachers in the elementary day schools who receive a salary of $1000 or less be increased?"

Except for the referendum clause this bill is virtually the same bill that Gov. Foss vetoed, and to which his veto was sustained. The committee believes that this clause will remove the objection which the governor had to the former bill, namely, that it was contrary to the principle of home rule.

Relief from Sunburn

Many people deny themselves half the pleasure of outdoor life in the summer because of the painful effects the sun's blistering rays have on their delicate skins. You can save yourself the discomfort of sunburn with very little effort. Send to your druggist for a bottle of Tolleine and keep it always at hand. Tolleine has many uses besides affording relief from sunburn—it stops the painful effects of brown (all) moth poison bites, soothes the itch out of mosquito bites, takes the feet, relieves sunburn, heals blisters. It is absolutely harmless, and is efficacious when taken internally for coughs and throat troubles.

MONEY SHOWER

GATEMAN AT MELROSE PICKED UP $108

BOSTON, June 17.—It rained money in Melrose yesterday morning, quarters, halves, bills of large denominations and not a few pennies and small silver pieces were thrown in the air in all $108 "rained" during a very short shower. This all happened at the Emerson street crossing of the Boston and Maine railroad as the 10:44 train from Haverhill went by.

James Walsh, the gate tender, saw the shower. He signaled George Leth, baggage master at the station, and they went hunting for their hands and knees for the money. When they had picked up all they could find they telephoned Boston and soon received ready that a passenger on the train had lost $125. Shortly before noon he visited the scene of the shower and recovered what the trainman had found.

For their trouble Walsh and Leth were each rewarded $2. During the afternoon several unsuccessful attempts were made to find the remainder of the money. The passenger refused to give his name. He said he was counting his money when the wind, etc.

TRAIN WAS HELD UP

Armed Highwaymen Covered Mail Clerks and Looted Car

DRAIN, Oregon, June 17.—The south-bound Shasta Limited on the Southern Pacific which left Portland at 8 o'clock last night was held up and the mail car robbed by two highwaymen about midnight between Drain and Yoncalita. The robbers entered the mail car, held up the clerks and looted the car. They stopped the train at Yoncalita and made their escape. Posses were searching for them west of Yoncalita this morning but up to a late hour they were still at large. Although the two robbers brazenly held their revolvers not a shot was fired. The mail clerks found themselves helpless before the weapons of the highwaymen. One robber held them covered while the other clipped open the mailbags and ransacked their contents. It is not known how much booty the desperadoes secured. As the train neared Yoncalita one of the highwaymen pulled the emergency

HELD AS BANDITS

Eastport Lads Shot up Cottages

BANGOR, Me., June 17.—Two young boys sat in the police station yesterday afternoon and told with considerable gusto how for a week past they had been living in the cottages at Phillips lake, amusing themselves by shooting out windows, making targets of lamps and clocks, smashing doors with axes and living on canned goods and supplies they found.

Yesterday morning a man who lives near the cottage colony, which is 10 miles out on the Bar Harbor branch, discovered that several of the cottages had been broken into. Sheriff T. Herbert White was notified, and he sent Deputy Sheriff Burke out to investigate accompanied by several cottage owners. The two boys were seen making down the lake in a canoe. They were soon overhauled in a motor boat and held up their hands at the point of Deputy Burke's rifle.

The boys were brought to Bangor and locked up and will be turned over to Lincoln county officers for a hearing at Ellsworth. They gave their names as Charles Forbes, 15, and Harry Roman, 18, both of Eastport. Forbes said he used to live in Woburn, Mass., but his parents were both dead, and he lived with a family in Eastport. The boys were dressed in wild west style and were loaded down with revolvers, hunting knives and cartridges, and each had a rifle, all of which had been stolen from the cottages.

DEPARTMENT HEADS

Tell Appropriations Committee That They Need More Money

The committee on appropriations met last night and heard from heads of departments that are in need of money. The committee went out on a tour of inspection during the afternoon and did not reach the hall until 3:30 o'clock, although the meeting was scheduled for 3 o'clock. Somebody said they went on a joy ride but that was indignantly denied. The committee voted to recommend the sum of $10,000 for work at Shedd park.

Purchasing Agent Foye asked for $145 for a new carriage. He said that the old carriage had gone to pieces and a new one was required. Somebody suggested an auto and another thought that Mr. Foye could borrow a carriage from the superintendent of streets. Agent Bates of the health department asked for $6,400 for yard sundries. In January the department asked for $10,572 for yard sundries and was allowed $4,380. Agent Bates was free to admit that he would be back again to the committee for money to place out other branches of the department. Smoke Inspector Holloway asked for remuneration for his services. He has been working for nothing and he allows that he is entitled to pay for his services. He thought the job ought to be worth $700 a year. The office was instituted by the city government according to law and a salary should be attached to it as there is a great deal of work connected with it. In following up observations the work necessitates from eight to nine hours a day. The smoke inspector in Boston gets $1500 a year and he has two assistants. Mr. Holloway said that Boston had about twenty-five per cent. more smoke than we have in Lowell. He told of the complaints that had reached him from different parts of the city and said that the smoke as it is today is a nuisance and a menace to public health.

Inspector Dow of the lands and buildings department asked for $8000 for various building repairs, a majority at the Chelmsford street hospital and an additional $20,000 for a new engine house to replace the present one at the junction of Race and Merrimack streets.

A detailed report of the expenditure of the $6000 for repair work was submitted, also a plan of the proposed fire house.

When the committee got down to business and proceeded to analyze and discuss the requests for money there developed some difference of opinion but nothing very alarming. The committee voted to allow Mr. Foye the $145 for a new carriage; Smoke Inspector Holloway was given leave to withdraw and as to Inspector Dow's request it was voted to recommend that $1000 be allowed instead of the $3000 asked for the repair work at the Chelmsford street hospital. For paving and repairing schoolhouse yards, $2600 was recommended. Repair to High school annex bathroom the sum of $300 was voted. The $200 asked for a wall at the Franklin school was not granted.

The question of the proposed new firehouse was discussed briefly and it was finally voted to lay it on the table for the time being.

The next up was the part department's appeal for $10,000 for work at Shedd park and the committee voted to recommend that the amount be allowed.

The committee discussed briefly the order for $500 for the observance of Columbus day and it was voted to lay it on the table until the next meeting. The committee voted to recommend the appropriation of $1697.50 for the payment of claims against the city.

The joint order asking for $61,000 for a new site for a public hall was the last matter considered. It was voted to recommend $12,200 to be added to the $49,700 insurance money received at the time of the burning of Huntington hall, making the total $61,900 as asked for by the public hall commission and incidentally to have the city solicitor draw up the necessary papers in the proposed plan of selling the Cawley land by eminent domain.

The chairman called another session for next Monday afternoon and evening at 2:30 and 8 o'clock. The purpose is to view the Chelmsford street hospital, the Franklin school and the Race street engine house.

The annual recital of the pupils of Mr. Charles Norman Sladen attracted a large number of music lovers to Colonial hall last night. The program was carefully arranged, was of rare excellence and carried out in a manner that reflected much credit both on Mr. Sladen and the pupils.

HANLEY'S EXPERIENCE FOR NEW CONVENT GOVERNMENT CLERK

Marlboro Man Tells How He Went for Days Without Water

MARLBORO, June 17.—(Reuben is returning gradually to William D. Hanley, the young man who was found yesterday in Cedar swamp in Westboro, where he had been for 56 days, during which time he was without food and had very little water.)

He is confined in a room in the home of his brother, John J. Hanley, at 45 Liberty street, and no one but the clergy, the attending physician, a trained nurse and his relatives are permitted to see him. He is in a very weak condition. When he went away he weighed 150 pounds and now he will not balance the scales at 55.

When he was found his hat was crushed down flat on his head and matted with mud and blood.

During intervals of returning reason Hanley has told brief stories of his experiences during his prostration upon the skunk cabbage bog.

"As a general thing," he said, "I was awake throughout the long nights and I laid upon my bed of cabbage leaves and listened to the sounds of the music from the dancing pavilion at lake Chauncey, a mile away. Often I attempted to get up and go there, but something held me back and I did not have the strength to break my bonds. I could hear the electric cars whizzing by on the street railway a short distance away from where I was reclining. I thought of my home in Marlboro and of my relatives, and I longed to be back home and with my dear relatives and friends.

"In the early mornings I could hear factory whistles blowing and I imagined I could see the working people rushing through the streets laughing, talking and having a good time as they went to work. I knew they were only four miles away in Marlboro and I longed to be back there with them. I wished every hour to be back home in dear old Marlboro, but I could not seem to get up and move.

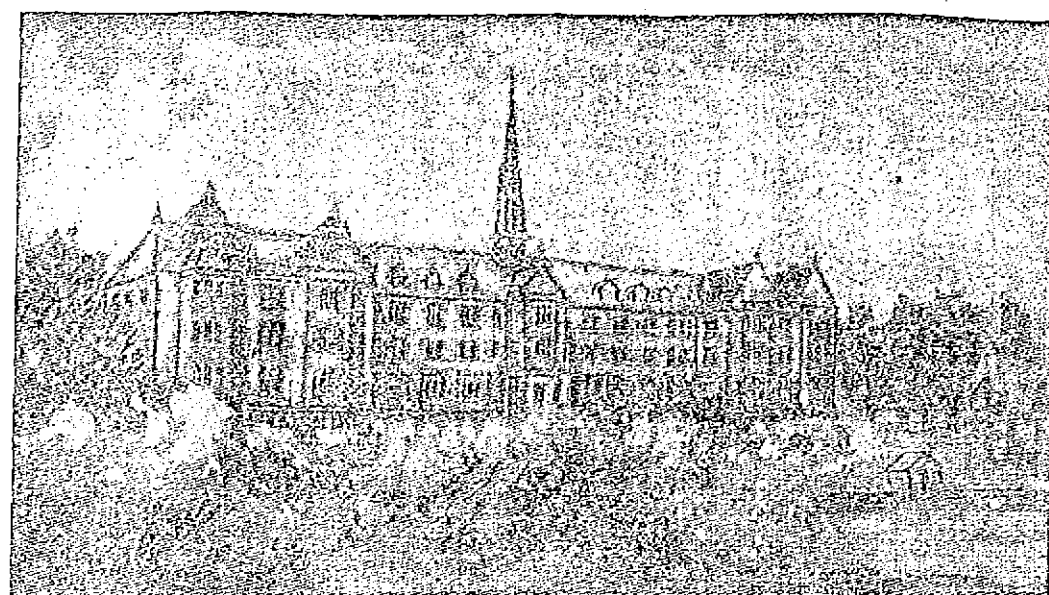

"A number of evenings a man and woman walked by and I could hear them talking and laughing. They were only a few feet away from me, but I could not muster up the courage to call out to them for assistance.

"I just kept quiet and listened to their talk and I seemed to fit me with a mortal fear, yet I loved to hear the sound of their voices. I was terrified to the skin by the heavy rains of the storm of Monday night. I watched the flashing lightning and listened to the crashing thunder, but I made no effort to get away from the terrible place.

"I had very little water to drink and during the last six days I was there I did not have any. At other times I went days without water. I drank some of the rain water, but only in small quantities. It was awfully cold sometimes and at other times I seemed to be burning up. I was awfully hungry, but there wasn't anything I could eat so I just slept and went without food.

"When the men found me I heard them talking about taking me to some hospital in Worcester and I told them I wanted to go home. Oh, I wanted to go home so bad I thought nothing else would do me good. I am so happy to be back home again that now I know I shall get well."

Louis Leco said last night that the only reason he found Hanley is because he is an old hunter and is familiar with woodcraft. He noticed that the skunk cabbage leaves had been disturbed and because he could not understand why any man should want to lounge there he began investigating to satisfy himself in the matter. He was accompanied by David Wright, another workman, and they started in different directions to search. Leco declares that he found Hanley and Wright also claims to have found him. However, the honors are even, for both were at his side at about the same time and they did excellent work in calling aid to take Hanley home. Hanley had been suffering from a severe attack of the grippe before he left home April 20.

PROPOSED NEW ACADEMY OF NOTRE DAME AT TYNGSBORO

Notre Dame Academy Plans Convent in Tyngsboro

Next year will mark the 60th anniversary of the coming of the Sisters of Notre Dame to St. Patrick's church in this city, and will also mark in all probability the last year of their celebrated academy of Notre Dame in Adams street, as the change of the locality and the growth of the institution has made a move to other scenes and buildings an absolute necessity.

Hence, a year or more, it is hoped, will see the good sisters encoined in a modern academy and convent in one of the most beautiful spots in all New England, where they will continue to conduct one of the largest boarding schools for young ladies to be found in the east.

As already well known, the sisters have purchased the old Brindley estate in Tyngsboro, also known as the Nance O'Neill estate, having been occupied for a time by the eminent tragedienne of that name. This estate at present consists of a large colonial mansion containing 42 rooms, several hundred acres of land, including a beautiful pine woods, a half mile track and an exquisite trout pond, and other healthful and attractive features. During, perhaps, the half mile track, the good sisters have elaborate plans for the use of every part of the estate. It is their intention when their funds permit to construct a large and modernly equipped academy on the highest point of the land setting far in from the road, in the rear of the estate, and adjacent to the pine woods, with the pond in the center of its approaches. The estate was once used as a sanatorium on account of its healthful features, and hence the advantages of good air and outdoor life and the beneficence of the pines to the pupil in delicate health will make the new academy most desirable.

Situated, overlooking the celebrated horse shoe curve of the Boston & Maine, famed throughout the country on the moving picture film, and with a mountain of scenery in the rear, the estate is admirable for the purposes to which the Sisters of Notre Dame will put it, and it is the hope of their many friends that their finances will permit them to begin the work without delay.

Upon the completion of the new academy, the old buildings in Adams street (with the exception of the girls' parochial school), from which hundreds of young women who have afterward earned fame in the world and many more who have passed from the academy to the service of the Master have gone forth, will be abandoned after half a century of usefulness. Once the center of an attractive residential quarter, the academy now stands almost completely surrounded by ramshackle and unsightly buildings in a neighborhood in which one would hardly look for such a high class institution of learning. Once within the academy, however, the repulsive impression of its approaches is forgotten, while the visitor within, when escorted through the house of the convent, with their flower-bordered gratings in honor of the Virgin, their stone built shrine to St. Anthony, protected by a natural canopy of greenery from the wide spreading branches of a stately tree, and their numerous shady nooks and fragrant flower beds, finds it difficult to believe that such a place of beauty is removed only by a high brick wall from its very antithesis. Within the building the visitor finds a delight for the eye in the art rooms presided over by Sister Mary Regis, where most attractive work is done by the pupils in pencil, crayon, charcoal, drawing, pastel, water color, and decorating, oil and tapestry painting. It would appear from the work in the studio at present that china painting is particularly popular with the pupils, and a bewildering variety of beautiful things greeted the eye of the writer while passing through the studio, even (save the mark) to a punch bowl of such beauty that whatever may yet be put in it by its environment be palatable.

In the studio also is a magnificent oil painting of the Madonna of the Chair in a massive gilt frame, which is to be awarded later on, in aid of the building fund. It is an exquisite work of art and would have great financial value in the market.

Notre Dame was ever famed for its proficiency in music and the angeli given periodically by the pupils are noted for their excellence. Pupils are taught piano and vocal music, chapel and cabinet organ, harp, violin and mandolin and guitar.

In the 59 years of its existence Notre Dame academy has never gone down nor gone back, as the popular phrases go. It has progressed steadily and the extent of its progress is emphasized by the deterioration of its surroundings. The academy is under the wise and zealous administration of Sister Constantine and there are 30 nuns connected with the institution. There are at present 120 pupils in the academy and 700 in the parish school. The sisters came here originally five in number under Sister Desire, the first superior, in September, 1852, and were escorted to Lowell by the late Bishop Fitzpatrick of Boston, who dedicated the convent and school, a wooden building on the site of the present academy buildings. Two days later they opened the parish school. Their first year was a memorable one. It was in the days of no-nothingism; the fanatical outbreaks of which need not here be recited as they are matters of history. The Lowell convent was threatened but was not molested.

In 1854 the first academy building was constructed and the first boarders taken in, while the wooden building was utilized as a parochial school. In 1854 the middle building, known as the sisters' house, was constructed, and in 1857 the present brick parochial school was built. In 1872, the last of buildings was put up. Sister Desire remained in charge of the academy until her death in 1870. She was succeeded by Sister Agnes Aloysius and she in turn by the following superiors: Sister Mary Bernadine, Sister Clara of St. Francis Heart, Sister Theresa Aloysius and Sister Constantine. While a majority of the pupils have been residents of Lowell and vicinity many have come from a great distance, from the middle, western and southern states, from Cuba and South America, while this year's graduating class has a member who comes from faraway Alaska, who will return to her home in Nome City the latter part of this month for the first time in four years.

Many of the past graduates of Notre Dame have entered religious life as members of the order of Notre Dame and in other orders and some former pupils of the academy have returned years afterward to teach at their Alma Mater. Graduation this year will be held on June 23 and 10 days later the sisters of the local institution together with the members of five neighboring communities, considerably over 100 in all, will make their annual eight days retreat at the academy. The retreat will be conducted by a member of the recent order. After the retreat all the Lowell sisters will go to their estate in Tyngsboro and remain there for the remainder of the vacation. A pretty chapel has been installed in the mansion at the Brindley estate and one of the local clergymen will officiate as chaplain during the summer. None of the original sisters is now at Notre Dame, all having since passed to their reward. The oldest sister, in point of residence at the academy, is Sister Mary Amelia, who has been in Lowell continuously for 44 years. Sister Mary Amelia has a very keen memory for names and faces and she is in great demand on the occasion of the annual Alumnae meetings when former pupils who haven't met for years return to their Alma Mater, because "she knows everybody" and can tell who's who no matter what changes Time's relentless finger may have made in them.

Says He Was Told Not to Mention About Day Picture

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Thomas Morrison, disbursing clerk of the state department, told the house committee on expenditures in that department yesterday that he was instructed, when the missing voucher in the Day portrait case under investigation was found on the floor of his office a few days ago, to keep still about the discovery. This instruction, he said, was given him by Wilbur J. Carr, chief of the consular bureau.

The disclosure was made when Chairman Hamlin asked him if he had made any further attempt since his examination a few days ago to discover how the long missing voucher came to be on the floor of his office.

"I was instructed not to say much about it," Mr. Morrison testified.

"Who instructed you not to say much about it?"

"I think it was Mr. Carr."

"Well, you must know whom you talked to about it."

"Yes, Mr. Carr told me not to discuss the matter. He said it was not advisable to say much about it, as it would be investigated."

The serious view taken of the matter by the state department officials was reflected in a copy of a letter from Charles Denby, consul general at Vienna, Austria, former chief clerk of the state department under Secretary Root when the first investigation of the $2450 voucher for an $550 portrait was made. Secretary Knox submitted this letter, dated Vienna, May 30, 1911, and a cablegram previously received.

Answering Mr. Knox's first cablegram from an explanation of the portrait payment, Mr. Denby cabled from Vienna on May 30:

"No written report was made. Careful preliminary investigation failed to convince the department that criminal charges could be sustained."

Reporting by mail, Mr. Denby explained that the discrepancy as to the voucher was discovered in 1906, when the department negotiated for a portrait of Secretary Hay, and that prior to the Root regime it was customary to include in one voucher smaller sums paid for a number of expenses out of the appropriation allotted to the department to be expended at the secretary's discretion.

As to the result of the investigation conducted by the department in 1906, which Mr. Denby says was never known outside of the department, the former chief clerk reported:

"How far the alleged irregularities in the use of the particular fund in question were within the knowledge of Secretary Hay could not be ascertained, as he died in 1905, in which year also Mr. Michael went as consul to Calcutta. Such practices were not continued under Secretary Root, but reports were brought to my knowledge while chief clerk that the practice had existed previously."

"In view of the entire lack of reliable proof of misappropriations of funds, the inevitable, unpleasant criticism of the administration of an honored man, which would result in public action, the incident was passed over and no official action was taken."

Mr. Morrison explained to the committee further yesterday that on the day he paid the $2450 in cash to ex-Chief Clerk Michael, in June 18, 1904, he ordered his clerk to insert the words "two hundred and fifty dollars" in the printed voucher, and that half an hour after he had paid the money to Michael he inquired what the payment was for and was told in Michael's office that it was for the Day portrait. Then he immediately instructed the clerk to write on the voucher that it was for that picture. Notations on the back which appeared later, referring to emergency payments for diplomatic business, Mr. Morrison said, were not on the voucher that day.

FATHER ALARMED

He Thought Child Was Abducted

It was a case of "wait for the wagon and we'll all have a ride," with a Polish resident of Lakeview avenue last night, and for several hours the police were kept busy trying to locate the man.

Michael Assadorian of Lakeview owns a place of horseflesh which he considers the best ever, and when he drove to his home about 7 o'clock last night he saw scores of children in the street and decided that if he only had the time he would them all a joy ride, but he had other business on hand and was unable to carry out his wishes. Seeing a friend of his standing in the street, he asked the friend if he would like to give the children a ride. The friend consented and started off with one of Assadorian's children and a neighbor's child.

When 10 o'clock struck, the owner of the outfit worried about his horse and child and telephoned to the police that his rig had been stolen and his child abducted and then there was something doing in the telephone room at the police station. Every officer was informed of the alleged larceny and abduction and the city was searched but there was no sign of the missing Polish.

About 11 o'clock a man drove up to Assadorian's door and after assisting the children out of the carriage said he would have returned earlier but for the fact that he wanted to give the children a good ride.

PRESENTED A SILVER SET

Miss Lillian Harrington of 90 Crawford street, Pawtucketville, was entertained by a number of her friends last night and presented a beautiful silver set. During the evening an entertainment program was carried out and refreshments were served. The program consisted of piano selections by Misses May Thirion and Ella Callahan, and songs by Messrs. Roy Dunfee, Dan Wholey and John Moynihan. Refreshments were served and the guests departed, wishing the business men a happy return. Those in charge were Misses Grace Reynolds, Katherine Cogger, Bertha Douglas, Esther Schonhorn and Ella Callahan.

WATER BOARD

DISCUSSED WAGES AND SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY

The water board discussed wages at its meeting last evening, as the Department is affected by the new state law which requires certain employees to work but eight hours per day, six days a week.

The department will need one extra engineer, also extra firemen, officers and watchmen. At the present time the engineers are receiving $18 for seven days per week and on vote of the board it was decided to allow them the same pay for a six day week. The firemen will also be given $15 a week, for six days.

The watchmen and officers, two of the members believed, should be paid by the day. At the present rating they receive $2 daily or $14 per week. On a motion offered by Mr. McDowell and seconded by Mr. Hill that these men receive pay at the present rate per day for six days, or in other words $12 for their six days' labor. The motion was opposed by Messrs. Van Tassel and Furlong. It was later stated that the men's rating was at present figured by day pay and that in view of the board's action they would receive only $12 weekly.

There was some discussion over the Saturday half-holiday bringing about increased expenses for the department, but it was finally voted to grant the afternoon as voted by the city government.

A number of minor matters were considered.

Puzzling Hair Questions

The questions are how can I make my hair more beautiful? How can I stop it from falling out? How can I prevent the formation of scales and dandruff? The answer is simple.

Shampoo your head frequently with a preparation made of refined creamy soap, which cleans away dirt, dust and germs; Glycerin, which softens and soothes the scalp and is a valuable healing agent; White of Eggs, which removes scaly matter; Coconut Oil, which gives the hair a beautiful gloss and prevents the dry condition which results from using ordinary soaps or shampoos; Scleroly Acid, which is an antiseptic that removes germs, bacteria and disagreeable odors.

If these common-sense reasons appeal to you, buy and use a tube of Birt's Head Wash, which is made of all the above described ingredients, and your hair troubles will soon be at an end.

BUSINESS IS BRISK

Local Contractors Have Plenty of Work on Hand

And still business is booming in the building line. The contractors are kept very busy and very few carpenters are out of work. There are one or more houses going up in practically every district of the city, especially in the new Highland district, where a number of one and two-apartment houses are being constructed.

The concrete building is making headway in this city. Contractor Zool Houle of Dracut is very busy putting up concrete houses. At the present time he is erecting a couple on Centralville heights, and besides has several important contracts on hand.

Mr. Richard Buckley of Ludlum street is having a two-apartment house built in Boynton street. The building is of cement blocks and will be fitted with the latest improvements.

Contractor H. E. Drolet is as busy a man as there is in town. He is just completing a two-apartment house in Highland street, for Patrick Daly, the Broadway butcher, and will soon start on the erection of several buildings in Billerica.

Besides this he is making alterations to the house of Shal Gaudin, 29 Ennelt street, where the kitchen is to be enlarged. Mr. Drolet is also adding a piazza to the residence of Robert J. Houlston, 13 Beech street.

Mr. Rosario Lussier of Cumberland road has given a contract for an eight-room cottage to Contractor Edmund Traversy, to be built in Ennelt street. The house will be of the most modern type and its estimated cost will be about $1500.

Eugene Gossella of Lilly avenue will begin work next week on an eight-room cottage house in Henty avenue, near the Dracut line. The contract has been awarded to Charles Hamel and the estimated cost will be $1800.

One of the largest pieces of real estate in West Centralville, the Lussier flat, at the corner of Lilly avenue and Cumberland road, has been sold to Mr. Edmund Delanger of Arkwright street. John Welch of the firm of Welch Bros., has moved into his new home, 70 Livingston street.

Charles H. Abbott will erect a seven-room cottage in Chelmsford street near the Chelmsford line.

Cornelius Collins will make a few changes to his property at 121 Fort Hill avenue, and he has given the contract to Fred Vinal.

The well known firm of J. A. Brien in Chelmsford street, furniture dealers, has added another addition to the already large store. This is the second addition to the place within a year, and this is good proof of the extensive business being carried on by the firm of J. A. Brien.

D. H. Sullivan has plans out for a three-story building at the corner of Westford and Stevens streets. The plan calls for two stores on the ground floor.

A Fine Structure
The magnificent building erected at the corner of Moody and Austin streets is completed, and now Mr. Frank Ricard, the Merrimack street jeweler, is the owner of as fine a piece of property as there is in that district.

The building is a three story house and contains 45 rooms and three stores on the ground floor, with all the modern improvements such as gas, electricity, bath, hot and cold water.

The building is equipped with a large washroom on each floor and is steam heated. It is a wooden structure and was built by Contractor Denis Descheneaux.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Patrons of the Merrimack Square theatre will no doubt be pleased to note the return engagement of Mortimer Snow & Co., presenting that favorite romantic comedy, "Her Broken Idol."

The piece is one in which Mr. Snow, the young woman who won favor on her former appearances here, will be seen to excellent advantage. As an added feature in connection with the presentation of this one-act play, will be the introduction of one of Lowell's amateur performers, a young woman who has shown excellent promise during the times she has appeared before local audiences. The staging of the piece will be looked after in the usual excellent style.

Another feature of the week's bill is the engagement of Miss May E. White, Lowell's favorite soprano, who will appear in songs. Others who go to make up the excellent bill are Simpson and Smith, colored entertainers, whose line of amusement is clean and thoroughly enjoyable. Christine is a ventriloquist whose work places him high in the ranks of his particular line of entertainment and besides the above there will be a new and novel series

Every entrant had to show a speed of 75 miles an hour before he was allowed to start his car in the race and the result was a record breaking race in point of time.

PRIEST'S WORDS THE MANNING FAMILY ON MURDER CHARGE

Prevented Man From Slaying foe

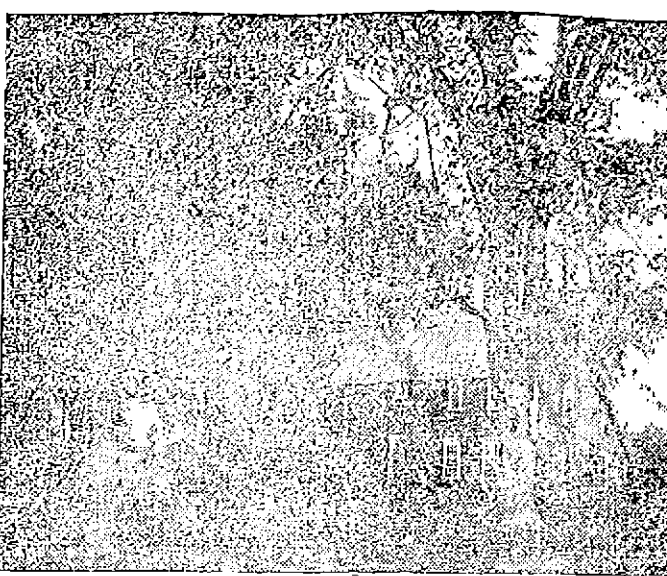

NEW YORK, June 17.—The sudden appearance of a priest on a truck, which was the battlefield of a striker and strikebreaker, saved the striker from being shot by his opponent last night. The strikebreaker had pointed a revolver at his opponent, but the priest's order, "Don't shoot," caused the strikebreaker, Frank Boedje, twenty-one years old, who gave his address as No. 851 First avenue, to raise the revolver as his finger was pressing the trigger, and the bullet went into the air.

Then he turned to the priest, Father Joseph Spahn, of St. Ignace Loyola church, Park avenue and Eighty-fourth street, and said:

"Father, if you had not come at that minute, I would have killed that man. Boedje realized that the priest had probably saved him from being a murderer, and thanked Father Spahn effusively. The other man escaped.

Boedje was driving a truck belonging to the Bell Manufacturing company, at the foot of East 45th street. There has been a strike among the drivers. Five wagons of the company at Madison avenue and 83d street were attacked by 200 striking drivers and their friends.

One man climbed up and attacked Boedje with a wagon stove. He was hit twice on the head with the wagon stove. He pulled a revolver and pointed it at his assailant. Boedje turned the revolver over to Father Spahn. Patrolmen Eckweller and Hurley arrested him. The attackers dispersed when the police-men appeared.

THE MANNING MANSE AT BILLERICA.

Held Annual Reunion at Manning Manse Today

Manse Today

If you are looking for any of the Mannings today, it will be necessary to go to Billerica, for nearly all the Mannings from Lowell and miles around have assembled once more at the ancestral home in that town for the annual reunion of the Manning family association.

The guests began to arrive during the early hours of the morning, and the forenoon was spent in the renewal of old acquaintances and social chats under the trees or in the different rooms of the old manse. Since last year many interesting relics have been added to the collection at the manse and these were inspected with great interest by the guests.

At noon a luncheon was served under the trees, after which a short business meeting was held at which officers were elected, and then the day was given up to sports, such as baseball and tennis and races and music. A delightful day was enjoyed as weather conditions could not have been more favorable.

The following officers and committees were elected:

George Genakos to Go On Trial Week After Next

Second Assistant District Attorney Sawyer and State Inspector Charles E. Byrne was in Lowell today making final arrangements for the trial of George Genakos who is to be tried on a charge of murder before the superior court one week from Monday.

It is alleged that Genakos and Aristides Georgopoulos had been good friends until a rumor was circulated that Georgopoulos had been making statements about Genakos' sister. On the night of July 31, 1910, both men met on the canal bridge near the corner of Suffolk and Ford streets and it is alleged that after they had argued at some length Genakos drew a revolver and shot Georgopoulos. The latter was hurried to the Lowell hospital, but died.

The police then made a search of the city for Genakos, who it is alleged did the shooting, and finally found him in a tenement in Elm street. He was arrested by Serge Ryan, an assistant police officer, John Regis and John Mahan. He was arraigned in police court and after the government had offered its case the court found probable cause and declining jurisdiction, held the man for the superior court.

WOMAN MURDERED

Rope Tied About Neck and She Was Cruelly Treated

NEW YORK, June 17.—Robbers today broke into the home of Mrs. Morando in the lower East Side, tied a rope about her neck and murdered her by throttling it with a stick. Then they looted her ears by tearing out the diamond earrings and tore from her fingers four diamond rings. Mrs. Morando, who was 34 years old, and the wife of a prosperous merchant, had sent her two small children out to play when two men rapped on her door. When she opened the door they attacked her. Her 14-year-old son, coming back from play an hour later found the door locked and entered the apartment through a fire escape. He found his mother dead and the flat looted. His cries summoned the neighbors. The raid had been ransacked and the police believe that the robbers obtained more than the jewels taken from Mrs. Morando's body.

CARD SHARPS

CLEANED UP $2,500 ON THE LUSITANIA

NEW YORK, June 17.—Another story of card sharp swindling was brought to port yesterday by Dr. Carl Anderson, of Jersey City, who arrived on the Lusitania. He said that George Hobard of Reno, Nev., and H. A. Warwick, of London, were fleeced of $2,500 by two rascals who had been recognized by other passengers as men who had played cards on other ships.

Neither Hobard nor Warwick would make any complaint and the sharps were permitted to leave the pier after their baggage had been passed.

"Hobard and Warwick are friends of mine," said the doctor, "and we were in the smoking room Monday evening when two young men proposed a game. They were well dressed and looked honest, so four of us sat down. 'After playing for small stakes for a little while I stopped, as I didn't like the way things looked. Not much money changed hands that night, and I warned my friends not to play again. They would not listen to me and resumed play Tuesday night. Between them they lost $2,500 that night. They did not play again."

Melvin Vanhman, engineer of Wellman's ship, was a passenger on the Lusitania. He left last night for Atlantic City, where he will make another start across the Atlantic in a dirigible next October. His backer is P. S. Stribling, president of chamber of commerce at Akron, O.

Another passenger was William C. Endicott, brother-in-law of Joseph Chamberlain, the English statesman.

THE POSTAL DEPT.

SAID TO HAVE AIDED MONOPOLY OF MAIL CHUTE BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Charges that officials of the post office department are aiding and abetting the existence of a monopoly in the mail chute business were made yesterday before the house committee on expenditures by F. T. Nesbit, of New York, a contractor, and Edwin F. Naulty, president of a mail chute company in New York. They complained that a Rochester, N. Y., company has been maintained in its monopolization of the business by the methods of the department.

Mr. Naulty declared that his company had been prevented from competing on government contracts and in the equipment of private buildings.

"Some years ago," he said, "I was forced to give up $7,000 worth of contracts for installation of our mail chutes because the post office department would have required bonds an exorbitant that we could not furnish them."

GAMES POSTPONED

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

BUNKER HILL

JUNE 17.—This is the day made memorable by the battle of Bunker Hill. This is the day when 2000 "farmers" who had been throwing up entrenchments all during the night of the 16th, cashed their pay checks. And to do so they almost put the English out of business. Israel Putnam was in command of the "rubes" and he made a short speech in which he explained that they did not have as much money as the Powder Trust, and he would like to have them be careful. "That is to be careful that every time they blazed away to be careful that some Englishman would quit hill climbing. He ordered them to wait 'until they could see the whites of the enemy's eyes.' If history was any way obscure this might give the impression that Gen. Howe was going to attack with a regiment of "coons" but they were white. The "rubes" followed orders all right and waited till the English were on them. Then they cut loose, and the enemy fled in confusion. It took for assistance to about a minute. About half of the 2000 English were converted into porous plaster and the rest tried to see how quick they could run down a hill. They were rallied and repulsed, and rallied again. The third time found the Americans out of powder and shot and forced to meet a bayonet charge with stones and clubbed muskets. Putnam seeing the uselessness of this defence ordered a retreat, and what was left of the English surrounded and talked about the "victory."
